NSU WELCOMES SANDPIPERS

U-DAYS FINALE SET FOR SATURDAY

THE SANDPIPERS, a fresh and new "folk-rock" group which recently dominated the number one position on record charts across the nation with their recording of "Guantanamera", will appear in concert for the finale of the 1966 University Days at the Nevada Southern gymnasium this Saturday evening, 8:00 p.m.

Admission prices for the program are: $3.00 for reserved seats; $2.25 for general (with plastic I.D. Card); and $2.50 for general (without I.D. Card). Tickets are now on sale at the NSU library, and will also be available at the door Saturday night.

The C.S.N.S. sponsored event is expected to attract an exceptionally large audience. Second Vice-President Randy Frew, chairman of the concert, stated:

"Advanced ticket sales indicate that the concert will be drawing a near capacity crowd. At the moment, however, there are still many fine seats available."

THE SANDPIPERS currently have a Latin rendition of "Louie, Louie" that is fast becoming a big hit. Also rising on popularity polls throughout the nation is their version of the Beatle's hit, "The Things We Said Today."

The four-member group is scheduled to arrive in Las Vegas sometime tomorrow. Their appearance at Nevada Southern will be one of their first college concerts.

As I See It

by Terry Lindberg

The Nevada gubernatorial race will be finished within a week. Your future, your children's future, and your State's future are just a few of the important factors at stake. They are factors encompassed within Nevada Southern University.

I endorse Governor Grant Sawyer. I feel that he cares for the future of Nevada Southern University. He frequents our campus often, and without special invitation.

During this political campaign, Governor Sawyer has spotlighted NSU on several occasions. His actions and his words should speak for Grant Sawyer.

Paul Laxalt's actions and words should also speak for him. Here, in a Laxalt campaign booklet entitled "A New Look For Fifteen Counties", the Mr. Laxalt states:

"... I propose to push for the creation of self-sustaining colleges throughout the state. These colleges, staffed for the most part by local experts, business people and trade specialists, could provide quality education for college credit. They could save the state money, since expensive facilities would not be necessary. They could save our people money, too, making the classroom as accessible as the grocery store or post-office for day and evening study."

"... Reapportionment is with us--like it or not, but I don't think that the small counties will forget who fought their battle and who didn't."

"... All of us are interested in safe and efficient highways in our state. Indeed, we have a system of which we can generally be proud. I don't want to see us place all our stress on major travelled routes, however. The "farm to market" roads in this state are as much our "life-lines" as any other highway, and I plan to support a program of constant improvement and maintenance of that road system. Song Leaders Selected

Robeck Resigns Post

Cal Robeck, head cheerleader and pep commission chairman for the past two years, has resigned completely both posts for the 1966-67 season.

Robeck declined direct comment on his resignation, however, several reliable campus sources told the REBEL YELL that his action seemed to have stemmed from internal conflict with the pep commission.

At this time there has been no replacement appointed for the vacated positions.

Coincidentally, Robeck's resignation came almost immediately after the selection of the five female songleaders had been announced.

Those selected were: Kathy Brookline, junior; Pami Texler, junior; Vicki Wilson, sophomore; Marie Warner, freshman; and Nancy Schroeder, junior. All five girls are members of Nu Sigma Upsilon sorority.

Yet to be announced are the choices for the three male cheerleader positions.

Also remaining unannounced is the selection of the individual who will this year play the "active" role of Beau Wolf, the Rebel Mascot.

SLOAN NAMED P.R. CHAIRMAN

Senior Mike Sloan has been named to fill the post of C.S.N.S. Public Relations Chairman by C.S.N.S. President Jack Abell.

Sloan was formerly the editor of the University of Nevada student newspaper, SAGEBRUSH. He is currently a correspondent for the Las Vegas Review Journal.

Mike, a history major, is beginning his second year on the Las Vegas campus.

Moyer To Speak On Football

Chancellor Donald Moyer is scheduled to speak before the C.S.N.S. Senate tomorrow at 7:00 a.m. concerning the aspects of a football program for Nevada Southern.

Dr. Moyer will discuss all phases of the proposed grid program at the meeting and will be subjected to open questioning by anyone in attendance.

