HUNTLEY HERE SATURDAY

NBC NEWS ACE TO KICK OFF LECTURE SERIES

Chet Huntley, world famous NBC news ace, is scheduled to kick off the first of a series of C.S.N.S. sponsored lectures this Saturday at 4:00 p.m. in the NSU gymnasium. His topic will be "Broadcast Journalism".

Huntley's career began in broadcast journalism in 1934 when he was hired by a Seattle newspaper and shortly found himself reporting the news on the paper's radio station. Like many early radio staffers, the young Huntley did more jobs than one, even sweeping up the studio on occasion. During the next five years, he worked for radio stations in Spokane and Portland, then joined CBS in 1939.

For the next 12 years, he covered top news stories in the western United States, including the founding of the United Nations in San Francisco in 1945. In 1951 he moved to ABC and covered stories in Asia and the Middle East. In 1955 he joined NBC News and within a year found himself teamed up with a young Washington correspondent named David Brinkley.

Together they anchored the national political conventions in 1956 and the election that November. The team blossomed as a result of wide praise from television critics and audiences, and the ratings reflected their nationwide popularity. They also anchored NBC News' 1960 and 1964 conventions and elections coverage and individually hosted many NBC News Specials.

Ever talk to a brick wall?

Jack Abell (C.S.N.S. President), Randy Frew (2nd Vice President), and I talked to something similar last Friday when we attended a luncheon at the request of the University of Nevada Board of Regents.

At our table were seated regents Molly Magee, Archie Grant, and Fred Anderson. Also at the table was the President of the University of Nevada, Dr. Charles Armstrong. The remainder of the regents were divided between the other two tables.

We learned much at the luncheon. For instance, we discovered that: (1) the regents have nothing to do with chopping Nevada Southern's budget--it's entirely the fault of the State legislature; (2) the regents had nothing to do with the dormitory fiasco--that was entirely the fault of the State purchasing office; (3) the regents have nothing to do with the miserable salary received by our faculty--after all, they have the same problem in Reno.

It seems that the regents have very little to do.

We also learned from Fred Anderson, chairman of the Board, that our criticisms concerning NSU's fiscal appropriations are unfounded. Anderson went on to cite percentage figures which clearly showed that Nevada Southern, as

Final Date for Yearbook Pics

Lani Trunkey, Epilogue Editor, yesterday announced that the absolute final date for having senior pictures taken will be Wednesday, December 14, in Social Science 305 from 8:00 to 11:00 a.m., and 1:00 to 3:00 p.m.

SHADES OF LOVELACE -- NSU students left this gentle reminder to University of Nevada Board of Regents members who Saturday laid the cornerstone to the still unfinished dormitory structure.

NSU Theatrical First

"THE SWINGERS" TO OPEN SUNDAY

Tradition may be set beginning December 11th, when Nevada Southern student Richard Volpe's award winning play The Swingers will be produced in the Nevada Southern Little Theatre for the first time anywhere.

The production of a student-written, student-produced play is hoped to become an annual event on the campus.

The Swingers originally began as a project in a playwriting class conducted by Dr. Jerry Crawford. Later the play was published in the campus art and literary magazine, Matrix, and gained further attention when it was awarded second place in a national playwriting contest conducted by the Samuel French Company.

Directed by Bob Burgan, who previously directed Nevada Southern's first Children's Theatre production in the spring of 1966, the play will be produced on Sunday, December 11 at 3 p.m. and 8 p.m., and again December 16 at 8 p.m. Following the initial performance at 3 p.m. Sunday, there will be a critique of the play by Dean Jerry Crawford.

The play is sponsored by the Students for Political Action in conjunction with the Drama Department. The cast will include Cherine, played by Miss Jonnie Karras; Bobbie, played by Miss Sherri Stiles; Marion, played by Harry Hambley; and Walter, played by Dick Coleman.

As a one act play, less than an hour in length, Volpe's production is set in present day Las Vegas, and is considered thematically to be a balance between the serious and the comic.

