Vol. 13, No. 19

LAS VEGAS, NEVADA

Talent Show Tonight

For the fourth consecutive year Nevada Southern will demonstrate its talent tonight in a variety show featuring 16 acts.

The Talent Show, free to everyone, will begin at 8 p.m. in the gymnasium. Competition in five categories will be evaluated by CSNS-selected judges, under the direction of Joe Lendini, second vice president.

Following the show a dance with live music by The Free Circus is scheduled in the Dining Commons. There will be no admission charges, Lendini said.

The five categories of competition are individual, group, organization, sorority and fraternity.

Participating in the individual division are Miss Jerri Shilling, dancer, "Thoroughly Modern Millie"; Miss Pam Phillips, modern interpretive dancer; Miss Judi Glantz, singer, a medley of folk songs; and Dave Williams, singer, "Love is Blue" and "Sound of Music."

Appearing in the fraternity category are Kappa Sigma, Intercollegiate Knights, Chi Sigma Chi and Delta Sigma Phi (Dantes Ltd.).

All three sororities, Alpha

Delta Pi, Delta Zeta and Phi Mu, are entered in that section.

NSU's precision dance organization will perform "Coming Through the Rye" under direction of Miss Judy Fleishman.

Competing in the group division are the Tudera Sisters, singing-dancing; Jim and Christine Pomeroy, folk songs; and Miss Jane Twers and Miss Kim Olsen, folk songs.

The Tudera Sisters, who will be making their third appearance in an NSU talent show have recently signed a contract and will open at The Mint on April 29.

Spring Festival Approaching

Nevada Southern University will become a showcase for the Arts during the week of March 31 - April 7, according to President Donald C. Moyer. The week-long festival will be highlighted by performances of the Utah Symphony Orchestra and Miss Agnes Moorehead.

The first annual Festival will feature numerous dramatic presentations, musical performances, numerous displays of contemporary visual arts, poetry reading, discussions and demonstrations of experimental film making, Children's Theatre productions, a psychedelic light show, a program of dance, and debate.

A high school talent day will be an integral part of the Festival. Prizes will be awarded for student competition in music, art, drama and forensics. NSU will also be co-hosting the Clark County Science and Engineering Fair as part of this Festival.

Leon Volkov, Soviet Affairs Editor for "Newsweek" magazine, will be the featured speaker of the CSNS Lecture Series, appearing on April 5.

The world-renown Utah Symphony will be giving two concerts on March 31. One will be an hour Youth Concert mainly developed for students of junior and senior high schools. The other will be a full evening concert. Tickets for both performances will be sold during the week of March 24.

Emmy award winner for her role as Endora on ABC's "Bewitched," Miss Agnes Moorehead will present a program of dramatic monologues and a discussion of great performers and acting techniques on April 7.

NSU, the Nevada State Council on the Arts, and the Confederated Students of Nevada Southern, are sponsoring this major cultural event for all residents of Southern Nevada.

"This will be a significant cultural event," President Moyer stated. He estimated the Festival will draw more than 25,000 guests to the campus.

The next edition of the R-Y will carry a complete calendar of times and places for the Festival.

'Earnest' Prepares To Open April 1

The NSU Readers' Theatre will present Oscar Wilde's The Importance of Being Earnest April 1 and 2 in the Little Theatre. The curtain for this famous farce will be at 8:30 p.m. sharp.

The cast includes Larry Lambeth, Ed Borasky, Ray Wolever, Jo Denton, Becki Glantz, Judy Walling, and Judy Hanlen.

The Importance of Being Earnest is part of the NSU Spring Festival. "We hope that many Southern Nevadans will see our comedy," stated Dr. Paul Harris, Director of the Readers' Theatre production.

Tickets Available Now for 'Three Sisters'

Tickets are now on sale for Anton Chekov's Three Sisters which will be staged seven nights in NSU's Little Theatre under direction of Dr. Jerry Crawford.

Performances are slated for March 28, 29, 30, and April 3, 4, 5, and 6, all at 8:30 p.m. curtain time.

According to Dr. Crawford, the play relates the "poignant, yet at times, amusing" story of three sisters living in provinces of Russia who long to go to Moscow. It is an account of their futile, frustrating attempts to make the move there.