The recent proposal of this addition to an intercollegiate athletic program at NSU has brought much controversy over the issue. Many feel that football would weaken chances for increased financial aid in the fields of scholastic endeavor. Still, others contend that the addition of football will strengthen the financial aid to all relative scholastic fields.

Bill Ruymann, C.S.N.S. 1st vice-president, said that the meeting would be open to all students. "I sincerely urge anyone interested to attend," Ruymann stated.

The meeting will be held in SS 314.

An Editorial

SAWYER MORE THAN A FRIEND TO N.S.U.

The REBEL YELL endorses Grant Sawyer's bid for an unprecedented third term as Governor of the State of Nevada.

In the last eight years, we feel that Governor Sawyer has proven himself to be more than just a friend to Nevada Southern University. He has shown us in many ways that he cares for N.S.U. and its students.

Governor Sawyer has visited our campus often, speaking not only to administrative officials, but also to us, the students. We have seen him at our orientations, our lectures, our basketball games, and our graduations.

The chief executive has been seen numerous times on campus, without expectation--in the library, the gymnasium, and the dining commons. He smiles, introduces himself, and attempts to answer any question which might be asked of him.

Grant Sawyer has openly recognized the need for a more equitable system within the University of Nevada Board of Regents. He realizes the necessity of N.S.U.'s physical autonomy in the University structure.

During the past two months of his busy campaign, the Governor has taken precious time to emphasize the importance of Nevada Southern University to the entire Southern Nevada community. It has been the type of recognition essential to our institution; it has been the type of recognition too often ignored by a majority of the vote seekers.

Last spring Governor Sawyer called a special session of the state legislature which made increased appropriations to meet the additional financial needs of N.S.U. Today, we're a larger and better University because of that special session.

Grant Sawyer has been more than just a friend to Nevada Southern. We feel confident that he will, if re-elected, continue to help us in reaching our goal for perfection in higher education.

Band, here I really go! I've tried to refrain from writing about student political groups, but it has come to my attention that a certain group has made some derogatory remarks about me and my column. So in the words from a famous right-wing book "an eye for an eye".

The Students for Political Action isn't a group, but a sinus condition. They are a bunch of misguided fuzzy-faced fanatics who profess to be advocates of peace, but in actuality are a conglomerate of nothing.

They are intellectuals who are trying to fill the vacuum of mankind. Thus, they are an intellectual vacuum. These demented demonstrators are against everything from the war in Viet Nam to motherhood, from "Ban the Bomb" to Band-aids.

Their physical appearance gives an impression that they are casualties in the "War on Poverty" program. These decadent dressers with their appalling apparel are not a political group as much as they are a rummage sale. They appear as a hobo jungle within a blackboard jungle. A professor who has one of these sickening saviors in his class doesn't know whether to take role or take donations. A SPA demonstration more resembles a bread line.

Those demented souls are planning a day for peace and love called "Hate LBJ Day", or "Down with Mankind Day", even "Abolish Parenthood Day". On this day they will carry signs and sing liberal songs. Of course, they carry signs and sing liberal songs every day.

A typical SPA member has a shaggy beard, wears dirty Levis and old army boots. Those are the female members. Their membership is made up of male, female, and undecided.

These repulsive protesters have burned so many draft cards that they are the only campus group with a trash burning permit -- which is also good for mass suicides. They claim that a draft card is a fire hazard.

I really don't have anything against those perpetual paupers, and intellectual ingrates, but this is my answer to their charge of "Juvenalia" in describing my column. As a matter-of-fact, I also have liberal views, but I write for the sheer enjoyment of my readers -- not a column of intellectual babblings.

A fellow on campus looks mighty weird with shaggy clothes and shaggy beard. I said "you shouldn't act so glum, just because you're a bum".

"I'm not a tramp," said this unfortunate creation, "I'm in a movement sweeping the nation." Dissent is your goal I'm sure, but when you get there, you'll smell like a sewer.

Letters to the EDITOR

Dear Terry,

In the past I have read the Rebel Yell with great admiration for the editor and staff, as I felt the issues at hand were dealt with fairly and were upholding the interests of Nevada Southern.

