

STUDENT CENTER IN '68?

C.S.N.S., Chancellor Moyer Propose Multi-Million Dollar Student Union

A unique $1.7 million building which would enrich student life at Nevada Southern University has been proposed by student government leaders and Chancellor Donald C. Moyer.

"At present there is no single place on campus that students can claim as strictly their own. They need a common meeting place, their own student services, and other facilities strictly for students and designed to enhance life here," Dr. Moyer and C.S.N.S. president Jack Abell, said in jointly announcing the need for such a structure.

The new Student Center would be constructed north of, and attached to, the newly completed dining commons. The building would extend toward the center of campus between Social Science and Frazier Hall.

As designed by architects, the proposed Student Center contains 60,000 square feet of space to house numerous student services and student government offices.

HAS OPEN POOL

The ground floor contains a bookstore, games area, a student shortorder restaurant, a service center for ticket sales to campus events, a lounge, and an air-conditioned bubble-top mall with an open pool surrounding an "island" lounge. From the "island," a spiral staircase leads to the second floor.

On the second floor are a large reading lounge, meeting rooms, music lounge, a lounge (with fireplace) for discussions and open meetings and a large ballroom and banquet room which would also be suitable for stage productions. Also planned are offices for student government and student publications, with offices on both the second floor and the second floor mezzanine. Offices for Student Center staff and counselors are also on this floor.

A huge glass bubble forms part of the roof, with much open space underneath to give the building natural lighting and a feeling of spaciousness. A hallway leads to the good commons and to a sheltered terrace for outdoor eating.

COST BORN BY STUDENTS

Cost of the new Student Center building would be born by a student fee of approximately $27 per semester which would go toward paying off the bonds needed for financing the construction of the building and for maintenance and operating expenses once it is open for student use.

LAS VEGAS, NEVADA

THURSDAY, SEPT. 22, 1966

As I See It

by Terry Lindberg

All that glitters . . .

The proposed 1.7 million dollar student center seems almost too good to be true. After years of screaming, complaining, crying for a student union building, we're now being offered our dream.

And a magnificent structure it would be. (See story, picture.) No longer would Nevada Southern students be forced to congregate in the library for the fulfillment of their social life. The library, for the first time, could be used as a place to study. Kind of scary, huh?

No longer would group, class, or club meetings have to be held in Frazier Patio, the front steps of Grant Hall, or the HPE shower stalls. There would be rooms and rooms just waiting for somebody to come along and have a meeting in them.

There would be lounges with stereophonic recordings and tapes. There would be pianos and ping-pong tables . . . a fire place.

It would be a place where we could get in from the dust storms during the Moonsoon season; and that stifling summer heat during the Tourist season.

It would be a place to laugh and play and relax - and plan panty raids on the dormitory, if it ever gets finished.

That's the glitter. Here's the catch:

The building would be financed directly by -- you guessed it -- the student. We would be assessed $27.00 extra per semester for fees. Add that to the 164.00 which we now pay, and the consolidated fees will be totaling 191.00 a semester . . . which is a pretty good wad.

But this may not be quite as bad as it seems. For one thing, the 27.00 fee estimate is slightly high. There is a good possibility that the fee will not be quite that steep. For another reason, and this is the most important, THE FEE WILL NOT BE ASSESSED UNTIL THE BUILDING IS COMPLETED AND IN FULL USE BY NEVADA SOUTHERN STUDENTS.

Dickenson Memorial Concert Memberships To Be Issued

The Community Concerts Association has announced that ten memberships have again been issued as a memorial to the late Dr. James R. Dickenson and will be available to students at Nevada Southern.

The tickets, which will be issued for single concerts only, may be obtained free for the asking from Dr. Howard Chase, Social Science 139.

Dr. Chase has stated that the tickets will be distributed on a "first come, first served" basis during the week prior to the concert. Also, since they are season tickets, they must be returned after each concert.

The first event scheduled is for Thursday, September 9, "Fiesta Mexicana".

Letters to the EDITOR

Terry,
When I told you I had a letter for the REBEL YELL, I didn't disclose any of its contents to you. Every once in a while I like to get up on my soapbox and yell. May God save your toes.

I admit the new activity cards look nice, but part of their expense could have been put to a more practical use. There were some very questionable tactics involved in their order and final approval, by the way. It has been reported to me that certain persons were missed pending actual approval of the card's purchase.