Seating will be limited to 110 people per performance, and reservations are available through the University switchboard. Tickets are on sale at the University Bookstore and in front of the library. Admission is $1.00 for students and $1.50 for all others.

Starring as the three sisters are Mrs. Joan Snyder, Miss Toby Artman, and Miss Carolyn Barsanti.

Election Results In

Two countings of ballots cast for the Student Union Board candidates revealed the five board members as Terry Lindberg, Ed Terwilliger, Joe Lupo, Connie Bonaffini, and Greg Waddilove.

The students assumed their positions the next day, March 20, in a meeting with President Moyer. This was the first official act of the group as a viable force.

The board is not yet complete, however. The Faculty Senate must make two faculty appointments and President Moyer must make one, of his choosing. Also appointive student positions to be filled by the chairman are now open. Total membership will then add up to twelve members, representing many levels of our university.

According to legislation previously passed by a joint session of the Executive Committee and the Senate of CSNS, the new Union Board will handle all decision-making regarding union policy. Actually the board has been given a relatively free reign, necessary for effective running of such a union.

Elections were directed by Miss Rona Shore, with balloting held last Monday and Tuesday. Appointments are expected to be made within the near future.

Dr. Moyer, Students Clash Over Student Union Board

By VICKIE JOLLEY

President Donald C. Moyer pled for "flexibility and compromise" at a meeting with student government officers and the newly elected Campus Student Union Board last Wednesday while seeking two revisions in the organization of that Board.

Under CSNS by-laws the Board will be comprised of five elected student members, three students appointed by the chairman with approval of the Board, the CSNS second vice-president, Faculty Senate, two representatives, one appointee of the President of the University and the non-voting Union Director.

Dr. Moyer said he felt it "very necessary" that he be allowed to appoint not one, but two, representatives to the Board, and that he be granted veto-power over the Board's decisions.

Commenting that his office "reserves two appointees" the President explained that he is responsible to the Board of Regents, which is the legal entity responsible for the University. The University and its Union are property of the State of Nevada, he said, and "you can't rule that out."

Adding the second administration appointee would change the student faculty ratio from nine to three to nine to four.

CSUB member Greg Waddilove stressed that this change would give the administration an extra vote, and Dr. Moyer replied that with the large student majority an extra vote would not be highly significant.

The President contended that "two professionals working with the Board could provide a tremendous assistance in helping to find the money necessary to finance the Union."

"The administration can put the expertise that will make it a success into the Union," he added.

Randy Frew suggested when such help was needed it could be sought from outside the Board, but President Moyer countered this saying:

"We (the administration) have done a lot to help raise the money and get that building. What's the thought now?—We don't deserve to be in the building?"

Nevada Legislators Speak Out About Issues of Today

A legislative panel comprised of two senators and four assemblymen was the focal feature at a special symposium presented here last night, under CSNS sponsorship.

B. Mahlon Brown and Chic Hecht of the Nevada State Senate, and Mel Close, Jr., Mrs. Flora Dungan, Woodrow Wilson and Hal Smith of the State Assembly, were the featured guests at the seminar.

Southern Nevada journalists

Bryn Armstrong of the Las Vegas SUN, Roy Vanette of the Las Vegas Review-Journal, and Miss Vickie Jolley of the NSU REBEL YELL spearheaded the questioning. Questions were also received from the audience. Mike Clark, CSNS president served as moderator.

Topics under discussion ranged from the legislature's Special Session to matters of university and community importance.

Other members of the cast include Harry Hamblay, George Mazzarra, Neil Wheelock Early, Scott Tomlin, Bob Burgan, Miss Margaret Foley, Lon Schleifer, Fred Simpson, Miss LaRae Bringham, Dave Gutowski and Sid Goldstein.

Early is assistant director for the production and Gutowski is second director. Mrs. Jody Meswarb is in charge of technical direction.

According to Dr. Crawford, the play is timely and has contemporary pertinence.

THE THREE SISTERS

Guess How Nevada Southern Answered NY Garbage Strike

By RITA HADDAD and CHUCK CRAWFORD

When he saw it, Mr. Schofield said he would not eat it. Bruce Heskett says it may explain the empty rooms in the dormitory. Lynn Anderson says some people take seconds of what she wouldn't take firsts of. What is everyone talking about?

Perhaps with a few additional clues, you can guess. According to Pat Deeley, "Dinner last night was delightful, as delightful as a case of diarrhea. I ate rolls and chocolate cake because I didn't think they could ruin that."