I was appalled, however, to read the headlines of the Oct. 26 edition of our campus paper. The headlines read as follows: "Stand-Up Guy" Sits Down On Regent Re-Apportionment. It is these headlines that I feel are a transgression on the right of the editor to expound on his own personal beliefs.

It is my contention that you have insulted each and every student of Nevada Southern, regardless of his political views. By this statement I am referring to the mock election held on campus in which Laxalt substantially defeated Gov. Sawyer in the race for governor. It is my belief, which I am sure is held by other students, that since the Rebel Yell is supported by the students, that you have the obligation to uphold the views of the students.

It is at this time that I should point out that I have no argument with what you say in your own column, "As I See It." This is up to your own discretion as it is a right granted to you in the Constitution of The United States under the heading of Freedom of The Press. I further contend that we as students have no objection to this right.

This, however, is not my criticism. As I have previously stated, the headlines and the feature article of the Oct. 26 edition of our paper alluded to the fact that Laxalt, on his stand on Regent Re-Apportionment, was detrimental to us as students of Nevada Southern.

You substantiated your stand with the veivs of Dr. Juanita White who is a Regent for N.S.U. At this time I would like to point out that despite the fact that the election of the Board of Regents is a non-partisan race, Dr. White is in fact by party affiliation a Democrat. It is by this affiliation that I contend would tend to bias her opinion against Laxalt on his stand for Re-Apportionment.

Although my own personal views tend to favor Re-Apportionment, I am not familiar with any poll of our student body that tends to favor Re-Apportionment to which I feel you alluded. It is on this issue that I feel you have violated your right as editor by supporting your own selfish views rather than those of the students which make your publication possible.

It is at this time that I question your right to be editor, and if this right is upheld without further support going to the majority of students that comprise N.S.U., I suggest an alternate publication also supported by the student body to uphold the views of the students, rather than those views held by the editor himself.

Sincerely yours,
Madison Graves II

NOTE TO EDITOR,

I have no intention to offend you personally, but I do feel you have violated your position as editor of the school paper, and would sincerely like to see your answer to my criticism so that those of us who have had faith in

INSIDE THE OUTSIDE

This horse race should have been held in the stable.

The local press has billed the governor's contest between Paul Laxalt and Grant Sawyer as "the race of the century," but any resemblance between that name and the actual contest is purely coincidental.

Race of the century indeed! It looks more like a game of hide and seek with the candidates hiding from the issues and the voters seeking the issues. Any way it goes the issues lose.

The governor's election gives the voters of Nevada a unique choice between a nice stand-up guy who plays nice games, and an incumbent governor who is not necessarily a nice guy and goes around picking fights with people.

Laxalt is a handsome candidate and has avoided the real issues by more or less concentrating on superficial political influences. You know, superficial political influences like family-man images, motherhood and apple pie appeals. One thing though, if he is nailed down on an issue he generally will answer honestly and without doubletalk.

Sawyer is full of straight answers. The trouble is, however, that his straight answers are seldom to questions on issues. His tactic has been to convince the voters that HIS issues are THE issues. So he goes all over the country to pick fights and prove his point.

The classic remark about Nevada's fighting governor was made by the National Observer during the recent governor's conference. The paper duly noted that Sawyer and the governor of Connecticut were the only two to speak out strongly on Viet Nam, but it added, "Who really cares what Grant Sawyer thinks?"

This is Sawyer's problem: He is willing to fight anybody, the FBI, the President, anybody . . . but nobody thinks he is worth fighting.

So how does a poor, unsuspecting, and generally ignorant voter decide?

The typical reaction of a Nevada voter to any gubernatorial speech is, "uh . . . duh, what did that guy say?" It's probably just as well that issues are avoided though, most Nevada voters wouldn't know what was going on if real issues were discussed. You know the old saying: "Simple things amuse simple minds."

Some people put everything into relation to one issue of the campaign, like wiretapping, education, or crime control. This is fine except for the fact that neither candidate will state his views on education and the like clearly. So that method is no good.

Maybe, then, Laxalt's appeal to the emotional character of the Nevada voter is not such a bad thing . . . or Sawyer's artificial issues. Ignorance just might be bliss for Nevada voters on November 8th.

