University Day Begins Friday At 6:00 A.M.

University Day! The biggest annual college event of the year will commence Friday, November 16, at 6:00 a.m. when the freshmen begin the construction of their bonfire. From that moment on there will not be a moment's rest for either freshmen or upperclassmen as both classes vie for the coveted trophy. There are many competitive events scheduled between the two classes, but the biggest and most difficult is the bonfire.

The true purpose of the bonfire is that the freshmen shall construct a bonfire which must exceed in height and width the previous year's bonfire. Once this is accomplished, the rest is defending the bonfire from the upperclassmen.

The upperclass objective is not to burn the fire, but rather to cover 20 per cent of the frosh masterpiece with flour. Both classes have planned some great strategic moves, and offense and defense will be hard to crack, from all indications.

In essence, the frosh have twelve hours to build the bonfire and twelve hours to defend it from the undermining upperclass. Points are given for the construction of the fire and points are also given when the upperclass gets flour on the construction.

On Saturday, November 17, the competition will run high between the two classes when the frosh men meet the upperclass men in a football game which will be played at the Maryland Parkway Circle. After this game, the frosh and upperclass women will also meet in a football game.

Saturday afternoon will be carnival time at the University. The clubs on campus will have organized and constructed various booths for the entertainment of all NSU students and of course, the public is welcome. Competition for points will continue Saturday afternoon in the following races: cross-country race, three-legged race, a pie-eating contest, and a tug-of-war.

Saturday evening Nu Sigma Upsilon sorority will sponsor a spaghetti dinner at Pierre's. Tickets for the dinner may be purchased from any sorority member, or see Susie Brown, president.

At approximately 9:00 p.m. on Saturday, November 17, the student body will gather around the bonfire for the burning. Well, they won't be too close, because if the freshman plans follow through, one should be able to see that fire from Boulder City! The cheerleaders will make their first appearance before the student body as a group, and lead them in a few yells. Then the bonfire will be lighted and the members of the Nevada Southern University student body will be united as a whole, regardless of class affiliation. When the last sparks of the fire have dimmed, the group will adjourn to the gym foyer, for the dance which culminates University Day.

Ray Dawson, CSNS president, will reveal the secret of University Day Queen for 1962 and her two attendants. The weeks of planning, days of competition, entertainment, and hours of hard work will culminate with the announcement of this year's trophy winner. Who will be triumphant? We shall all know by Saturday night, but in the meantime if the following rules are adhered to your class may be the winners of the University Day trophy for 1962.

RULES: Only combustible materials may be put on the fire. No materials are to be brought on campus until 6:00 a.m. Friday, Nov. 16, and nothing may be removed from the fire or added to the fire after 6:00 p.m. Friday.

Materials for defense and offense may include water balloons, eggs, tomatoes and other materials of a soft, pliable nature. Some

Dean Wishes Successful U-Day

"University Day," which will be held on November 17 this year, was originated several years ago by the C.S.N.S. as one means of focusing the attention of the community upon Nevada Southern. All students are urged to support the C.S.N.S. in its projects and to enjoy the programs being developed. The committees and the sponsoring groups wish to emphasize that students should enjoy these activities, observe rules of safety, and assist in making this a notable occasion. Best wishes for a successful "University Day."

Co-Ed Chosen Glamour Model

The familiar quote, "Many are called but few are chosen," depicts one of NSU's newest cheerleaders, Shirley Allen. Mrs. Nel Jeffers, counselor, was contacted recently by Glamour Magazine to find a typical Las Vegas girl from the co-eds at Nevada Southern. Shirley was chosen for her past modeling experience and her "ability" to fit into a size 8 dress.

The pert, cheerful blonde was guest of honor at a cocktail party where she was introduced to the editors of Glamour. The next day, Shirley had her hair done and was given the two outfits she was to wear for the pictures. Her task for the day consisted of posing in front of signs, hotels, and wedding chapels to depict typical scenes in fabulous Las Vegas. The first outfit she modeled was a two-piece suit-dress of yellow with white polka dots, long sleeves, and a bow at the neck.

Typical evening wear in Las Vegas is the black sheath dress, the second ensemble that Shirley wore for the magazine. These pictures were photographed in downtown casinos and hotels showing the average life at night in our city.

Shirley was glad to have the chance and experience to work

To Be Announced Nov. 17

Elections will be conducted for University Day Queen of 1962 in the student government room from 9:00 a.m. 'til 5:00 p.m. today, November 14, and tomorrow, November 15. All matriculated male students are eligible to vote.

Candidates are: Jean Chambers, frosh nominee; Joanne Favero, Sheri McDonald, Mary Lou Savage, and Binnie Syde, all upperclass nominees; and Judy Wilden, frosh nominee.

The queen and her two attendants will be announced at the University Day dance Saturday, November 17.

It should be pointed out that this year, University Day Queen will not be given points. In previous years the class in which the queen is a member received a certain number of points. Points were also given for attendants. This year, for many reasons, including the fact that the girl elected should be deserving and not just a point getter, the executive committee has abolished the point competition for University Day Queen.

Young Demos Meet Nov. 5

The first Young Democrats meeting of the year was held November 5, 1962. At this meeting, Paul Havas, the chairman of the Southern Regional Division's Young Democrats, and Darwin Lamb, the State President of Young Democrats, were guest speakers.

Mr. Havas, who was once president of the Young Democrats at Nevada Southern, outlined some of the duties of the club and gave several suggestions to increase the membership.

Mr. Lamb spoke of the importance of the club and its relationship to the senior party. He stated that at future meetings he was sure that Senator Bible, Governor Sawyer, and other major political figures would be willing to attend as guest speakers.

Both Mr. Havas and Mr. Lamb pledged their help and advice whenever needed.

Anyone interested in politics and wishing to join the Young

It should be stressed also, that the queen-elect should be a girl who has worked toward the betterment of NSU and one who is deserving of some recognition for her work, according to Cliff Fields, Senator.