Just one more clue should give it away.

"A student needs insurance in case his spoon hits him in the face bouncing off the rubber tapioca," commented Robert Bruno.

If you don't have it yet, you have never dined at Nevada Southern's answer to the New York garbage strike.

Most students will agree that Dining Commons' food this year is an improvement over last year's, quantitatively, if not qualitatively. There is more variety, (or is it more variation) and more ingenuity. You would not believe what they can do to an egg.

The most commonly complained-about meal is breakfast, when pancakes look like they've been cooked with a Zippo. Most people thoroughly understand why the hen laid the egg.

As for lunch, we have noticed an increased number of enrollments in noon classes, whatever that indicates. There is rumor that desserts and breads are prepared five days in advance so they can be old when served.

Dinner is disappointingly well-attended, luring those students who successfully avoided the other two meals. Most notable is that students take "seconds" at MacDonalds, rather than chance a good case of food poisoning.

Many times you can get more food off of the "clean" silverware and glasses than you can going through the line, and probably better food at that. Apparently afraid to commit themselves, employees no longer label foods for the customer, most likely because they can't tell what it is either.

Bleu cheese dressing is so bad they can't get the mold to grow on the cheese anymore. Ice cream tastes like crushed igloo ice from the Yukon Gold Rush days. We wouldn't say the ice cream is gummy, but the Wrigley label on the side of the package is misleading.

We wish that these remarks could be written off as mere satirical exaggerations, but complaints on this campus are more numerous and more serious than the norm. The fact that such complaints have never been taken seriously is precisely the reason the problem exists.

Students agree that some meals are adequate, but complaints indicate general quality is on a steady decline. The best that can be said for any meal is that it would have to get better to be terrible.

It has been observed that on occasion, a cook will refuse to serve a specific item due to lack of quality. Let's hear it for the cooks! Nevada Southern has a lease with Saga Foods and, unfortunately, along with foods they also send recipes which must be adhered to with only very minor deviations. Therefore, we cannot specify where the blame should lie.

Howard Donnally, a student employee of the Commons, says, "It's not the people working there, it's SAGA. They have their own recipes." Lynn Anderson feels, "Rather than the food, the problem is preparation and techniques of storage."

This all can be passed over as a joke, but when knives are broken in endeavors to cut steak and straining of the cooking fat, a daily process, is not carried out for three weeks at a time, something is definitely amiss.

Incidentally, Mr. Brennan, former manager of the Commons, went into the plumbing business, having here gained all the field experience he needed.

The new manager, Mr. Lopez, said he will try to iron out all the difficulties. He seems sincere, and rightly so.

Let's face it, for $310 per semester, someone besides the sanitation department should get something out of the deal.

We are sure that the employees of the Commons mean well, but so did Joan of Arc, and look what happened to her.

Editor's note: Since this editorial was written an investigation of Dining Commons problems has been undertaken by the administration. Its progress will be covered in the next edition.

Editorials Draw Reader Response

To the Editor:

I would like to make a personal reply to your editorial of last issue: "Senate Defeats Recall; Editor Still an Editor." My motivation stems from my disappointment as a former R-Y editor, and as current Senate President in your remarks mis-addressed to the indictment by the Senate in their recall proposal.

I, first, would like to correct the intent of the "news" story on the matter, "Attempt to Recall R-Y Editor Fails In Senate."

You personally edited an objective story on the matter to read: "The . . . REBEL YELL remains free from Senate censorship today as a recent attempt to recall the editor of the weekly newspaper failed."

This is undoubtedly the most irresponsible action an editor can take; representing the news to save the editor's personal face. There is no one at the meeting that could possibly say the intent of the Senate was "censorship" and I therefore ask for a published correction of the statement.

As for your editorial, which apparently was written about you and by you, you address yourself to editorial freedom; however, you point out that the Senate at no time intended to damage an "editor's freedom." What the Student Senate was doing was reflecting the general disappointment in the REBEL YELL'S editorial policy this academic year.

The Senate is bound by the Constitution and by-laws of this confederation, but it is also given the responsibility, in some cases, of binding others to the laws.