It also comes to my attention that the undergraduate fees have been boosted almost $30.00 over last year for repaying a loan on a new student union because no one wants to buy bonds at 5% interest. We now have to wait for a new session of the legislature to approve bonds at a higher interest rate.

In the interim I imagine there are many student services that the money could be used for. For example: Another FULL-TIME counselor, specifically to help keep freshmen from throwing up their hands and quitting out of sheer desperation; a V-A secretary on campus; and a Dean of Students, just to name a few.

Let us be a little tolerant of the construction company's completion date on our new dormitory. I realize it's extra hardship to move twice, but if the engineering department gave the prime contractor or any of the sub-contractors an extension of time you can bet it's a change or addition for the residing students benefit. Even for their safety.

By the way, my hat is off to Dr. Ben Owen and his staff for their efficient handling of a touchy logistics problem. Enough of this "coup d' essai".

John Armstrong
(If "coup d' essai" is a French swear word, you're in trouble.--Ed.)

ACTIVITY CARDS STILL AVAILABLE

CSNS has announced that students who failed to obtain their plastic activity cards during Registration Day may do so now in the office of Student Personnel Services, Frazier Hall, Room 110.

In addition, those part-time (6 or less units) and graduate students who have decided to purchase the card may do so by also going to the same location. The charge is $17.00 per semester, and the card brings free and reduced admission to varied University or CSNS-sponsored events.

REBELLION by Chuck Crawford

STUDIES IN STUDENTS

I hear from REBEL YELL EDITOR, Terry Lindberg that his comments chiding chief engineer Ed Pine and Clay Carpenter got some results.

Mr. Pine was nice enough to pay a visit to the R-Y office last week. I bet it wasn't for a pat on the back of the editor!

Rabbit out of the hat tricks are popping up already in your student government.

The case of the magician, student body president Jack Abell, is embarrassing to his chief protege Bill Ruymann. For Abell's talents are being employed to cover up a slight error made by Ruymann this summer.

Slight? This error will mean that Abell has to increase the REBEL YELL publication budget by over $1,000 to cover Ruymann's miscalculation of printing costs for the R-Y.

In the absence of editor Terry Lindberg, who was home in Indiana this summer, Ruymann took on the job of deciding what the REBEL YELL would be like this year. Well, in an attempt at furthering the "big school" image, he convinced everybody that a switch to off set printing would allow the editor to publish every week.

This was a super idea. The cost, as understood by Ruymann, would be less than publishing bi-monthly with letter-press printing.

Somehow along the way, Ruymann forgot to double-check the estimate for all these services, and when the last issue of the R-Y was printed the bill was nearly twice as much as Ruymann had predicted.

Perhaps this slap in the hand is a little harsh, but too many people are running around saying that it is nobody's fault and trying to cover up the expensive error that has been made.

The fact is that the $1,000 is going to have to come from somewhere. Some other budget is going to have to be decreased. Question Mr. Abell and Mr. Ruymann: Is your "big school" image worth spending $5,000 to achieve? Maybe the students would have liked the money to be spent more thriftily.

I'd say your cover-up trick is not going to cover up the blame. Somebody's going to miss the rabbit you came up with.

Or someone, namely the student body, will be missing about eleven issues of the R-Y!

Boob on the Brink

by Larry Clark

The old adage, "Rome wasn't built in a day", could be applied to our illustrious Mecca of the panty raid cult, the N.S.U. dormitory. It took longer to build the dorm than the Great Wall of China.

This monument to apathy could be called the eighth wonder of the world (a wonder it got finished). The construction took so long that the workers weren't hired--they were sentenced. If a worker wanted to quit, he had to escape first.

Watching the construction workers was a study in slowmotion. Invalids could move faster. They were about as fast as molasses on a cold morning. These laxed laborers were probably employed under the "Hire the Handicapped Program". Their lunch breaks resembled a paid vacation.

But, the majority of the slack can be attributed to the Buddah of the University engineers. It is the engineering department who approves the construction, but getting an approval from them is about as easy as getting an approval for nude cheer leaders.

Of course, the Northern administrators deal out funds like a modern day Scrooge. The only way we can get any money is to give green stamps. Our budget looks like an obituary column.