'Pygmalion' Continues At Vegas High School

"You're nothing but a squashed cabbage leaf! You are an incarnate disgrace to the English language," storms Bob Everhart as Professor Henry Higgins in the Las Vegas High School senior class play, "Pygmalion."

George Bernard Shaw's famous play, from which the smash hit musical "My Fair Lady" was adapted, will begin its second run tonight and November 15 through 17 in the Las Vegas High School Auditorium.

The story of a pair of dialecticians who wager they can turn an illiterate, uncouth flower girl into a fine lady of society, "Pygmalion" stars Bette Lou Friedman as Eliza, Bob Everhart as Professor Higgins and Paul Purcell as Pickering.

The rest of the cast includes Barry Fried as Mr. Doolittle, Judi Taylor as Mrs. Higgins, Elaine Pink as Mrs. Pearce, Netta Page as Mrs. Hill, Michelle Bertino as Miss Hill, Elliot Lieb as Freddy and Neema McGlothlan as the chamber maid.

Under the direction of Miss Jody Simmons, drama instructor; Elaine Katzman, assistant director; and Alfred Bash, stage manager, the play is backed by a crew of approximately 50 people.

An innovation in high school productions, the use of "wagon stages" will aid in the efficiency and effectiveness of "Pygmalion." Another added feature will be the playing of stereophonic music during intermissions.

Seating will be in horseshoe fashion on the stage, therefore all tickets must be purchased in advance, from Miss Simmons and members of the cast. Admission is $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for students. All proceeds will go to the senior class.

Pierre's Prices? Phew!

By SHERI McDONALD

Supporting a school with one's money is one thing and supporting a restaurant with one's money is another thing.

Approximately half of the students at Nevada Southern are working their way through college or at least contributing a great part toward their education. Also, many of them must eat at the nearest restaurant because of the time convenience. The nearest restaurant is, as everyone knows, Pierre's.

Many of the students have expressed a desire for lower prices at Pierre's, as spending close to $10.00 a week for lunches alone is quite high for a student whose funds are limited.

The prices this year have been increased considerably, as compared with Pierre's prices in recent years. Hamburgers, previously priced at 40 cents are now 50 cents. Tuna sandwiches have gone up from 45 cents to 65 cents. Soft drinks are now 20 cents instead of 10 cents.

Several NSUites are bringing their lunches and eating them in Pierre's, which is rather impolite, but a most pointed hint. Someone even suggested that we organize a strike against Pierre's.

Incidentally, we might add that the new owners have really cracked down this year also; no longer are students permitted to play cards (we know we should be studying, but it's the principle), dance, play guitars and other varied instruments, not to mention how talking above a whisper is frowned upon.

A catering service has been contacted and "Bud's Chuckwagon" is now making Nevada Southern one of his regular routes. Anyone wishing to purchase his lunch from this wagon, should be in front of Grant Hall by Maryland Parkway at noon.

Eulogy for Mrs. F.D.R.

On November 7, 1962, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of the late ex-President, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, died. She had been ill with a lung infection since early September.

Eleanor Roosevelt has had reams and reams of articles and books written about her. She was active in, and aware of, world affairs, and a goodwill ambassador of the highest caliber. Mrs. Roosevelt was a sharp-witted person of great intellect. She was proud and wise, yet humble.

Mrs. Roosevelt was the living proof of how much a woman could accomplish in politics, which had been almost an all-male world. For many years, she has been held in high esteem as one of the most gracious ladies in Washington, regardless of her party affiliation.

The world mourns the passing of a warm humanitarian. One could say "May her soul rest in peace," but Eleanor Roosevelt had peace of mind and soul, for she contributed much toward the peace of all mankind.

Don't Give Up the Ship!

By BILLIE BARHORST

At this stage of the long voyage ahead, the majority of once over-ambitious freshmen are beginning to get discouraged and downright depressed with their grades and various other "marks of intelligence." Students, who were once upon a time straight A scholars in far-away high school, are now sporting C's, D's, and F's by the dozens. The big question asked by these skippers is: "Why?"

Could the reason for their lack of good grades be the fact that they are not applying themselves and are not studying the assigned material, thus lagging behind the professor and his timely lectures? Could it be that they are disinterested in the whole affair? Could it be that they are unable to adjust to college standards? Now, all of these vague possibilities seem to adhere to some conditions. However, if you were to read them over, slowly, I'm sure that you would find it difficult to make them applicable to "former" intellectuals. The previously mentioned traits would be difficult to find in the studious individual to whom we refer.

Where does therefore the real solution lie? Why are we being "debunked," so to say? It is our contention that we are being knocked off our scholastic pedestals by intelligent instructors who are psychologically attempting to improve our study habits and thus increase our mental abilities, rather than allowing them to lie stagnant at the 12th grade level.

So, fear not, fellow frosh! Better days are yet to come. Just grin and bear it and remain studious. The voyage is, most definitely, a long and difficult one, but the ship is strong and, in the end, perseverance will conquer!

The Open Forum

Dear Editor:

There is, at this time, a great deal of controversy on campus concerning the payment of fees to the members of the Executive Committee of the C.S.N.S. and to the editors of the two school publications.

It is my belief that the payment of those fees is legal in accordance with the make-up of the school constitution. The constitution provides for a control of this power. It provides that a by-law may be passed to limit the use of funds.

I want it to be made clear that I do not oppose these fees. I feel that these fees are necessary and should be paid. However, I am not in the Senate to represent myself. At a meeting of the upperclasses, there was a vote taken on this issue. The majority of those attending were of the opinion that no fees should be paid. I am representing this opinion in the Senate.

At the Senate meeting on November 8, new facts concerning the previous payment of fees were brought to light. I therefore feel that a further discussion of the problem is necessary.

I urge the members of the C.S.N.S. to attend the meetings of their respective classes and to discuss this most important problem with their senators. I ask the members of the sophomore class, who are interested in this problem, to contact either Cliff Fields or myself and discuss this problem with us. If the sophomores will do this, we will be able to represent them with more efficiency.