Advance ticket sales begin Tuesday, December 6 from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. in the Library. Tickets cost $1.00.

Regents Okay Grid Proposal

The University of Nevada Board of Regents, meeting in Las Vegas last weekend, approved Nevada Southern's proposal to initiate an intercollegiate football program within the coming year.

The program, as approved, entails the appointment of a head coach in 1967, who will be assigned a Department of Physical Education teaching load. During this year, the head football coach will develop player recruiting. He will also make equipment purchases and will organize the 1968-69 team.

The proposal must now be forwarded to the State legislature where a total of $30,000 will be requested as a partial supplement for the initiation of the program.

Boob on the Brink

by Larry Clark

Did I read right or are my eyes deceiving me? Nevada Southern may actually have a football team in 1968. Ha! Ha!

The Board of Regents may ask the legislature for $30,000 to get the team on the road and another $30,000 to buy coffins. The way expenses are running today, sixty thousand dollars is just enough to hire a third rate coach and buy some second hand shoulder pads. We could cut expenses by employing a coach under the "Hire the Handicapped" program. At the salary the school could afford to pay him, he wouldn't even have to know how to play the game.

With such a small salary the coach would have to supplement his income with little money making schemes such as begging, receiving welfare, stealing, or even selling his children.

Of course, the school could hire somebody whose mode of life would fit such a pitiful pittance. Not only couldn't he have a family, but he must also dislike food. This proposed coach should like the outdoors, because that's the only place that his salary would permit him to live. The Regents could show their generosity by sending him CARE packages which contained such goodies as table scraps from the dining commons, or booklets entitled "Survival in the Outdoors", or "Beginning Football."

The most important qualification for this job is that the new football coach must be able to give thrilling half-time speeches and look like Pat O'brian. He will tell the alumni that the team will look like Notre Dame; he will mean that the team will have eleven men, a football, and a head cheerleader that looks like

With such a desecrated budget the team couldn't carry out many normal functions that modern football requires. Many schools achieve notoriety by having scandals. We would be limited at best. Imagine the headlines: "Water Boy Bribe."

The budget would also limit the recruiting of high school stars. While other schools offer these stars expensive automobiles and beautiful women, all NSU could offer is some free bus transfers and a few old back issues of Playboy.

Students of Nevada Southern:

Are you missing the point about the library? It is not a high school study hall where you are supposed to spend some time studying. It is the only place on the campus that is set aside for research and for digesting those two hour reserve books.

We don't care, if you play a quiet game of chess (until we are cramped for seating room at least). On the other hand, arguing a knotty problem in education or trying to get a difficult math concept straight in some one's mind can get noisy enough to break the train of thought of twenty or thirty people.

It is not the joke or the juicy tidbit we object to, but the fact that laughter has a rather explosive and penetrating quality.

The jackhammers and cement mixers are noisy, but having lived with it for six months we know it is the kind which can be ignored, but the steady buzz of conversation with an occasional loud outburst is more disturbing. Don't try to shout out the construction noise, do your talking elsewhere.

I will continue to believe until proven wrong that this student body is made up of a bunch of good, fair minded people, a little thoughtless at times perhaps, but still as interested as their faculty are in this becoming a university with a reputation for turning out students who have learned something during their college years.

Don't let us down.

REBELLION

by Chuck Crawford

With a couple more blinks of the eye our library addition will be finished and ready for business. Business? Did I say business?

Baby, you ain't seen nothin' yet, if you think we got troubles finding books now! I'm sure it will never be more apparent just how short of books we are until we see them spread out over three floors. What's more, wait until we see the library staff spread out over three floors!

I've got a question. How come nobody ever hears of money for books being donated to our library? Hardly ever do you find groups on campus on book drives. Sigma Gamma has been on one drive for books, isn't it about time some other groups went on a drive for books or money for books. It seems like a good project for our only service fraternity, the I.K.'s, or service-minded social fraternities or sororities--or even a joint project through the Inter-Fraternity Council to consider.