As I See It . . . . .

In other woras, it won't be anything like that 42,00 capital assessment fee they stuck us with this semester. (We're still trying to figure that one out.) This time we'll have something to show for our money BEFORE we pay.

The question is: Do we want this union badly enough to pay for it ourselves? If we wait for federal funds, the student center may not come for at least 10 years. If we, the students, give the initiated program our okay within the next two weeks, the center may become a reality sometime in 1968.

Soon, the proposal will be put before the C.S.N.S. Senate and Executive committee for their approval. Go to your class Senator, or any member of the Executive committee, and express to him your feelings on the proposed student union.

Yes...or no. The answer is up to you.

NSU'S FIRST DORMITORY OCCUPIED

Students began moving into NSU's first dormitory building Tuesday morning after federal inspectors from the Housing Urban Development (HUD) Office Friday okayed the first three floors for student occupancy. C. R. Darling, Las Vegas area manager for the Sletten Construction Co., said his firm will have the top three floors finished in about three weeks. He said his completion date on the building had been extended to allow for certain modifications, and because of working days lost because of bad weather.

"But even at that, we are ahead of schedule on this building. This job will be completed in eight months, which is very good time on a million dollar building of this size and style," Darling said. Landscaping, including sidewalks, paving for parking areas, and sunshades will be done by November, the construction manager said.

Meanwhile, 80 men and women students are moving into the new dormitory. They will occupy of Student Services at NSU.

Federal inspection and approval of the two new buildings was necessary because the government helped finance the projects.

NO ONE TO BLAME

Chancellor Donald C. Moyer said that recent problems surrounding the new dormitory should not be blamed on any particular individual or individuals. (36 out-of-state and out-of-county students had to be housed in apartments off campus until the dormitory was ready.) He said the problems seem to have resulted from a cumbersome system of having everything connected with the project handled by someone other than officials here on campus.

"The university engineers did the best they could under the circumstances. The contractor took over this project at the last possible moment and has performed a small miracle in getting the job this far along in only six weeks," Dr. Moyer said. "It is the total system of purchasing and the fact that we have no local control over the situation, that has created the most headaches".

University student government leaders have been quite vocal in their criticism of the "dormitory hassle". Student body president Jack Abell said he is concerned that the same confusion and problems may arise when the Confederated Students of Nevada Southern build their proposed $1.7 million Student Center building.

separate floors, with counselors on each floor.

Furniture for the dormitory has not arrived yet because the purchasing order was late in leaving the Reno office which has direct control over construction and purchasing.

Air Force canvass cots and plain pipe racks will be set up for the students until the furnishings arrive "sometime soon".

Carpeting on floors and in rooms and hallways has not been put down yet, also because of late purchasing orders.

At the same time federal inspectors gave their okay to the new dormitory, they also approved the new dining commons, which served its first meal to students and faculty on Tuesday morning, according to Dr. Ben Owen, Director

Tuesday: Nevada Southern students move into half-completed dormitory.

Student Union . . . . .

Dr. Moyer emphasized that the fee would not be charged to students until the building was finished and being used by NSU students.

The Chancellor said that a smaller building of less quality could be built cheaper, but that it would mean cutting back on student office space, meeting rooms, lounges and other areas.

"We could cut expenses on this building, but it should be capable of being used by students here for at least 100 years. We would hope, therefore, that it would be the best building we can design and finance," Dr. Moyer said.

The model of the proposed Student Center building is on display in Social Science 112.

400 ATTEND REBEL ROAST

Nearly four-hundred Nevada Southern students headed for Vegas Wash beach September 14 as the C.S.N.S.'s annual Rebel Roast was held to kick off the year's student activities.

The Roast, which for the first time was without C.S.N.S. furnished beverages and good, began at 12 noon and ended at approximately 7:30 p.m.

Previously Nevada Southern had been denied the privilege of organizing the roast at the Lake Mead beach due to injuries occurring in past Nevada Southern beach parties, and also due to minors consuming alcoholic beverages.

N.S.U. Chancellor Donald Moyer and Director of Student Personnel Services Dr. Ben Owen paid a visit to the beach in the late afternoon.

Biology Lectures Begin Tonight

The Nevada Southern University Biology Club presents tonight the first of its scheduled eight lectures for this semester.