Respectfully,
Bill Daley

for a top-flight magazine, for she hopes to live in New York after graduation from college. She has been modeling now for four years and was affiliated with the Viva modeling agency in California before she moved out here. There she did modeling for the agency and for the clothing store of the same name. She enjoys modeling immensely and may pursue a career in the field.

Presently, Shirley is a cheerleader for NSU and a pledge in Nu Sigma Upsilon sorority. She graduated from Rancho High School last year and is a freshman here majoring in Business Administration.

Shirley is also part-time secretary for Mr. DeFevre, the superintendent of grounds on campus.

The pictures of Shirley taken last week will appear in a coming edition of Glamour Magazine, along with girls selected throughout the entire United States. All of the girls chosen depict the typical girl in her community. Shirley is definitely an excellent choice to represent Las Vegas in a nationally-known magazine. The REBEL YELL and NSU offer their congratulations to Shirley Allen and wish her continued success in her modeling.

NEVADA SOUTHERN TELL TALES

... BY JAY TELL

A dull, off-year Southern Nevada election suddenly erupted into a sparkling battle for district attorney that provoked the most startling upset in current state politics and enabled two law partners to achieve identical office in as many counties.

Edward G. (Ted) Marshall and Keith Hayes, whose offices are a partition apart, demonstrated that the exception proves the rule when traditional political theories, "the more money — the more votes" and "nice guys don't win election" went by the wayside.

Attorneys Marshall and Hayes were born and raised in families of modest income. Each was self-supporting during college and law school days.

Neither had a source of large funds to wage an expensive campaign of salaried workers, over-abundant literature or indiscriminate newspaper space or radio or television time.

What was lacking in financial security was more than made up in long, hard hours of carefully planned effort, diligence and determination.

Almost immediately after the campaign got underway, a steady stream of unpaid volunteers flowed into the offices of the young attorneys to pledge support and time and effort. Those who came to inquire were overwhelmed by the charm, personality and friendliness of the candidates and found themselves enthusiastically scurrying to the far ends of the county to sound the clarion.

Hayes won in Esmeralda County. It was his first attempt and election to office.

But to the surprise of everyone except his supporters, Marshall's vigorous campaign in his bid for district attorney of Clark County, upset the well-oiled machine and financially solvent candidacy of a man who had reaped the rewards of two years as justice of the peace, an office as remunerative as that of President of the U.S.

Marshall, who saw fit to advertise in The REBEL YELL, won all 16 precincts in Henderson and all eight precincts in Boulder City by large margins. He also took 16 of the 17 precincts in North Las Vegas, losing just the 14th by a scant six votes. In the outlying districts, Ted emerged victorious in 18 areas and lost nine of the 28.

We'll never know the result in Railroad Pass. The vote of the lone voter there, a mail-in ballot, arrived too late to tally.

In greater Las Vegas, Marshall won 26 precincts and lost 48, five by as little as one vote, one by two votes, two by four votes and one by seven votes.

The 57th precinct was a dead heat with both candidates acquiring the same number — 100 even.

The day following the election, tongue-in-cheek courthouse observers started the rumors flying, but knowing Ted as we do, we unqualifiedly assure all and sundry that Marshall will be a fighting D.A. for all the people of Clark County.

The eighth production in the NSU Little Theatre has finished its presentations. The Chalk Garden, by Enid Bagnold, played the final nights to audiences which filled the Little Theatre.

I imagine there were several students from the English 101 courses who were disappointed when they could not get reservations. The two written scripts of The Chalk Garden, which were on reserve in the library, were probably the most in-demand books this semester. Those who did miss the actual production of The Chalk Garden, should not have. The fine acting which was displayed by the talented members of the cast, gave the audiences moments which will be remembered for a long while. Dr. Harris, the cast, and the crew certainly deserve a roomful of "editorial roses" for their wonderful production.

As the applause of the closing night production lingers mystically in the ears of The Chalk Garden members, preparations for the spring production are well underway. Mr. Crawford, director for the spring production, has activated the technical theatre class in the re-establishment of a proscenium arch theater. The Matchmaker, by Thornton Wilder, is tentatively Mr. Crawford's choice for NSU's spring comedy. Arrangements with the publisher for producing The Matchmaker, have not been made as yet. If they are, NSU will really be able to view an extremely delightful farce in the springtime.

Assuming that The Matchmaker will be selected for the spring production, a large cast will definitely be needed. If you have any theatrical aspirations, become a participant in the tryouts. Don't be shy or embarrassed, and degrade yourself by thinking that you do not have any talent. You might be surprised and be cast as one of the leads. If you do not become a member of the cast, sign up to be a member of the crew. People are always needed for work and are always welcomed with open arms.

Plan ahead for the spring semester and watch for the announcement of the dates of tryouts for The Matchmaker. The REBEL YELL will keep you posted on the news concerning the play.

A special thank you is due Mr. DeFevre, the superintendent of Buildings and Grounds at NSU. This gentleman was extremely helpful to the cast of The Chalk Garden. He donated his office to the cast during the production dates of the play. The office was redecorated, temporarily, as a costume-make-up room by Penny Parigg. It was definitely better than the cramped quarters the actors and crew used last year. The Little Theatre is growing and will eventually have more facilities for its aspiring dramatic students.

Las Vegas High School is producing George Bernard Shaw's play, Pygmalion. Miss Jody Simmons, director of drama at Las Vegas High School, has chosen this Shavian comedy as the production for the senior class. Production dates are November 14-17, at 8:00 p.m. The admission prices are $1.25 for adults and $.75 for students. The place is the Las Vegas High School Auditorium. Now, exit to the Green Room until next time.

THE ADVENTURES OF MISS FASHION FLAIR

By JOYCE HORVAT

University Day is this weekend, just in case you haven't heard yet. The freshman girls will be attired in typical University Day clothes: dirty, baggy, and warm. The upperclassmen will also be wearing the usual garb, for they know of the events leading up to the Bonfire, due to past experience as freshmen. If you dare to come in anything but the worst, make sure it's from Miss Bobbie's at 4th and Fremont.