I WAS SHAKEN UP a little when I heard a rumor the other day that we have been in danger of losing some of our college accreditation because there aren't enough volumes in the library. True or not, it seems that the hard-won addition to the library could be put to better use than a make shift-student discussion building.

RANDOM RAMBLES

Speaking of fees, (and not to be making value judgments of the new proposals which the fees apply to) it is a costly thing to be a pioneer student at Nevada Southern.

Take for instance the increase in our fees this year by $42 because we have to have new buildings built. This fee is a permanent fee, I suppose, because we will always be needing new buildings.

Then there is the $27 fee which will be assessed for the student union building once it is in operation.

This is so that it can be paid off. Then there is the new football fee which is estimated to be $5 per student. Football is a nice thing--but I thought someone said that we couldn't lose anything by trying it, since it won't cost the university anything. It won't, just the students. I'm not sure most of the students knew about the additional increase in their fees.

This is probably why some members of the student senate didn't want to give their nod to the proposal without hearing directly from the students. However, there is no sense in feeling guilty about taking this responsibility--if the $27 assessment for the Union didn't make you guilty.

Now, I'm not saying that any of the increases are not good. Not at all. Personally, I favor every one of them. But I'm not too sure students were made completely aware of the over-all situation before these things were approved--supposedly with the students' approval. I don't know if there should be anyone blamed, or whether there is even a crime. All I know is that it's going to cost just under $200 a semester for state students to attend this University. For out-of-state dorm residents, it's going to cost just under $1,800 a year. All I've got to say is that there are probably going to be a lot of vacant rooms in our dormitory--and--maybe a lot more students who are going part time so they can work to pay for the ransom it's going to take to get into Nevada Southern. Maybe, too, there are some students who would have favored an increase in activity fees to keep the faculty -- (which has threatened to leave in January if they don't get salary increases.) It's tough to be a pioneer.

compared with four years ago, is today receiving at least 200 percent more help in areas such as capital improvement, than does the Reno campus.

Besides attempting to dazzle us with worthless statistics, Anderson chortled at the suggestion of a physically autonomous Las Vegas campus. "The University has a very capable engineer in Ed Pine . . . a telephone call to Reno is only three minutes away."

These were the sort of answers we received to each of our many inquiries -- understanding, informative, straight answers which we appreciated very much.

Thanks, regents.

In addition to the many awards won by the "Huntley-Brinkley Report," Chet Huntley has received numerous honors for his individual reporting. Among these are a 1956 Alfred I. DuPont award as "commentator of the year," an award from the Overseas Press Club in 1959 for "best radio/television interpretation of foreign affairs" and the University of Missouri's Honor Medal in 1960. In 1962 he was awarded an honorary degree by Boston University "for enlightening a vast public on the important events and questions of our time."

COULD HAVE FOOLED ME

WHAT SEX REVOLUTION?

Tough luck, men. Despite what you may have heard (or hoped!), there's NO sexual revolution going on. That's the word from David Newman and Robert Benton, Mademoiselle magazine columnists, after reading more than 4,000 letters from young women across the country. Their collective cry seems to be, "Keep your hands to yourself, Herb!"

Benton and Newman's questions ranged from straight facts "How old are you?" "How much education have you had?" to such teasers as "How do you generally meet your men?" and "What are the big problems that you keep having with men?" For many girls, the questionnaire served as a kind of "analyst's couch" and in numerous instances a girl wound up thanking Benton and Newman for the opportunity to get her problems off her chest.

A little over half who replied were under 20; most of the rest between 20 and 25. Most were either students or had been at one stage or another. Fully 75 per cent thought they "could afford to lose ten pounds." The group was overwhelmingly single, although there were replies from a few hundred married ladies, at least half of whom wished they weren't.