At any rate, I am going to be voting for Laxalt -- the lesser of the two evils. I just wish that a certain REBEL YELL editor and a student body president hadn't put all the eggs in Sawyer's basket. They, as officers were taking sides on behalf of the student body and were not necessarily representing the student views of the mock election particularly.

At any rate, I am going to be voting for Laxalt -- the lesser of two evils candidate. And, just like most other voters on that day, I won't really know why I am voting at all.

STUDIES IN STUDENTS

In regards to the election, also, I regret that student body president Jack Abell has insisted on making the University a political football in Sawyer's hands. He has, time and time again, spoken on behalf of the student body stating their opinion about the candidates. This, I feel, is out-stepping his privileges as a student officer.

The same is true of REBEL YELL editor Terry Lindberg's editorialized banner headline in the last issue and his heavy criticism of Paul Laxalt. It's hardly cricket for persons in the position to influence so directly, to criticize only one side when the other side is just as bad. But then, some people don't think that was editorializing or slanting . . . right Terry?

Ed. Note: You're fired, Crawford!

you in the past may be made aware of why you took such a stand.

Editor Replies

Dear Madison,

Thanks for the letter. -- You really know how to hurt a guy, Madison.

Seriously though, there are a few points which I would like to try to make clear.

Point #1: I'm sorry that I scared you with my headline.

Point #2: I'm also sorry if I have "insulted each and every student of Nevada Southern." (Did you take a poll?)

Point #3: As a fact, Paul Laxalt defeated Grant Sawyer by 29 votes, 212-183, in the mock election. You consider that a substantial defeat; I consider it a narrow victory. It's a relative matter.

Point #4: I, as editor of this publication, would LIKE to uphold the views of the majority of students on this campus. But I do not have an OBLIGATION to uphold any views other than my own.

It would be pretty tough for me to run around and take an opinion poll every time I had something to print. The views, opinions, and attitudes expressed in the REBEL YELL are solely those of the authors. And, as you have so perceptively pointed out, this is a right guaranteed under the United States Constitution. The "Stand-Up Guy" story had my by-line and was never intended to be representative of our 3,000-member student body.

Point #5: I did not, in the feature news story, take a stand on regent re-apportionment. I reported the events correctly and accurately, and the quotes from both Mr. Laxalt and Dr. Juanita White were correct and accurate. I left the reader with the choice of deciding the strengths and weaknesses of regent re-apportionment.

Point #6: It would have been a little rough for me to have found a Republican Regent from Southern Nevada--there aren't any.

Point #7: "The editor of each publication (C.S.N.S.) shall be re-

Land Turtle Disqualified

A land turtle was disqualified on the last day of University Days Queen election by election committee head, Greg Waddlove after the Intercollegiate Knights apparently pulled the wool over the eyes of students and were able to put the name of the turtle, Pam Tuttle, on the Queen election ballot.

A spokesman for the election committee which counted ballots said, "Though the results of the queen election will not be known until the University Days bonfire, we can assure the students that they will not be crowning a turtle at that time."

Other candidates who are vying for the position are sophomore coeds Patricia Allen, Chris Bruno, and Pami Textler, a write-in candidate.

Secretary Seminar To Be Offered

Want to be a better secretary? Get higher pay? Please your boss with your secretarial skill and business know how?

It can be done in just 15 easy lessons, according to Mrs. Beverly Funk, Instructor in Office Administration at Nevada Southern University.

NSU's School of Business will offer a seminar for secretaries, called the "CPS Study Program," starting Nov. 4. Classes will meet Friday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m.

Upon completion of the course, secretaries will be awarded their CPS (Certified Professional Secretary) certificates.

For registration or information call or write Mrs. Beverly Funk at Nevada Southern University.

Philosophy Instructor

Friedman Returns to Nevada

BY MARILYN BEARDSLEE

After having spent more than eight years on the University of California campus at Los Angeles and one at Berkeley, Dr. Joel I. Friedman has joined the teaching faculty at Nevada Southern University as assistant professor of philosophy.

The ten years at UCLA and Berkeley were spent working toward Dr. Friedman's three degrees, a B.A. in philosophy, an M.A. in mathematics, and his Ph.D., which he just received in August. Dr. Friedman also spent six months at Oxford, England, which he recalls as being marvelous. The students at Oxford are given a great deal of freedom, although they are encouraged to use their free time for study purposes.