Upon inquiring for information concerning University Day, I found out that there is a series of mud-slinging, egg-tossing, and tomato throwing, all of which is culminated by the sprinkling of flour over everything and everybody. So if you have never looked like a piece of breaded meat, marinated in egg and seasoned with tomatoes, by all means don't miss the building, guarding, and eventual burning of the bonfire!

Whether or not you come to the bonfire, don't forget the University Day Dance Saturday night. This requires a little dressier attire than for previous events leading up to the crowning of the Queen. If you haven't already decided what to wear, make a visit to Miss Bobbie's at 4th and Fremont. She has in stock a complete line of formal, semi-formal, dressy, and casual clothing. Whether you are particular or not, you will be able to find a suitable ensemble at Miss Bobbie's. Many of her things are featured in Seventeen Magazine along with other top-flight magazines in the country.

Before I forget, let me also remind you of the various booths that will be functioning on Saturday, Nov. 17. The many organizations on campus have worked hard to put together a fund-raising project and earnestly solicit your support. While you are patronizing the booths, capri sets will probably be the dominating garb. Miss Bobbie's has a new fall item in, sweat-shirt knit in pants. The pants are tapered to literally "fit the skin" and come in dark background colors of red, black, and mustard! These pants would also be perfect for the above-mentioned egg-tossing and tomato throwing at the bonfire. You would probably just blend in with the whole mess!

Now for the hair. You may or may not want to get it done for the University "Craze Daze," but chances are you'll want to look your best for the dance. If so, why not hop over to Dee Lyn's in Francisco Square and see either Pat or Joan who do marvelous hairdos for everyone. (Sorry fellas, girls only again.) A new hairdo really makes you feel like a new person and, if you are daring, why not get a wig? These are the big thing this year and if you get a good one, unless you tell, no one will ever know! Remember the old commercial, "Only your hairdresser knows for sure!"

Well girls, now that we've assembled our attire for the complete weekend of University Day at NSU, let's really jump into the spirit of things and make this a big success and the best bonfire and dance the U. of N. has ever had. The word on campus for this year is BIG! Everything is being done in a big way. The REBEL YELL, the Epilogue, the freshman class, the faculty, and the bonfire promises to be overwhelming in size with the spirit of the freshmen prevailing at all times. In order to make NSU stand out as an integral part of the community, the entire student body must get behind the school and make every event BIG.

This is enough preaching for this time. Just remember to show up for University Day, the bonfire, dance, etc., in your best and worst clothing, respectively. SEE YOU NEXT TIME!

Scanning The Sorority Scene

Nu Sigma Upsilon, academic and social sorority, has actively begun its second year at Nevada Southern. Propelled by the three fold purpose of maintenance of high academic standards, social service, and promotion of school spirit, Nu Sigma Upsilon members and pledges are finding their days and weeks full of things to do.

Rush week began on September 23 with a Tea at the home of Linda Knowles. Coke and dance parties rounded out the week's activities, after which eleven girls were chosen as Fall Semester Pledges. They are: Shirley Allen, Iris Fields, Eva Jean Gibson, Gail Gouldsmith, Dian Hess, Donna Houpt, Diane Renchler, Linda Rowle, Cynthia Schultz, Sunny Tritsch, and Lonnie Wilson.

Perhaps "normal" students found themselves taking a second glance at the "abnormal" activities of the pledges during "Pledge Week." Clad in pajamas, Halloween masks, and hair curlers, these girls struggled through a most unusual week.

Active members held installation of new officers in a candlelight ceremony on October 21. Rowena Mitchell, outgoing president, introduced the organization's new advisor, Mrs. Beverly Funk, after which she installed Susie Brown as Nu Sigma Upsilon's second president. President Brown will serve for a term of one year with Maroline Davis,

After the war, Colonel Landaker reported to the University of Colorado, where he became the Professor of Military Science and Tactics. He remained there for two years.

During his years in the army, the Colonel moved to various places in the world as his assignments necessitated. The rebuilding of Korea immediately after the conflicts in that country was one of his assignments. His last duty before he retired was with the Ohio River Project, where he was second in command. This project concerned the building of dams for navigation and flood control purposes.

With his long and exciting career in the Army completed, Colonel Landaker moved to Las Vegas where he is now living with his wife, Mary, and their two boys, Stephen, age eleven, and Chester Jr., age twelve.

When asked about the change from military to civilian life, the Colonel said his major problem was the adjustment from being in charge of multi-million dollar projects to the "small change" affairs of everyday civilian life.

The Colonel finds teaching a very interesting and challenging profession. He occasionally takes time out from his duties at NSU to engage in his two principal hobbies: boating and golfing.

The Colonel feels that NSU is a school with great potential and a good curriculum. He describes NSU as "an alert and progressive university." He hopes to continue teaching here for many years.

National Political Scene

By RICHARD HOROWITZ

Trying to assess trends in the campaign just ended is next to impossible. The results were indecisive as far as a large shift from one party to another. Nevertheless, the results must be considered a great victory for President Kennedy and for the Democratic party.

Since the turn of the century the party out of power has gained an average of seven seats in the Senate and forty-four House seats. The Republicans gained only two House seats and lost four Senate seats. Before election day most observers agreed that the Republicans would have to pick up 20 House seats before they could claim any groundswell of support.

The failure of the Republican party at the polls indicates that the GOP as a whole has failed to demonstrate any popular appeal that might give them a hope of beating the Democrats in the House or Senate in 1964. It also cut their chances considerably of beating President Kennedy in 1964.

The only cause for Republican optimism came in the gubernatorial races. Although they did not pick up the 46 governorships they expected to, they carried the four big states, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan. If Kennedy's popularity weakens, the governors of these four states might be in a position to give their votes to the GOP nominee in 1964.

