Prendergrass, Johnny Mathis, Dionne Warwick and Whitney Houston to name a few . . . The Nat'l Ass'n of Market Developers' fourth annual "Herbert Wright" Luncheon isn't one regular folks should miss. It's coming up at the Grand Hyatt, be there!

EYES WRITE — Perhaps Ben Hooks, the NAACP's top honcho, should query the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. This scribe isn't too sure about its stand on Affirmative Action . . . How about this? Actor Derek Bond resigned as prexy of the British Actors' Equity after a union referendum approved a boycott of South Africa. Water does sink to its own level . . . The World Boxing Council must have taken in a bundle. Its DeeCee salute tribute to Sugar Ray Leonard was priced for the rich. Corporate sponsorship was a high of $10,000 and a $1,500 low . . . In fear of offending Asian Americans the producers of the TeeVee pilot, "Gung Ho," wasted no time what so ever hiring a Japanese-American consulting firm to monitor the script and filming. H'cum we are not treated with the same urgency . . . "Big Deal," starring Cleanant Derricks and Loretta Devine, sizzles when the characters are dancin' and singin', but goes stone cold when the dialogue takes over. The two leads are excellent as well as the supporting cast. However one departs the theatre wishing that somewhere in the show there was a song featured spot that would have given greater outlet to the vocal talent of Desiree Coleman who is similar in octave range as the late Minnie Ripperton. Then too there needed to be more of the Fosse fantastic dance routines . . . One smart critic wrote it like it is about Billy (Mr. B) Eckstine. "Mr. B is a noble septuagenarian of vintage, nimble mind, elastic voice and slim figure, still sartorially splendid. He represents history in entertainment circles, having been one of the tough guys of early Las Vegas when the town was truly "The Mississippi of the West." Don't I know it Will? I was there with Nat King Cole when we were relegated to the other side of the railroad tracks . . . STAY LOOSE . . . Billy Rowe is a syndicated columnist.