Under Section I, Clause A., Paragraph 5, "The editors . . . may be removed from office by a two-thirds vote of the Senate and the Executive Committee for the misuse of editorial power, misconduct in office, academic probation, or for the misuse of publication funds." This standing rule is the only restriction put onto an editor. The editor is appointed on the basis of his or her ability to perform. He is enfranchised by the elected officers of the confederation with the assumption that he will act in the best interest of the confederation. When the Senate and Executive Committee think that the individual's editorial policy does not conform with the interests of the students he should be removed.

In the case of you, Miss Jolley, the Senate was not censoring the paper at all; it was (1) charging you with misuse of publication funds, formally; (2) and informally charging you with irresponsible censorship of news and material that would have been in the student interest.

Freedom of the Press (even when it is freedom "to refuse copy") like all other freedoms, has its limits.

It was the Senate's right to interpret the limit in your case.

The self-laudatory article which you printed in the last issue may well have made things rest easier in your mind. It is unfortunate that you had to stoop to misrepresentation of facts to accomplish your end. But, after all, you had (your interpretation of) editorial freedom to do so. Unfortunately you seemed to forget editorial responsibility.

CHUCK CRAWFORD

Better late than never?

Not quite. For the time to express grievances over University Store policies was many moons ago, not now, when it's a publicized fact that the store is closing down upon opening of our "student union" (what it actually is seems to be a matter of controversy . . . and confusion).

First, above all, the University Store is private enterprise, thereby signifying that there is nothing that Nevada Southern University, the Confederated Students of Nevada Southern, or you can do about it. Absolutely nothing. You can cry and squawk all you want, but owner Bill Rothenberg can, as he already has, completely ignore you . . . for he's running a private business . . . one, again, in which our school has no power or influence.

Secondly, why should ol' Bill take back your leftover books when he knows he'll be stuck with them at "the end", thereby taking a profit loss? After all, he's in business to make money . . . and his is just as good as yours. Just as it is obvious to you that you shouldn't lose your hard-earned money getting stuck with books you don't need, it's just as obvious to him that he shouldn't lose his allegedly-hard earned money getting stuck with books HE doesn't need.

C'mon, if you're really that hard up, you could always pawn off your leftovers on some friend who's going to take the class . . . or you could even give them to the Lamplighters for their book exchange. There's got to be some logical way of making up your loss . . . if you'd just stop trying to figure out devious schemes to cheat Rothenberg and concentrate on practical methods a while.

Only too soon it'll be bye bye University Store. . . . Let's let it leave with a good impression of our school . . . it can't hurt . . . why should we be afraid to remain on the dignified pedestal universities so precariously balance on?

A quick note about our library . . . We've received letter from faculty, but none from students . . . we need, badly, student opinions as to the check-out procedures upon exiting from James Dickinson . . . meanwhile, we're investigating legalities of the procedure, etc.

And one more little item for all the passive girls on campus — next to be subject to investigation and scrutiny upon exit of the library, are large ladies' handbags. How does that grab ya?

As if student government didn't have enough problems, it's decided to eliminate GPA requirements for officers. Wow . . . can you imagine. . .

The people who are going to be representing Nevada Southern University all over the nation may not even be able to spell it . . . Most Senators may never make meetings 'cause they're trying to get off probation. . . . We'll probably have to initiate a "President for the month" system to allow for school flunk-outs.

And we might have an awfully hard time explaining to next year's freshmen that they shouldn't use their student leaders as examples to be followed in their striving toward success . . . but merely as illustrations of how to take an Asian cruise in two easy semesters.

STRUD Plans Rally Tomorrow

Students to Remove Up-state Domination (STRUD) will sponsor an autonomy demonstration tomorrow at the Republican County Convention.

According to John Hollobaugh, Publicity Chairman, the demonstration will begin at 9 a.m. with a motorcade from the University to the Convention Center. Students wishing to participate in the rally should meet in the West parking lot between the Science Technical Building and the gym.

Hollobaugh said that placards and fliers will be provided for the participants by the executive council of STRUD.

Several political science and history classes will be in attendance. Joe Lendini and Miss Joni Hurst have also contacted Greek organizations to seek their support.

At its meeting March 8 the Executive Council for Autonomy stated its goal as being "to legitimize the autonomy movement by bringing all the programs, groups, and movements together under one central supervising body . . . responsible for planning, executing, controlling, and coordinating the program to achieve autonomy for the University."