Three were, however, some noticeable trends in the elections. The most important, in my estimation, was the spreading of the two-party system throughout the nation. Although the United States has two major parties, there have been sections of the country in which one party always emerged victorious. The Democrats, of course, had their solid south, while the Republicans controlled northern New England and most of the great plains states. This has been broken down to some extent in the last 35 years and this election gave further proof of this definite trend.

The Democrats, for example, elected governors in New Hampshire (the first in 40 years), Vermont (the first in 109 years), and missed by only 1,000 votes of electing a governor in Maine. Democrat Frank Morrison also won re-election in Kansas. They also elected a Senator in New Hampshire and South Dakota.

The Republicans captured the governorship of Oklahoma and came extremely close in Texas.

Vice President; Ada Tessler, Corresponding Secretary; Kay Cleland, Recording Secretary; Kay Monson, Historian; and Linda Knowles, Sergeant-at-Arms. Rowena Mitchell will serve as Chairman of Rush Committee; Binnie Syde, Social Committee; Donna DuCharme, Pep Committee.

Nu Sigma Upsilon is planning an active year for 1962-63. The girls ushered for "The Chalk Garden," fall production of the drama department. The sorority will sponsor the Spaghetti Dinner on University Day, to be held at Pierre's College Inn. All students are urged to get their tickets ($1.25) from any sorority member as soon as possible. The University Day Dance will also be sponsored by Nu Sigma Upsilon.

They re-elected Senator Morton in Kentucky and almost defeated Senator Hill in Alabama. They picked up additional House seats in Florida, Texas, North Carolina and Tennessee.

This trend, if it continues, will have an invigorating trend on national politics. No longer will parties be able to offer as candidates "political hacks" in sure areas, for very few areas will be sure.

The second trend in the election was one of moderation. In most cases, in the Democratic and Republican primaries, candidates closest to the political middle-of-the-road were the victors. In the general election, the trend was the same. Thus, all four members of the John Birch Society running for Congress lost, even though two were incumbents. The Conservative party polled less than 3 percent of the vote in New York. Similarly, John Hughes, ultra-liberal Independent Senate candidate in Massachusetts, only polled about 2 percent of the total vote.

The third major trend was the tendency of the voters to split their tickets and vote for the man rather than the party. New York elected a Democratic Controller by 800,000 votes and a Republican Senator by 1,000,000 votes. Pennsylvania elected a Republican Governor by 350,000 votes and a Democratic Senator by 100,000 votes. Ohio elected a Republican Congressman-at-Large by 600,000 votes and a Democratic Senator by about the same margin. Idaho, faced with two Senatorial elections, re-elected a Democratic liberal and a Republican conservative by about the same margins. We see the same trend even in Nevada. Despite the smashing Democratic victory, Paul Laxalt was easily elected Lt. Governor by 8,000 votes.

Although the trends were there, they did not reflect a mass movement from one party to another, and were thus missed by many observers. Nevertheless, the trends were present. The nationalizing of both political parties, the increasing moderation, the selectiveness of the American voter; and the victory (by keeping the status quo) of Kennedy and the Democratic party were the most important results of the November 6 election.

FROM THE DESK OF ERIC COOPER

One of the most colorful persons on the NSU campus is Colonel Chester L. Landaker, a new mathematics and engineering instructor. Having just retired from the United States Army, the "Colonel," as he prefers to be called, is a newcomer to our city and school. He, however, is no stranger to the southwest. The Colonel has spent several years in the service at duty stations in Arizona and New Mexico.

Born in Clinton, Missouri, where he attended high school, Colonel Landaker started college at Missouri University, majoring in Engineering. Upon the completion of his first year, he received an appointment to the United States Military Academy at West Point. The Colonel joined the "long grey line" in 1927. He proved to be an honor student and graduated nineteenth in the class of 1931. He requested and was assigned to the Corps of Engineers. The Colonel was sent to Cornell University, where he received his degree in Civil Engineering. After obtaining his degree, Colonel Landaker was assigned to his first command at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, with a construction battalion. In 1936, he moved to Hawaii to assist in the construction of the coastal defenses.

World War II found the Colonel at Fort Leonard, Tucson, Arizona, organizing an Aviation Engineer Battalion. He was immediately transferred to England to aid in the planning and building of airfields, depots and hospitals for the Allies. Some of his most vivid experiences occurred during this period. The Colonel recalls being in Antwerp during the invasion when the dreaded V-1 "Buzz Bombs" made their first appearance. He lost many of his men because of these flying bombs, which could not be heard or spotted until just before the moment of impact. Colonel Landaker remembers being rather frustrated at the inability of his construction troops to retaliate when they were fired upon. Much of their time was spent close to the front lines with no infantry support. Life was extremely dangerous for his troops.

Spotlight ON POLITICS

By RICHARD HOROWITZ

The state election results were not surprising to any one close to Nevada politics. As far as State and County returns are concerned there were only three surprising developments. The first was the easy win of Paul Laxalt over Berkeley Bunke for Lt. Governor. Although the Laxalt victory was predicted by some, none were so bold as to say his margin would reach the 8500-vote level.

The second surprise were the results in the Boyd Bulloch vs Art Olsen County Commissioner race. Bulloch gave such a strong run again Olsen, that the final count was only 3000 votes in Olsen's favor.

The third surprise was undoubtedly the biggest upset in local political history. Ted Marshall pulled ahead of Myron Leavitt to top the favorite by 760 votes. This column stated three weeks ago that Leavitt would lose because of his weakness in Boulder City and North Las Vegas. As it turned out Marshall polled 72% of the Boulder City vote and 55% of the North Las Vegas vote. Marshall lost by 400 votes in the rest of the county but overcame this lead with a 800 vote victory in Boulder City and a 400 vote victory in North Las Vegas.

The most significant result concerning the future of Nevada political bosses, is that the man in the street will vote independently if a politically-attractive candidate is running, with little regard to machines.

Barring some unforeseen circumstances, the top names in Nevada politics should remain the same for four years. The new state administration is in. Walter Baring now looks like a sure thing for re-election in 1964 as does Senator Cannon. In 1966 the fight to control the State will be made in a Laxalt vs ???? for the Governorship of Nevada. After Laxalt's defeat of Bunker, he would be far from a pushover.