At every turn, the girls complained about their boyfriends' over-interest in sex. The overwhelming consensus was that there is still an enormous gulf between young American women and men about simple biology. Benton and Newman comment, "Honestly, this was a revelation. We have all been hearing about the new sexual freedom sweeping America, about the new laxity of morals, about the swinging youth, et cetera. Well, we've just found out that it's baloney."

A big surprise answer came to the question "How do you generally meet your men?" A sizable number replied, "I meet them through pickups." Apparently the pickup has acquired a veneer of acceptability. Many coeds thought it was OK to pick up fellows at college hangouts; secretaries thought it neat to strike up conversations at bars. City girls flock to art museums "for the cultured pickup." Californians nod a friendly hello to the cute boy in the sports car at the stoplight.

Benton and Newman gave the ladies a chance to dish out their own advice, too. About half recommend "Be yourself." Many other added either "play it cool," "beware," or "stay feminine." Some had no advice; others gave thoughtful, serious consideration to their answers. One said, "Keep things as simple as possible. Be shortsighted, work out a day at a time. Think simple. Think soft."

Another wrote, "It's not fair to expect him to be a gentleman if you are not a lady." (!) Perhaps one of the wisest (and unfortunately not always heeded) bits of advice was, "Choose a husband with care. He's NOT going to change."

"Cool it Cherry baby- the old lady will be back in 10 minutes." Harry Hambley and Jonnie Karras rehearse scene from all student production, "The Swingers", to be presented this Sunday at 3:00 and 8:00 p.m. in the NSU Little Theatre.

NOT ENOUGH MONEY SAY BUSINESSES

Tight money markets and high interest rates will be two of the problems tackled in a month-long seminar for businessmen at Nevada Southern University.

The seminar, "Current Problems in Financing of Small Business," begins January 3 and runs for six sessions through February 7. Meetings are 7:30 through 10 p.m. in Grant Hall 129 on Tuesdays.

"In this seminar we hope to provide information and suggestions enabling the resourceful business manager to utilize techniques of financing he may not have considered previously," commented seminar coordinator Robert C. Rieke, chairman of NSU's Department of General Business.

The seminar is being sponsored by the U.S. Small Business Administration, the Las Vegas Chamber of Commerce, and Nevada Southern University.

Seminar speakers will include Peter Hopkins and Gene McCoy, Assistant Vice Presidents, First National Bank, Las Vegas; Edward J. Eckert, President, Talcott Western, Los Angeles; Edward E. Nelson, District Manager, Allied Concord Financial Corp.; Mel Whipple of Singleton, DeLanoy, and Jemison.

Forensic Club Elects Officers

The newly formed Nevada Southern Forensics Association recently elected their charter officers. James Kelly was elected Chairman and Richard King was elected Secretary-Treasurer. Mr. Al Weitzel, speech instructor, is acting as faculty advisor.

The formation of Nevada Southern's first debate and competitive speaking club is considered to be a welcomed addition to university activities. The club has already received several invitations to participate in debate and speech contests in surrounding areas.

Membership in the Association is open to all students and faculty members who are interested in learning about and participating in competitive speech activities.

REBS SET FOR HOME OPENER

Glances From Behind The Bench

By Tom Martin

This is a bedtime story. Like most bedtime stories-it starts out like this:

Once upon a time Nevada Southern (which could not be called a "University" then the Board of Regents said) had a basketball team coached by Michael (Chub) Drakulich. Together they had quite an adventure--and it was quite a team, too. As a matter of fact it was the best NSU will ever have for some time. Before this story is told, however, let's look at some of the important characters in that season of 1962 through 1963.

The main character here is Silas (Big Sy) Stepp, who was a freshman then. He was an easy-going 6-foot-5 Negro whose accent did not betray the fact that he came from Louisiana. He was a nice guy, too. This Fearless Scribe once hitched rides to school with NSU's first super star.