Dr. Friedman was an honors graduate from UCLA in 1960, and a University Fellow at UCLA from 1964-1966. In 1965, he worked as a Consultant for the Rand Corporation in Santa Monica, California.

He lived in Nevada once before, working on an Atomic Energy project at Mercury. He remembers the bombs that were detonated while he was working on the project as being "quite beautiful, if you don't think of the consequences".

Originally from Hartford, Connecticut, Dr. Friedman and his wife now live in Las Vegas, with their one child, Daniel.

Editors Attend National Press Association Meetings

BY MARY STAFFORD

Miss Lani Trunkey, Editor of the Nevada Southern University yearbook, Epilogue, has recently returned from attending the National Collegiate Press Association Convention in Philadelphia, Pa.

Accompanied by Miss Patty Sepich, assistant editor, the delegates stayed at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, along with 2,000 other college students from all parts of the United States.

During the convention, which lasted from Oct. 20 through Oct. 22, the students attended lectures and classes, some concerning new and different methods in printing, layouts and copywriting, which are conducted by specialists familiar with college publications.

Miss Trunkey, a sophomore student at NSU, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Tiede, 2120 Isabella, Las Vegas.

A 1965 graduate of Rancho High

School, Miss Trunkey attended last year's convention in San Francisco as well.

University Orchestra Begins Season

The University String Chamber Orchestra will make its first appearance of the season when it appears in concert this Sunday, November 6, at 3:00 p.m. in the Social Science Lecture Hall.

William Gromko, the brilliant young conductor, has chosen a most interesting program for the event: Corelli's "Concerto Grosso No. 8" (The Christmas); Mozart's "Eine kleine Nachtmusik"; the "Psalm and Fugue" by Hovhaness; "St. Paul Suite" by Holst and "Ten Short Pieces" by Bartok.

Dr. Chase, chairman of the Nevada Southern Music Committee, has said that he is anxious for more of the students to attend these fine concerts.

BEANIES, BONFIRES, BERETS

It's a beanie, a silly looking beanie. Some of us know why U-Days is special, and though non-academic, it is an important part of Nevada Southern.

Tradition, in whatever form it may come at the present time, is an important part of Nevada Southern. Most freshmen realize this, and submit to the ridiculous looking beanies. Some would not.

You see, it all goes back to the defensiveness of some Nevada Southern students who are tired of hearing charges that N.S.U. is a commuter campus, Tumbleweed Tech, the buildings in the desert.

We want spirit, we want recognition, we want unity, we want to be a total university.

University Days, after four years, is unifying classes at Nevada Southern more than any other event throughout the year. It is making students feel a part of Nevada Southern.

Sure the beanies look silly, sure the shaved heads are embarrassing, sure the water balloons are un-civilized, but they are a part of University Days.

Maybe University Days is the step backwards students take to make two steps forward.

County School Superintendent Mason To Address N.S.U. Teacher Group

Superintendent of Clark County Schools Dr. James L. Mason will speak to the NSU student National Education Association Monday, November 7, at 12:00 noon in SS 116. Mason's topic will center around special educational problems in Clark County and is open to all interested individuals.

Dr. Mason received his formal education and high school education in public schools in the city of Pittsburgh, following which he spent two and one-half years in the Army Air Corps during World War II. He was graduated from Duquesne University with a bachelor of arts degree in secondary education and completed his master's degree at the University of Pittsburgh in the fields of school administration and elementary education. He completed his doctor of education in school administration at the University of Pittsburgh in February, 1957.

Dr. Mason has been an elementary and secondary teacher, elementary principal, elementary administrator, assistant superintendent, superintendent, and is currently superintendent of the Clark County School District.

Dr. Mason has authored two major texts in addition to his doctoral dissertation, and co-authored two other texts with Dr. Maurice J. Thomas of the University of Pittsburgh. In addition, he has written many brochures and monographs and is a major contributor of articles to current educational periodicals. Two of Dr. Mason's works are now utilized as course requirements at the Universities of Pittsburgh and Rutgers, respectively: "Action Public Relations," and "Usage--One Measure of Quality Education."