Meanwhile, some young Clark County Democrats are starting to become threats to the statewide politicians. The most prominent of the locals is District Attorney Ted Marshall, County Commissioner Bill Briare, Las Vegas Justice of the Peace Tom Pursel, and Republican Boyd Bulloch.

I would now like to diverge and talk about two criticisms of my column. The first was a written question submitted by Dr. Paul Harris as to my method of predicting political results. First, I would just like to review my results.

In the United States Senate, I correctly predicted 34 of 38 races. In the important gubernatorial races, I picked five out of five. In my final summation, I said the Democrats would gain between one and five senate seats (they gained four), the Republicans would gain two to six state houses (they only gained one), and a very small shift in the House of Representatives was probable (the GOP gain of four seats was the smallest shift since the Civil War). On the state level, I picked every race but Laxalt's correctly. In Las Vegas, I predicted 11 of 12 of the assembly races, the Justice of the Peace race and the District Attorney's race, accurately.

How did I do it? Was it blind luck? I think not. In national politics, my method is to read top flight newspapers and magazines, getting the main issues and their interpretations of what is happening. Then I integrate these facts with my personal knowledge of the political background of the state. Examples of this are—the Texas race for Governor and the Illinois race for Senator.

In Texas everyone was predicting a tossup because of the 1961 GOP Senatorial victory. However, the Senatorial victory was a fluke since an estimated 40,000 liberal Democrats voted for a conservative Republican in order to defeat a conservative Democrat. These same voters figured to switch back to Democrat Connelly and so I picked him by 75,000 votes (he won by 82,000).

In the Illinois Senate race everyone said Senator Dirksen would win by the largest margin ever. Dirksen, however, had won his first term in 1950 and re-election in 1956. In 1950 the Democrats put up a nothing candidate and in 1956 he ran 900,000 votes behind Eisenhower. This year he figured to do a great deal worse even considering his increased popularity. Therefore, I stated his 250,000 margin would be considerably reduced. The results show it was cut to 165,000.

The second question which arose concerned my personal political preferences and how they affected my column. I am a strong Democrat. My concern, however, is to write and predict in an objective manner. I believe I have done a fair job of writing and crystal ball gazing! The "proof" of my sincere objectivity is that people, after reading my column, asked me which party I favored. During the last election, I also worked very hard for Ted Marshall in the D. A.'s race. Once again, I tried my best to be fair to both candidates. I shall continue to write in the most objective way possible as long as "Spotlight On Politics" continues to interest its readers.

Newman Club Receives Trophy

By DONNA DEVOE

The time, 5:00 p.m.—the place, Las Vegas—destination, the Bavarian Village at Mount Lemon, Tucson, Arizona—purpose, Newman leadership conference.

Father Caviglia graciously permitted his car to be used for the trip. Accompanying the Father were Donna DeVoe, Mary Lou Savage, Frank Joy, and Leonard Yelinek.

Those who preferred a faster trip on one of our modern airliners were Sherry McDaniel, Henry Silvestri, Linda Muzio, and Gail Gouldsmith.

4:00 a.m. Saturday marked our arrival time at the Bavarian Village. Welcoming us were smiling faces, warm handshakes, hot chocolate and homemade doughnuts. The latter repast just hit the spot for us weary Las Vegans.

Little sleep was afforded Saturday as an early mass followed by a delectable morning meal were the first two activities undertaken. All day Saturday conferences and speeches were taking place, affording each person the wonderful opportunity to meet other Newmanites and learn what they are doing for their respective clubs in relation to the leadership movement.

That evening a buffet style dinner, prepared by Mr. Dick Lindsley, was served to the students in a candlelight atmosphere. The food was in reality a feast consisting of so many varied dishes it made one's head dizzy to gaze at the varieties of meats, salads, and deserts. One cannot begin to describe all of the food least of all the unusual savor of each dish. Mr. Lindsley is truly an artist when it comes to preparing and arranging the food he serves. Thank you, Dick, for making our stay most enjoyable.

We, too, would like to express our thanks to Mr. Ronald J. Kateen, the owner of the Bavarian Village, who made our stay possible.

Miss Shirley Collins and Mrs. Zella Bray, two well qualified registered nurses, were on hand throughout the entire time spent at Mount Lemon. Although no accidents occurred, we had the assurance of knowing we would be in good hands if any mishap should occur.

The chaperones, Mr. and Mrs. S. Cezyk, helped also to make our stay pleasureable.

After our Saturday dinner, a lively dance was held for everyone. We discovered the Arizonans can shake a mean foot. Dances ranging from the well-known Charleston and polka to the modern twist were executed. The affair was fun and also educational, as we picked up a few new steps these westerners are doing, so watch for some new eye catchers the next time you attend one of NSU's spirited dances. The social gathering terminated with smiling faces, but I'm sorry to say, some weary bones after a good workout on the dance floor.

For early Sunday risers the sacrament of confession was administered by Father "C," followed by mass, breakfast, and a few closing speeches. It was at this time a trophy was to be presented to the most active club during the past year. We are proud to state the Nevada Southern Newman Club, one of six colleges represented in the Arizona Province, was presented with a handsome trophy for outstanding leadership during the past year. If we continue in our past efforts, the province conference to be given here in March will be the most outstanding of all the province conventions held so far.

After the presentation of the trophy, lunch was served, and the usual round of good-byes were given. It was then time for us to leave for our nine-hour car trip to our respective homes. At 11:30 p.m. we arrived in the fabulous city of Las Vegas, tired, but especially grateful for the opportunity we had of educating ourselves further in relation to the Newman movement. Also we are thankful for the chance we had to meet new people, exchange ideas, and stimulate our goals to higher aspirations.

Thank you, Father "C," Mr. Kateen, Mr. Lindsley, Miss Collins, Mrs. Bray, and Mr. and Mrs. Sezyk for making our trip so pleasureable, and above all, successful.