The group decided at that time against "mass demonstrations designed for or resulting in the interruption of traffic, the disruption of social gatherings, or the interference with public events," hoping to be recognized as "an organized, controlled, responsible group seeking to appeal without intruding."

STRUD leaders have pointed out that the distribution of funds between the two Nevada Universities is "far from commensurate with enrollment."

"The University at Reno has approximately five students for every four at Nevada Southern, yet it receives four dollars for every one dollar received by the southern institution."

However, STRUD contends that it is impossible to bargain for better distribution under the "position of subordination which Nevada Southern occupies under the existing administrative structure."

STRUD is seeking to separate the administration of NSU from the University of Nevada at Reno and to reappoint the Board of Regents. Both would be accomplished by means of Legislative Initiative Petition to change the Nevada statutes covering the University of Nevada administrative operation.

staffer to improve its clarity and readability. Both parties were present at the meeting in question. Both are experienced, objective journalists. My personal contribution to that story was no more than marking its paragraphs.

There also seems to be some mistake about the intent of the editorial you mentioned. Indeed it was written by myself, but about the office I hold. As the editorial stated in four separate paragraphs, its purpose was to congratulate the Senate for the interpretation it made as to limitations on editorial power in determining policy for the newspaper on this campus.

The Senate, in defeating the motion for my recall, set an important precedent in keeping the REBEL YELL free from government censorship.

As the editorial explained, it is by definition within the power of an editor to "direct or supervise the expressive policies" of the publication he edits. (Webster's Third International). Had the Senate ruled that in executing this function an editor was "misusing" his or her power, I believe it would have set undue limitations upon that office.

The Senate wisely chose not to do so, however, and therefore, with the above clarification, I again extend my congratulations.

Editor of "The Rebel Yell":

Your reporter Rita Haddad is guilty of the first principle of responsible journalism: — "GET THE FACTS BEFORE PUTTING PEN TO PAPER." Her article in the latest issue of The REBEL YELL is laughable for its ignorance.

The prices of text-books are established by the publishers and not by the store, either University operated or an off-campus enterprise. The mark-up on text-books is so small that cutting prices would mean the early death of a dealer attempting this.

Her article gives the impression that we have consistently refused to buy back books from the students. The fact is that between December 8, 1967 (the first day of pre-registration and February 22, 1968 we refunded to students who dropped out of classes $6688.00 which represents 11 per cent of the value of all books sold during that period.

Establishing a final date for the acceptance of returned books was necessary because an official of the University told us that the Student Bookstore would be ready the end of May and that they would handle all books for the Summer and succeeding sessions.

It would be suicide for us or any store in a similar situation to be loaded with merchandise with no outlet for sale, especially with changes in titles every semester.

We have in stock right now over 3000 text-books which we hope publishers will accept for return. What would Rita Haddad do if she were in a similar situation? We have faithfully served the University and its students for the past 8 years. Her remarks are unjust, untrue and silly.

Yours very truly,
THE UNIVERSITY STORE,
Wm. Rothenberg

Clash Over CSUB

President Moyer suggested that if the students truly believed the administration to be subject, seeking to undermine the whole operation of the Union, they should get new people to fill those offices.

"While the 'administration' does tend to be cohesive," Dr. Ben Owen, Dean of Students, explained, "the President may want to use his second appointment-perogative, not for more administrative representation, but to give voice to some group he feels has been left out of the structure that year—for instance to provide for the alumni viewpoint."

Mr. Paul Schofield, Director of Student Activities, stated he had been asked to stay away from certain meetings during which present structure of the Board was under consideration, and therefore the administration had little voice in planning for its composition until now.

The meeting ended without resolving either proposed change. President Moyer asked the students to "think things over" and come back for another discussion before the Board of Regents meet on April 23.

Terry Lindberg, who was elected chairman of the CSUB Wednesday morning, said the President had declined to fill the one appointment he is now allowed until the issues are resolved.

Dr. Moyer said that, in his opinion, CSNS by-laws concerning the Union are subject to approval by the Board of Regents.

MONEY: THE STORY OF AN ENGINEER

We all know, of course, that in this age of technology every engineering senior is receiving fabulous offers of employment, but do we realize just how fabulous these offers are? Do we comprehend just how keenly industry is competing? To illustrate, let me cite the true and typical case of E. Pluribus Ewbank, a true and typical senior.