Dr. Mason has membership in most of the recognized and respected associations, such as the N.Y.S.T.A., N.E.A., A.A.S.A., Phi Delta Kappa, etc.; he has held executive positions in most of these associations.

He has recently lectured as a member of the coadjacent staff at Cornell University in the fields of supervision, curriculum and personnel administration. He has served also as a guest professor at Penn State University and is a former member of the coadjacent staff, Graduate School of Education of the University of Pittsburgh and Rutgers--The State University.

Dr. Mason is a frequent speaker and lecturer on a wide variety of educational topics and averages about fifty major addresses a year. He serves frequently as an educational consultant to school districts and appears at many conventions and conferences in the role of speaker, panelist, discussion leader and consultant.

He has served as an educational consultant to RCA; advising on educational matters and speaking in the areas of the teaching

Haddad Named Physics Counselor For Nevada

Douglas J. Haddad, instructor of physics at Nevada Southern University, Las Vegas, Nevada, has been named Associate Regional Counselor for the state of Nevada by the American Association of Physics Teachers and the American Institute of Physics.

In this new post, he will assist Professor David P. Marsh of the University of Nevada in Reno, who has been Regional Counselor since 1964. They will work actively with educational authorities in Nevada to improve the quality of high school physics teaching in the state. Mr. Haddad will take care of the southern part of the state.

Announcement of his appointment was made today by Professor Melba Phillips, of the Physics Department of the University of Chicago, Illinois, President of the American Association of Physics Teachers, and Dr. Ralph Sawyer, Acting Director of the American Institute of Physics.

Douglas J. Haddad was selected for his competence in physics, interest in improving physics teaching, and ability to work effectively in Nevada to reach this objective.

Mr. Haddad received the B.S. degree in physics from the University of New Hampshire and the M.S. also in physics from the University of Massachusetts.

He has been an engineer with Avco Corp. in Wilmington, Mass., and an engineer with the Raytheon Co., Andover, Mass. He is presently an instructor in physics at Nevada Southern University, Las Vegas, Nevada.

Mr. Haddad is a member of the American Association of Physics Teachers and of the American Association of University Professors. His fields of current research are elementary particles and teaching methods.

"Outstanding Young Educator" Joins Staff

BY JANET JAMES

Mrs. Patricia Ann Gueder, winner of the 1966 award as "Outstanding Young Educator in Nevada", has joined the Humanities Division of Nevada Southern University. Mrs. Gueder, instructor in first year English and composition, although premiering as a university teacher, is not a new instructor to Clark County.

As a composition teacher at Basic High School since 1957, she was given the national Outstanding Young Educator award based on personal teaching performance, background in education, and on application. She was named an outstanding young educator on the local level before receiving the state title.

Mrs. Gueder received her Bachelor of Arts Degree in 1954 from the State College of Iowa. Following her graduation, she taught language arts courses in elementary and junior high schools of Iowa and Nebraska, after which time she began teaching, in 1957, in the Clark County school system.

While teaching at Basic High School, Mrs. Gueder returned to school at the University of Nevada where she earned her Master of Education degree in 1964. Although part of her graduate work

In the fall of 1964, Mrs. Gueder taught at NSU as a part-time instructor. She taught English A, a noncredit preparatory course for students taking first year English and composition.

Mrs. Gueder declared two hobbies, reading and swimming, says she also enjoys landscape gardening. She is interested in experimentation with various new kinds of seeds, fertilizers, and all gardening essentials, and has taken a large part in the development and maintenance of the landscaping of her own home in Henderson.

Service League Unloads $8,000 Gift to Library

Checks totaling over $8600.00 have been received within the last two weeks by the NSU Library from donations on behalf of the Las Vegas women's Service League.

Mr. Harold Erickson, Library Director, in a letter to the President of the Service League, Mrs. Ernest Haupt, stated:

"It is a humbling experience to attempt to express a part of Nevada Southern University's appreciation to the Service League for their checks totaling over eight thousand, six hundred dollars for the book fund and the hours of service on the part of its membership.

"Really a touching part for anyone at the university is the realization that it represents the faith all of you have in the future of Nevada Southern.

"We at the library want those who follow us as students and faculty to share the pride we have in the Service League. All of the volumes added will bear a plate designating them as Service League gifts.