ON THE SPORTS BEAT

By JOE GRAZIANO
— SPORTS EDITOR —

The basketball season is rapidly drawing near.

What will this year's team be like? Will it be a running team like the UCLA clubs of the early 1950's or a ball control team such as the present Stanford University Indians; or a team built around one man similar to Kansas University in the hey days of Wilt Chamberlin or a balanced scoring team such as the University of San Francisco Dons during the playing era of Bill Russel and K.C. Jones?

To answer this question, I will try to put together a few facts, a couple of observations, and some prognostications. The team is experienced, being predominantly upperclassmen in composition. In basketball, as in many other things, experience is the best teacher. This adds greatly to the probable success of the team.

Add depth to the experience and you increase your chances. An example of the importance of depth to a basketball team would be the World Champion Boston Celtics. The Celtics do not have the best starting five in the NBA but they have instead the best ten men in the league. Need I say more?

In watching the team workout, I have noticed that the club this year has a couple of good outside men and also a few good inside men, that is, men that can hit from the outside and men that can maneuver under the basket.

And to these a few good ball handlers and I think the result is quite obvious — a well balanced team.

The big question mark that will not be answered until the season actually gets underway is can the Rebels control the back boards? This, it seems, is almost always the key to any team's success or failure. Last year Nevada Southern controlled the boards and the team was a winner. The same will be true this year as I see it.

As to the offense, Coach Drakulich has said, "We will use a single post with the forwards screening. We will go to the fast break if the opportunity presents itself."

This statement may mean much to some of you and very little to still others. To simplify what Coach Drakulich said, the single post means that the team, when it comes down the floor to set up, works off one man who may be at the top of the key, to either side, or under the basket in what is called a low post. The team sets up its plays and-or works for an opening from the outside by using the man on the post.

The forwards screen by blocking out the opponents by placing themselves between the defensive man and the area that the offense wants to remain clear for a play set up.

A fast break is simply moving the ball down court ahead of the bulk of the opposing team at a rapid pace.

Examples of taking advantage of a fast break would be: clearing the defensive back board and quickly passing upcourt thus catching the opposition napping, and stealing the ball in the back court and moving the ball quickly on offense.

The players have shown in practice sessions that they are able to handle the ball at top speed. This is exactly what is necessary to make a fast break go.

Overall, the team looks good at this time. The system that it will use seems to fit the pattern of the team make-up. On paper the team should go and go big.

The only ingredient of a successful team that has not been mentioned is the will to win. Does the team have it? Does the student body have it? Only time and time alone will tell.

Remember these words four months from today.

Golf Team Being Formed At NSU

A golf team which will compete against the high schools of the area and possibly a few colleges is now being organized.

Those interested should contact Rick Holland at EV 5-3420.

The team will begin competition the first of January. BYU has expressed a desire to come here for a golf match at that time.

Last year, a tennis team composed of university students, competed against the University of Nevada team from Reno.

"This year we hope to play BYU and the team from the Reno campus along with a few other schools, if possible, and the area high school," Rich Holland said.

Seven members made up last years team; however, Holland said that the goal of this years squad is to acquire a total of 10 golfers.

Basketball Practice Sessions Open

Soccer Practice Light

(Editor's note: Bab Pardini, who has been organizing the soccer team here at the school for competition in the unlimited league in the Las Vegas area is disturbed at the turnout for the practices which has thus far been very light. The situation is such that THE REBEL YELL feels that something should be said. What follows is Bob Pardini's views on the present situation regarding the team)

By BOB PARDINI

I wish to extend my thanks to those of you who have signed up to play soccer. We now have a full team which is capable of becoming the best team in the league if all of the members who have signed-up to play could find the time to come to the practices.

I realize that most of you are busy with your studies, University Day activities, and other miscellaneous interests. I too, have the same problem.

At the same time, however, I realize that the soccer season gets underway in less than three weeks. Therefore it is vitally important that all of the team members show up at the practices as often as is humanly possible. December 2 marks the start of the season which is very close at hand.

I strongly urge all the soccer team members to attend the next practice to be held Sunday at 2 p.m. at Hartke Field in North Las Vegas near Rancho High School. Practices will be held on each succeeding Sunday until the season begins.

THE TRUTH, TOO

One current problem is that the ounce of prevention now costs as much as the pound of cure used to.

Basketball Teams Gear For Season

Coaches Michael Drakulich and Ed Gregory are rapidly preparing the varsity and junior varsity squads respectively for the opening of the 1962-63 basketball season.

Both teams begin their seasons on the weekend of November 30. The varsity meets the Long Beach Navy team with the JV's taking on College of Southern Utah.

The squads are still working on the basic fundamentals with more and more time being devoted to putting the teams together as the season draws near. A good deal of the practice sessions have been devoted to drills which emphasize conditioning and ball handling at top speed.

Coach Drakulich had a good opportunity to size up the varsity last Wednesday when his squad held a scrimmage against the Vegas Village team which plays in the unlimited league in the Las Vegas Area.

"The team this year is taller than we have ever had; however we lack the one 'big man' (in height) that we had last year in the person of Tim Lenerd. We have more depth and experience over last year," Coach Drakulich said.

In sizing up the teams chances this year, Drakulich remarked, "We will have to control the board in order to win. If the men we have this year can get the rebounds like Leonard did last season, then we will be in good shape."

When asked what system the team will use this year, Drakulich replied, "We use a single post with the front men screening. The team will take advantage of a fast break if the opportunity presents itself. On defense, we will use a switching man on man with an occasional switch to the zone defense. Overall we plan to run a lot, to keep the ball moving, and to capitalize on our opponents mistakes."

Last year the varsity chalked up a season record of 16-8. Coach Drakulich has hopes of bettering that mark this year.

"We do not look for an exceptional season because of our lack of the extra big man; but with our good speed this year we feel that we could equal or surpass last year's fine record," Drakulich added.

The junior varsity squad is progressing at about the same speed as the varsity.