One day last week while strolling across the M.I.T campus, E. Pluribus was hailed by a portly and prosperous man who sat in a yellow convertible studded with precious gem stones. "Hello," said the portly and prosperous man, "I am Portly Prosperous, president of American Xerographic Data Processing and Birth Control, Incorporated. Are you a senior?"

"Yes, sir," said E. Pluribus.
"Do you like this car?" said Portly.
"Yes, sir," said E. Pluribus.
"It's yours," said Portly.
"Thanks, hey," said E. Pluribus.
"Do you like Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades?" said Portly.

"What clean living, clean shaven American does not?" said E. Pluribus.

"Here is a pack," said Portly. "And a new pack will be delivered to you every twelve minutes as long as you live."

"Thanks, hey," said E. Pluribus.
"Would your wife like a mink coat?" said Portly.
"I feel sure she would," said E. Pluribus, "but I am not married."

"Do you want to be?" said Portly.
"What clean living, clean shaven American does not?" said E. Pluribus.

Portly pressed a button on the dashboard of the convertible and the trunk opened up and out came a nubile maiden with golden hair, rosy knees, a perfect disposition, and the appendix already removed. "This is Svetlana O'Toole," said Portly. "Would you like to marry her?"
"Is her appendix out?" said E. Pluribus.

"Yes," said Portly.
"Okay, hey," said E. Pluribus.
"Congratulations," said Portly. "And for the happy bride, a set of 300 monogrammed prawn forks."
"Thanks, hey," said Svetlana.

"Now then," said Portly to E. Pluribus, "let us get down to business. My company will start you at $75,000 a year. You will retire at full salary upon reaching the age of 26. We will give you an eleven-story house made of lapis lazuli, each room to be stocked with edible furniture. Your children will receive a pack of Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades every twelve minutes as long as they shall live. We will keep your teeth in good repair and also the teeth of your wife and children unto the third generation. We will send your dentist a pack of Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades every twelve minutes as long as he shall live, and thereafter to his heirs and assigns... Now, son, I want you to think carefully about this offer. Meanwhile here is 50 thousand dollars in small, unmarked bills which places you under no obligation whatsoever."

"Well, it certainly seems like a fair offer," said E. Pluribus. "But there is something you should know. I am not an engineer. In fact I don't go to M.I.T. at all. I just walked over here to admire the trees. I am at Harvard, majoring in Joyce Kilmer."

"Oh," said Portly.
"I guess I don't get to keep the money and the convertible and the Personnas and the broad, do I?" said E. Pluribus.

"Of course you do," said Portly. "And if you'd like the job, my offer still stands."

REBS DUMP WEBER; POST 3-4 RECORD

Last Saturday, the Rebels baseball team defeated Weber State of Utah 10-7 in wind-blown game. The game was held up numerous times because of the strong winds flowing dust all over the field.

Weber State got on the scoreboard first as they tallied for two runs in the first inning. The Rebels were put down in their half of the first inning and this made the score 2-0 in favor of Weber State. Then in the second inning the Rebels scored two runs to tie the score 2-2. Jerry Lund doubled and with one out Bonnie Smith hit his first Rebel homerun of the season over the left-centerfield fence.

To start off the third inning Clair Wadman hit a homerun and this put Weber State ahead again 3-2. Then in the fourth inning Weber State scored three more runs on three hits which was climaxed by Clair Wadman's second homerun of the game. So the score was 6-2 in favor of Weber State at this point.

Up to this time Russ Farrell had been pitching for NSU. He was replaced for a pinch-hitter in the bottom half of the fourth inning and John Lundquist finished the game.

In the Rebels half of the fourth inning they scored five runs on six hits. Bonnie Smith, George Peraza, and Jerry Mendenhall were all safe on singles to load the bases. Then Harry Karn singled to drive in two runs and leave runners at first and second. John Huber doubled to drive in another run and leave runners at second and third. Then Jerry Lund was walked intentionally with two out and Richard Gonzales singled in two more runs to make the score 7-6 in favor of NSU.

In the fifth inning Roger Reed hit a homerun off Lundquist to make the score 7-7. This hit was the only hit Lundquist allowed for the remainder of the game as he had complete control.

RUSS FARRELL
Age: 21 Height: 6' Weight: 175

Second team All-Conference last year, Russ was undefeated in league play, (3-0), and again this season he is a starting moundsman.