"Please convey to the Service League membership our sincere appreciation from the library staff for that which you are doing for Nevada Southern.

"You really make us feel that the Las Vegas community shares our hopes for its university."

DEMOCRAT

Grant Sawyer knows the needs of education in Nevada. He has fought to provide our young people with the best educational system possible . . . and he has delivered.

Consider Nevada Southern University —

- ★ EXPANSION FROM A TWO-YEAR COLLEGE TO A FOUR-YEAR, FULLY-ACCREDITED UNIVERSITY.
- ★ ENROLLMENT UP FROM 880 TO MORE THAN 3,000, A 250% INCREASE.
- ★ PROFESSORS' SALARIES UP AN AVERAGE 42%.
- ★ EIGHT NEW BUILDINGS CONSTRUCTED OR AUTHORIZED.

And in 1966 Governor Sawyer called a special session of the state legislature to meet the needs of NSU and public education in Nevada. He led the successful fight for increased aid to education while others, who give only lip-service to educational programs, kept silent.

We support Grant Sawyer for Governor. He fights for education.

BERETS AVENGE KIDNAPPING; SCALP FROSH CLASS OFFICERS

A small group of upperclassmen, all members of the elite, trained-to-kill beanie patrol squad, last week avenged recent kidnapping of their fellow "Beret", Bill Cunningham, by shaving the head of three Freshman class officers. A fourth officer, Frosh Senator Ridge Frew, shrewdly escaped the shearing when he caught infectious mononucleosis and was forced into hospitalization.

Victims of the razors were

A spokesman for the "Berets", Ron Wielochowski told the REBEL YELL that "examples" were made of Riordan, Quinlan, and Dunn. He said that last week a large group of Freshmen managed to gang up and kidnap Bill Cunningham, a "Beret" comrad.

"This was just a mild warning to all Freshmen," Wielochowski remarked. "I hate to even think about what we're going to do to 'em the next time they try to get out-of-hand."

Hairless Mark Dunn said, however, that he wasn't worrying about the upperclassmen's "idle threats". He stated that it would "take more than haircuts to enable the upperclassmen a victory in the University Days competition."

REBELS 'SHOOTING FOR PLAYOFFS'

"We're shooting for the playoffs," says coach Rolland Todd about his aspirations for his second team at NSU.

"We play all the right teams, we have a strong schedule, and we will have a better team than last year," Todd continued in support of his hope to have the second NSU team to make it to the NCAA college division regional in this school's history.

His aspirations ride on a small group of returning lettermen, four junior college transfers and other newcomers.

"But the newcomers will have to beat out the lettermen for the starting spots," he indicated.

Heading the returning lettermen is 6-foot-4 forward Clyde Dawson, NSU's second-best scorer and rebounder last year. Others back from last year's 15-11 team are:

Guards Charlie Payton, 6-0; Dixon Goodwin, 6-0; and Chuck Campione, 6-1; along with burly 6-5 Ed Twrwilliger.

Todd cited Jerry Chandler of Bloomington, Ind., as his top junior college transfer. The 6-4 former Air Force All-Star player (1960) was the Most Valuable Player in the Golden Gate Conference last year when he played for San Francisco City College. He averaged 26 points per game there.

Victor Morton of Newark, N. J., was an all-league player at Imperial Valley College, Calif., last year, and is this year's tallest man at 6-6.

Elburt Miller, who averaged 23.5 points per game at San Diego City College last year, was his league's Most Valuable Player last season as well.

Ron Carter, the only other JC transfer, Porterville College, Calif., was second leading scorer. The 6-foot-2-footer has leaped 6-5 in the high jump as well as averaging 17 points per game last year.

NSU made it to the regional playoffs for the first time in the school's history in 1965, under the direction of coach Ed Gregory.

Glances From Behind The Bench

By Tom Martin

The continuing debate over the values that college sports give to universities and athletes has come into sharper focus during the past decade. The incidence of scandals -- fixing or otherwise -- at major colleges is practically unheard of. Possibly once a year a single scandal at a single university reaches the attention of the public. This, when compared to the wild and wooly era of the late 1940's and the late 1950's, is mild. Fixing scandals were so frequent and so highly publicized that congress passed a bill making it a federal offense. Since then, fixes in college have either become skillfully handled underground, or have been stopped.

