Bond Question Studied Friday

Bible Fabricates Senate Seniority

Members of a rival student group at NSU supporting Lt. Gov. Ed. Fike for the U. S. Senate, branded "completely misleading" recent statements saying Alan Bible "is in line to become chairman of the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Education."

Jim Rhoads, Head of the Young Nevadans for Fike said that such a subcommittee did not exist.

"There is no such subcommittee as a subcommittee on Education on the Appropriations Committee, said Rhoads, "and further, Bible is presently the fifth ranking Democratic member of the Senate Subcommittee that handles Educational Appropriations."

"Under the present Seniority system in the Senate there is no way barring mass resignations, deaths or defeat that Alan Bible will become chairman of that subcommittee", said Rhoads.

Mike Clark, another leader of the Young Nevadans for Fike and a former student body president at NSU, said that Senator Lister Hill of Alabama is the current head of the subcommittee on the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare and Related Agencies, and although he will not seek re-election, he is followed in terms of seniority, by Senators Russell of Georgia, Magnuson of Washington, and Stennis of Mississippi.

"This is just another example, said Clark, "of the continuing campaign to mislead the voters of this state regarding Alan Bible's real influence in Washington."

Bible Refuses Student Debate Invitation

NEVADA SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY -- Incumbent Democratic Senator Alan Bible last week rejected an invitation by Nevada Southern University students to openly confront his Republican opponent Lieutenant Governor Ed Fike on the NSU campus. Bible gave as the reason for his refusal a previous commitment to the school's Political Science Department to speak at the school for 15 minutes on October 28.

Professor Antonio Lapitan, Chairman of the Political Science Department, said that, although he had been approached by the Bible camp, "my department had made no formal arrangements with Bible."

Formal arrangements were made, however, after Bible issued his rejection on those grounds. The arrangements call for a fifteen minute speech by each candidate followed by a question and answer period. No actual exchange of views has been planned.

Student leaders have been formulating detailed plans for the meeting for several weeks. "We know," said Lapitan, "that the students are making efforts in the direction of a debate, and we are content to leave the arrangements to them."

The invitation was issued to the two candidates Friday by NSU Student Body President Bill Terry. It was immediately accepted by Fike.

Terry requested that the confrontation precede mock elections which will be held at the school October 17-18. "The mock election will, in effect, be an endorsement of the candidate who wins," Terry said. "It is important, therefore, that the students be given an opportunity to hear a first-hand exposition of the candidates' views before the election."

Student interest in the senatorial race has been running high. Jim Christ, editor of the campus newspaper REBEL YELL, said: "My office and that of Mr. Terry are constantly receiving requests for a meeting of the two candidates. Whether that meeting takes the form of a debate, a forum or a question and answer session, we feel that it is in the best interests of the students and of the State that it does take place, preferably before our mock election. We cannot understand Senator Bible's reluctance to take part in free discussion."

Members of the faculty, administration and student body will meet Friday with state political officers and candidates to discuss and promote a proposed amendment to the Nevada Constitution which will, if passed, increase the bonding capacity of the state for capital construction purposes. The meeting will take place at 4 p.m. on the Social Sciences Patio.

The proposed amendment, which will be Question No. 2 on the Nov. 5 ballot, reads: "Shall -- Assembly Joint Resolution proposing to amend Section 3 of Article 9 of the Constitution of the State of Nevada, relating to state indebtedness, by increasing the maximum allowance for the state public debt to 3 percent of the state's assessed valuation, by providing a flexible method of determining such valuation, and by restricting the contracts permissible outside the debt limit be approved?"

Nevada Governor Paul Laxalt brought CSNS President Bill Terry to Carson City last week to attend a briefing on Question No. 2. Terry said that NSU "could only benefit if the amendment were passed, and I and my staff are doing all we can to insure that it does."

The present one per cent limitation restricts the state's bonded indebtedness to $16,020,000, of which $9,866,000 has already been used. Donald Baepfer, NSU Vice-President in charge of Academic Affairs, aid: "This leaves only $6,154,000 for all of the state's capital needs, while a three per cent limitation would raise the bonded indebtedness level to $48,060,000, leaving $38,194,000 for future bond issues."

NSU student Bob Cummins, a candidate for the Assembly from District No. 4, emphasizes that "this measure is not an additional tax, nor is it a bond issue. It simply permits the state to borrow additional funds for building construction within the state."

"This," Cummins added, "is probably the most important issue NSU students have been confronted with to date. I personally urge all students to come to this rally Friday and hear the facts."

12 Floors of Tonopah Hall

An Editorial
By Randy Frew

Documents promulgating have plagued this campus before, but the one entitled "Constitution of Tonopah Hall-1968" is perhaps the best to date. Each Article increases profoundly in childish stupidity.

Article III, Section 1 "Membership", Clause c, is a prudent place to begin our inquisition (excuse the pun). This particular clause reads "The members of the Association are required to live in accordance with A.W.S. regulations, regulations from the Office of the Dean of Women, and the Residence Hall Policies." As one can readily see, the authors, in an attempt to throw in every rule they could fine (and some that do not belong) have excluded the two most important sources of information regarding student rights and procedures on this campus. The girls who are the residents are the first source as to some sort of policy making and secondly, the Confederated

Students of Nevada Southern University (CSNS), which is all students' government, including dorm residents.