"The Thinker" won his first game of the year against CSU, on March 5. In that contest he pitched six innings, gave up four hits, and allowed only three runs. In addition to that, Russ went three-for-three at the plate, hitting a single, a double, and the Rebels first homerun of the year.

Married, Russ, a junior, is an economic major. He was born in Oxnard, Cal.

RALPH GARCIA
Age: 19 Height: 6'1" Weight: 185

Another returning hurler from last year, Ralph posted the best earned run average on the squad in '67. He also tossed the most strikeouts (93) in pitching 72 innings.

"The Smoker," as Ralph is called because of his blazing fastball, fanned 12 batters in the first six innings he worked this year.

Ralph, originally from Los Angeles, California, is a sophomore here at NSU and is majoring in Physical Education. His ultimate goal is to play professional and work as a policeman during the off-season.

In spite of its abrupt ending, Nevada Southern enjoyed one of its most successful seasons in history, winning 22 and losing only 7.

NSU, after a harrowing trip to Evansville, Ind., lost to Indiana State last Wednesday in the quater-finals of the NCAA college division tournament, 94-75.

Nearly all of the Rebels returned late Thursday night and were greeted by an enthusiastic crowd.

Jerry Chandler, visited his relatives in his hometown of Bloomfield, Ill.

Rebel mentor Rolland Todd stayed on to watch the conclusion of the tournament Thursday and Friday.

This year's team was only the second in history to win 22 games. The other was the Chub Drakulich coached Rebels of 1962-63 which finished 22-4. This year's club was the second-best percentage mark at 22-7. This year's squad was only the first in NSU history to win the Regionals and play in the National Finals in Evansville.

The Rebels knocked off seven major college opponents in the Univ. of Hawaii (2) North Texas State, Loyola of L.A., Univ. of Pacific, Oklahoma City Univ., and Centenary. They lost to only four major colleges — Denver, Wyoming, Houston, and Hawaii. On their home court this season, the Rebels were 14-1, their only blemish coming at the hands of the mighty HOUSTON Cougars.

It was also the highest scoring team in NSU annals, ranking 14th in the nation in offense with nearly 96 points per game, tallying over 100 on nine different occasions. The Rebels also gave up more points than any other NSU team, a little over 92.

It was also the first time all five Rebel starters scored in double figures. All-American Elburt Miller led the way with a little over 27 points per game. The other starting Senior, Jerry Chandler, averaged over 14 points per game.

The other three who hit in double figures will all be back next season, including this year's top reserve. The three starters are 6-foot-7 John Trapp, over 21 points and 11 rebounds per game; Donnie Lyons, more than 13 per game; and Curtis Watson, more than 12 per game.

Cliff Findlay, a burly 6-6 sophomore who was ineligible for the NCAA tourney, is also back along with the other reserve used most consistently by Todd, guard Ed Plawski. Also coming back are forward Dave Webb and Guard Harold Stafford.

In the tournament itself, the Rebels couldn't have lost to a better team. The Sycamores went on to defeat Trinity, Texas, in the semi-finals and play Kentucky Wesleyan for the National Championship last Friday. The Panthers from Kentucky had their hands full and had to rally in the last moments to claim a slim victory over Indiana.

NSU Athletic Director Chub Drakulich and basketball coaches Roland Todd and Bill Scoble are in Los Angeles this weekend for national meetings held in conjunction with the NCAA Basketball Tournament.

Drakulich will attend a national athletic director confab and also meetings on rules and regulations governing basketball.

Todd and Scoble will attend the Basketball Coaches gatherings and attempt to complete next year's schedule.

If you think this season was tough wait till you get a load of next season's sked. The Rebels will travel to the Southwest for a grueling road trip to battle HOUSTON, Loyola of New Orleans, Oklahoma City, Centenary, and the Phillips 66ers.

Drakulich also announced that San Diego State, Montana State University and Southern Illinois, the 1967 NIT champ, would be in the December Holiday Classic along with NSU.

Also named for games next season include the Univ. of Denver in Las Vegas, along with home and away games with Northern Arizona University, Nevada, and the College of Southern Utah.

During the past season the Rebels drew 48,900 fans to the Convention Center for its 15 home games. That's an average attendance of nearly 4,000.