The teams have been working out daily for four weeks in sessions of two hours each. The emphasis has been on running both straight running and in drills in an effort to work the squads into excellent shape.

With the season but three weeks away, the final preparations are starting to take place.

"The teams will be ready and we are going to give 'em everything we've got," Coach Drakulich assured.

excluded items are apples, oranges, lemons, gourds, peaches, melons or other hard items.

No heavy equipment is to be used without licensed and qualified drivers.

There will be no metal or glass objects used in the defense of the fire. Various shields may be fashioned as long as they are not used in personal contact.

Absolutely no vehicle of any type may be used on campus except for the designated parking areas. Vehicles may not be used for defenses or offense. Everyone will park his car in the parking lot, which is neutral area. No animal (dogs, horses, etc.) may be used for defense or offense.

No foxholes, traps or other obstructions or earthworks that may be dangerous to inflict bodily harm may be constructed.

All buildings and lawns will be neutral ground and there will be no offense or defense in these areas.

No unnecessary roughness.

These rules are subject to additions or subtractions as the executive committee deems necessary. Any infringement of rules will force a loss of points for that class, and if serious, the loss of trophy.

Safety more than any other factor should be stressed in the bonfire activities during University Day weekend. Any unnecessary roughness, as stated before, will meet severe penalties. All events should be met fairly and equally. Men students especially should be cautious when the combat may involve women. Too often women are involuntarily involved in these tussles and may be hurt. If all students will keep safety in mind, there will be no casualties.

PHYSICAL ED. UTILITY FIELD

By JOE GRAZIANO

Daniel McLaughlin, Assistant Dean, and Michael Drakulich, Director of Athletics, revealed to The REBEL YELL this week the proposed development of a physical education utility field for the Nevada Southern campus.

The field, to be located adjacent to the Health-Physical Education Building and directly south of it, is in the planning stages at this time. "It is not known when the field will be completed; however, we are hoping that the facility will be ready by the fall of next year," Dean McLaughlin said.

"Reports have reached us recently that bids have been received for the sprinkling system which will be installed at the field. This is a good sign," Dean McLaughlin added.

Measuring 450 feet in length and 300 feet wide, the field will be used at the outset for the physical education classes.

"We will make use of the field so that the facility benefits the greater number of students. Among the three uses to which the field can be put, i.e., for physical education classes, intramurals, or intercollegiate athletics, the use for P.E. classes is preferential because of the greater number of students this activity involves," Drakulich said.

"Once we have taken care of providing for additional physical education programs and those already existing, then we can turn our attention to an intramural program," Drakulich added.

The Athletic Director, when asked which activities would be initiated at the outset of the intramural program, replied that touch football, basketball, softball, and volleyball would probably be the initial sports.

1962-'63 Mademoiselle Competition Announced

By MARY LOU SAVAGE

A thorough introduction to New York's publishing, fashion, and business worlds awaits twenty winners of Mademoiselle magazine's 1962-63 College Board Competition. Women undergraduates who are enrolled in accredited colleges or junior colleges are eligible to compete for College Board membership, and for one of the twenty Guest Editorships — a salaried month in New York, helping edit Ma-demoiselle's college issue.

The College Board Competition is designed for students with talent in art, writing, fashion, merchandising, promotion, or advertising. To qualify for Board membership, undergraduates must submit an entry by November 30, which shows ability in one of these areas. They are then eligible to submit a second entry in February to compete for the top prize, one of twenty Guest Editorships.

Next June, the twenty-fifth annual group of Guest Editors will be brought to New York, round-trip transportation paid, to help edit the August, 1963, issue. They'll share offices with Mademoiselle's regular editors, advise the staff on campus trends, interview well-known artists and writers, as well as represent the magazine on visits to publishing houses, stores, advertising agencies, and so forth. They also will be photographed for the college issue, and will be considered for future staff positions with Mademoiselle and other Conde Nast publications. (As a special bonus, the 1962 Guest Editors were flown to Rome, where they spent five days attending fashion showings, visiting art galleries, sight-seeing, and going to parties in their honor.)

For a list of entry topics and complete rules, write to College Board Competition, Mademoiselle, 420 Lexington, New York 17, New York.

European Safari Offers Travel, Job Opportunities

We all know that a complete education can not be acquired from books alone. The well-rounded individual needs a certain amount of education thru practical experience. The European Safari program offers you an opportunity to acquire basic European cultural traits and language adaptation abilities that will always be of use to you — especially in an age emphasizing the importance of Europe's association with the United States. A well-paying summer job in Europe is the focal point of The European Safari program. Working in Europe gives you the rare opportunity to "Live" Europe, absorb its culture, and learn its languages.

Each European Safari contains a tour of your choice thru history-steeped Europe, a summer job in a country of your choice, and ample free time in which to experiment with your newly acquired social and language abilities.

Four outstanding features of the European Safari program can easily be emphasized with the initials — A. S. I. S.

- Acquire a major foreign language.
- See and 'Live' Europe with Europeans.
- Increase your cultural knowledge.
- Save countless dollars.

A few of the countries that summer jobs are available are: Germany, Israel, Finland, England, Switzerland, France, Norway, Spain, Luxembourg, and Holland. Higher positions are available if the student speaks a foreign language, but most of the countries do not require a knowledge of a foreign language.

The experiences of your summer job and safari are:

- Service
- Adventure
- Freedom
- Acculturation
- Romance
- Inexpensive

The first Safari costs $150, the second costs $599, the third costs $799. These include a round trip boat or jet plane ticket, a summer job and a tour of Europe.

The jobs available are: factory, hospital, resort-hotel, farm, construction, child care, camp counseling, and many others are arranged. The students live with the most choice European families.

They receive high paying jobs plus their board and room.

The unique experience of 'Living' Europe with Europeans saves you countless dollars an ordinary tourist would have to spend. Regardless of your budget, a fun-filled summer in Europe is yours if you are willing to work for the experience. Also, throughout the summer, the convenience of your round-trip jet flight ticket is assurance that home is never more than a day's journey away.