Mr. Grant Harris, director of the Alcoholic Bureau for the State of Nevada, will speak on the topic, "Alcoholism".

The program will begin at 7:30 p.m. and will be held in SS 103.

These lectures, the first of a kind at Nevada Southern, should continue throughout the school year.

Volpe Wins Second Prize In Contest

Samuel French, Inc., play publishers and authors' representatives, has announced that Richard Volpe of Nevada Southern University won second place in the Fourteenth Annual National Collegiate Playwriting Contest.

The contest, sponsored by French, Inc., had more than 240 entrants from 103 colleges. First place award went to Louis Florimonte of Pennsylvania State University and Jerome C. Small of the University of California at Los Angeles.

A specially inscribed bronze-on-ebony plaque will be presented to Nevada Southern University in honor of Mr. Volpe's achievement.

The 1967 contest has already begun and will continue through the spring term of 1967. Inquiries may be addressed to Samuel French, Inc., New York, before the deadline, May 5th, 1967.

ALASKAN COED REMAINS CONTENT DESPITE STARVATION

by Terry Lindberg

Linda Charbula: Dark hair, brown eyes, 17-year-old freshman. She's not a lot different from any other Nevada Southern coed, except that she has come to Las Vegas from Anchorage, Alaska. And she's going to live in the dormitory -- if it ever becomes completed.

We found Linda Sunday afternoon at the apartment building where the waiting dormitory students are staying. She was studying French, and looking awfully hungry. "That's my only complaint -- not enough food. We only get $2.50 a day with which to buy three meals, I'm down to my last Frito!" (See Picture)

Despite her starvation, Linda remains in good spirits. She says that she's happy to be in Las Vegas and that she enjoys Nevada Southern University, but has a sneaky feeling the schoolwork will be a bit tough. "I'm already flunking French -- and I've only been to one class."

LIKES NSU

We asked Linda why she had come all the way from Anchorage, Alaska to attend college. She told us that she had wanted to enroll in one of the California State Universities, but that the tuition and fees were rather high. Nevada Southern seemed to be what she was looking for.

"When I first arrived (on campus)," Linda recalled, "I had the taxi driver pull in at Frazier Hall so that I might drop by the Student Personnel office to pick up the key for my dormitory room. The lady behind the front desk immediately referred me to Dr. Owen, and, with my taxi cab fare slowly rising to an absurd total, he gently, tactfully broke the news to me: I not only had no room key; I had no room."

TRAVELS OFTEN

Adjustment shouldn't be much of a problem for Linda. She has attended 10 schools, and has lived in Germany and Morocco as well as all parts of the United States. She likes the change of scenery.

Of course, Linda finds that the physical environment of Las Vegas, Nevada is quite a contrast to that of Anchorage, Alaska. "The highest temperature I can remember for Anchorage, in the last four years, is 81 degrees. The lowest . . . 40 degrees below zero."

Linda only plans on staying at Nevada Southern for three years. " . . . I'm going to law school as soon as I earn my 96 credits and pass the LSAT," she explains. Nobody defends Eskimos, Linda.

NROTC APPLICATIONS AVAILABLE

Applications for the Navy's twenty-first annual Regular NROTC qualification test are now available according to Dr. Ben Owen, Director of Student Personnel Services. This nationwide examination will be given on December 10, 1966, and all eligible male high school seniors and graduates may apply.

On the basis of this test, personal interviews, medical examinations, and other factors, Dr. Owen explained, over 1,700 young men will enter the Regular NROTC Program as midshipmen at NROTC units in 52 colleges and universities throughout the nation. Male citizens of the United States who will be at least 17 but not yet 21 on 30 June 1967, and who are now high school seniors or graduates, may be eligible to apply for the test. Those who attain qualifying scores will be interviewed and given medical examinations next January and February.

A successful candidate receives financial aid for four years of college. This includes tuition and educational fees, books, uniforms, and $50.00 per month subsistence allowance. After successfully completing baccalaureate degree requirements and naval training, graduates are commissioned as officers in the U.S. Navy or Marine Corps.

Registrations for the test will close November 18, 1966. 1967 NROTC Bulletins containing eligibility requirements and qualifying test applications are available from Dr. Owen or the U.S. Navy Recruiting Station.