Last year, for example, Seattle University basketball was rocked by a scandal. This year one is being investigated in Louisiana State University football. Compare this with a wholesale scandal in the early 1950's that involved about half the teams in Southeastern Conference. It was in this era that Wally Butts of Georgia sued Post Magazine about an article which accused him of fixing football games. Chief subjects of controversy these days lie in the realm of granting scholarships and coaching techniques. One can conclude that this has made college sports more competitive than ever.

Out of all this scandal-mongering has emerged the idea of "responsible" football -- a subject which will concern Nevada Southern as this school moves toward a grid program. Schools which are examples of responsible football are Stanford, Syracuse (N. Y.), Notre Dame, Utah State, any school in the Ivy League, and the three military academies.

These schools, as opposed universities like Alabama, Ohio State, USC and other football powers, have good, competitive football teams that do not detract from their academic programs. So-called "athletic scholarships" are not granted at these schools. Students must be good enough to enter these schools. Students must be good enough to enter these schools on solely academic grounds. If a person is a good football player, that's Stanford, then, will not consistently have as good a football team as Alabama or Michigan State, but better students graduate from the "Harvard of the West," than from the home of the Crimson Tide or the Mighty Spartans.

This is the sort of football NSU officials want for this school. Certainly it will not produce unbeaten teams year after year, but it will add to the entire stature and reputation of this desert campus.

Speaking of football, the University of Nevada, Northern Division, has one of the better small college teams in the nation this year. Despite a 27-0 beating from Far West Conference powerhouse San Francisco State, the Wolf Pack (5-1) still has an excellent chance at the league title. When basketball season comes, this Fearless Scribe hopes Nevada loses EVERY SINGLE GAME, but during that part of the year devoted to sitting frozen in campus grandstands, ol' FS hopes the Wolf Pack wins 'em all, two to nothing if necessary, fine too, because the coach will know the boy can make it into college even before he is actively recruited as an athlete.

Phil's Chevron, ATO Nab Leads In Flag Football

Phil's Chevron and Alpha Tau Omega appear to be the strongest teams in Nevada Southern flag football play, as action enters its third week.

ATO tops the Inter-Fraternity League with a 2-0 mark, while Phil's Chevron showed its power with a 58-0 thumping of the Independents in a recent game.

ATO tangles with the Intercollegiate Knights in the only frat league game this week on Sunday, while Phil's Chevron takes on the Raiders Monday.

NSU to Host Four-Way Meet

Nevada Southern's cross-country team, nearing the end of a long season, hosts three southwest colleges on the campus course Saturday.

Cal State at Fullerton, University of California at Riverside and Northern Arizona University (Flagstaff) will compete with the Rebel runners.

NSU hosted University of California at Santa Barbara last week.

Jim Whipple won his first race of the year in a meet with Asuza-Pacific College and Chapman College two weeks ago. Gary Halko also finished in the top ten, even though NSU was second in the meet.

Asuza-Pacific was first and Chapman College third.

Laxalt Backed NSU-School Finance Bills

Lt. Governor Paul Laxalt has twice broken serious legislative logjams which endangered funds for education.

During the 1963 session of the Nevada State Legislature, Laxalt took the unprecedented step of leaving his seat as presiding officer of the Senate to go before the Senate Finance Committee and appeal for the special revenue bond issue of more than $800,000 to build a dormitory and dining facility at the Nevada Southern University campus.

Laxalt's action came after NSU students had hanged Governor Grant Sawyer and another legislator in effigy on the NSU campus.

The Nevada Daily Appeal and the Reno Newspapers credited Laxalt's action with helping to "jolt out of committee the NSU fund bill."

Earlier, Senator Wilson McGowan had predicted that the bill would die in committee.

Once again, in the 1964 special session of the legislature, Laxalt was credited with breaking the impasse on the vital appropriations bill for Nevada schools. Laxalt called the meeting of top senators and assemblymen to resolve the question of additional aid for schools.

The Nevada State Journal (Reno) said, "brinkmanship artist Paul Laxalt forced all cards onto the table to end the poker game between the two houses."

The Journal later credited Laxalt with getting both parties together and negotiating "a graceful agreement."