Next comes a 6-4 skin-and-bones fellow by the name of Gary Tapper, who looked too fragile to play anything. Then there was Jerry Dick, a husky 6-foot-2 lad who got cheers from the ladies when he warmed up. After him came a little fellow by the name of Dave Shay, a 5-10 guard who had electricity in his fingers and the devil in his defense. Chet Hildebrandt could have become the finest guard in NSU history, but the extremely well-coordinated 6-2 sharpshooter had trouble staying in school.

Also on this list was Don Helm, a big 6-4 married man who had played at NSU before going into the service two years before being on the Once Upon a Time Team. Arlyn Hafen, another married man, was a 5-10 guard who was a movie extra during one summer of college.

This was also the last year Drakulich was basketball coach. At the beginning of the season the schedule did not look too rough. NSU played five military teams that year, along with 19 college games. All of the Rebels' home games then were in the tiny campus gym, which gave NSU a 10 to 15 point home court advantage in some cases.

Here is what happened in that year:

--NSU beat the University of Nevada twice, 62-50 and 64-54.

--The Rebels played the only double overtime game in the school's history. Los Angeles State was the victim, 103-96.

--It was the only year that NSU beat Northern Arizona at Flagstaff. The Rebels won there, 85-73, only to have Grand Canyon College of Phoenix, Ariz., beat them the next night, 79-64.

--It was also the only year in which NSU had two eight-game winning streaks, which tied a record that has not been broken yet.

--That team holds the best record in the school's history, 21-4. The other losses came from Los Angeles State there, 104-72; Whittier College in the Holiday Classic, 72-68; and Cal Western in San Diego, 83-79.

--It was also the first of four consecutive years that Stepp led in scoring. As a freshman he averaged 17.9 points a game and set a new point record of 447 points.

Some of those things won't happen again for a long time.

Those names came alive again a couple of weeks ago, when members of the Once Upon a Time Team plus a few other alumnus ganged up on this year's varsity.

And it was just like old times again, since the alumni won, 78-72. It was just like a fairy tale.

CAGERS TRY N.A.U. SAT.

After near-disaster in Irvine, Calif., and catastrophe in Pocatello, Ida., Nevada Southern's basketball team will see if it can change its luck in Las Vegas Saturday.

That's when the Rebel basketballers take on Northern Arizona University (Flagstaff) at the Las Vegas Convention Center.

The Rebels won a double overtime game against University of California at Irvine, 75-65, to open their season, then took a 109-89 thumping from Idaho State University in Pocatello.

Northern Arizona comes into Saturday's game with a 1-1 record. The Lumberjacks also play as an independent, but in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Bob Love, now a junior, leads the Axers, who are now 6-6 in their series with the Rebels. Even though the Lumberjacks have lost two starters, Love, who started as a freshman and a sophomore, has always done well for the Flagstaff crew.

Elburt Miller, 6-6 center for NSU, has been the surprise of the season for coach Rolland Todd's aggregation. He started the season with 34 points against Irvine, then tallied 27 against Idaho State.

Jerry Chandler, Clyde Dawson and Victor Morton have all been in double figures for both games. Charlie Payton also hit above 10 points against Idaho State.

Other players who will see much action Saturday against NAU are guard Dixon Goodwin and forward-center Ed Terwilliger.

Monday (Dec. 12) the Rebels host Adams State College of Alamosa, Colo., another NAIA power. Dec. 16-17 The Rebels travel to Cedar City, Utah, for the College of Southern Utah Tournament, which also includes Westminster, Utah (Salt Lake City), Southern California College, NSU and CSU.

Junior Varsity to Host College of Eastern Utah

Nevada Southern's junior varsity squad hosts the College of Eastern Utah (price) Saturday night in their third game of the young season as a preliminary to the NSU-Northern Arizona game.

Game time is 6 p.m. at the Las Vegas Convention Center.

The Cubs lost their opener to Leavitt Insurance of the Las Vegas City League, 89-77, then travelled to Dixie College in St. George, Utah, Tuesday.

The Cubs will host Eastern Utah again Dec. 12, as a preliminary to the NSU-Adams State clash in the Convention Center before taking a rest.