It is a ridiculous assumption that the girls can be subject to AWS rules above those of CSNS when AWS is a direct agency of CSNS, provided for in the CSNS Constitution, and therefore owes its very existence to CSNS. How can the parasite become the host and vice versa? Only in the dormitory Constitution!

As far as the Office of the Dean of Women is concerned, few would argue the idea that Student Personnel Services, of which the Office of the Dean of Women is a part, was responsible for most of the present Residence Hall policies. Why, then, must there be expressed duplication in this document? As a "servant" to all women of this campus a Dean of Women should naturally be concerned with those in the dorm without having that interest expressed in the form of a rulemaking role.

Included in the Article concerning officer qualifications, it is stated that one who seeks office must have and maintain an overall GPA of 2.0. Since the relationship, between CSNS and this organization has been shown, one needs only to say that this GPA requirement is in direct conflict with the CSNS Constitution which calls for no GPA requirement of those who seek election to an office. This not only includes the CSNS Executive Committee and Senate, but also the Moyer Student Union Board, and the officers of AWS!

Perhaps the greatest folly of this document lies in the set up and procedures to be followed by the Dormitory Judicial Council and its arrangements with women residents.

The membership is derived from four elected members from the four academic classes, the house mother, the Secretary of the As-

And We Just Might Have A Debate . . . Or Something

The story on page 1 (Bible Refuses Student Debate Invitation) was released to the news media early last week by the REBEL YELL. Its validity has since been challenged by two people, one an NSU political science instructor, the other a Bible campaign aide.

Mr. Ronald Jack of the Department of Political Science and Mr. Mike (The Snake) Sloan of the Bible Campaign forces, both said last Monday that Bill Terry had not received a letter from Bible rejecting the invitation. THIS IS TRUE.

But I refer them to an article in the Las Vegas Sun (Sept. 28, page 4) which says that Bible "couldn't appear before the mock election." The article also says that Bible had accepted an invitation from the political science department. Bill Terry agrees with me that this constitutes a rejection of his invitation.

Furthermore, at the time the Sun story appeared, Bible had not received a formal invitation from the political science department. That invitation was not issued until three days later.

Jack and Sloan also dispute the fact that Fike has accepted the challenge, again because Terry has not received a formal letter of acceptance. I refer the reader to numerous statements by Fike that he would debate Bible "any time, any place," and in particular to the same Sun article mentioned above, which quite aptly says, "Fike immediately accepted." Doesn't Sloan keep track of the press coverage for his own candidate?

The object of this newspaper is not to force Bible into a debate before he had taken the time to prepare or when he is scheduled to appear elsewhere. It is merely to have some sort of a confrontation, in which a definite exchange of views takes place, before the mock elections which traditionally are held on this campus before the general election.

The mock election is now scheduled for the 17th & 18th of October. This is too early to be influenced by the Fike-Bible hour that has been arranged by the political science department.

Terry is reluctant to postpone the mock election to a date after the appearance. He asks that a petition be circulated to show student support for the postponement. The REBEL YELL has written such a petition and it is now in circulation. If you wish to hear the candidates first-hand before you vote, please sign the petition. If you cannot find a copy around the campus, come to the REBEL YELL office, where one will be available.

I might point out, by way of justifying the alias which is attached to the name of Mr. Sloan, that he was the man responsible for making arrangements with the Political Science Department for the Oct. 29 date. This is quite commendable on the part of Mr. Sloan.

He made these arrangements, however, with full knowledge that students were in the process of making similar arrangements. He did not mention to the Political Science Department that these arrangements were being made. And that is not so commendable, in view of the fact that Department Chairman Antonio Lapitan later said that he would have been eager to let the students make all the arrangements. Is it, Mike (The Snake) Sloan?

I had been looking forward to covering the activities of Students for Political Action in this newspaper this year.

I had thought that SPA would be in favor of, and even eager for, such publicity.

I had thought that SPA was proud of its activities.

But a REBEL YELL photographer was asked not to take pictures at a Thursday meeting of SPA.

Apparently some members are not so proud as I had thought. And if SPA's activities do not merit pride, they certainly do not merit publicity.

To guarantee coverage of all overt and covert campus activities, our creative photography staff has purchased, at a nominal price, an extremely long-range telephoto lens. Such a lens will also insure their safety from physical violence while shooting important events.

sociation, and a member-at-large, who apparently is appointed by the President, or the house mother, of the Dean of Women, or the Dormitory Mascot, because the existence of such a person is all that is mentioned.

In addition to this lack of means for a member-at-large to come about, there is also the point made that the house mother can vote on the Judicial Council, but the Secretary, who is an officer, can not. She is merely there to take minutes of the proceedings. Two questions must arise from this situation. First, why does the only Association officer on the Council, who should be more informed, find herself excluded from the vote? But, even more important, why does the house mother, who should be a mere administrator of policy, find herself with a vote? That's like having a cook telling a guest how to eat his meal because she prepared it. However, we must not become bogged down with illustrative analogies when there are other atrocities to consider.

Judicial Councils, in the general usage of the term, meet to hear issues, weigh the merits of both sides presented, and then decide in whose favor the case is to go and what manner of rectification is to be imposed. Under the Constitution of the Women's Association, if the board decides that it does not want to consider or does not feel qualified (which is intimated in the context), then the case can be submitted/"referred" to either the AWS Council or to the Office of the Dean of Women.

BLACK IS BEAUTIFUL; the black brothers on campus have begun to organize, along with the black sisters, an organization for the advancement of Black. They had a meeting Wednesday afternoon, and to the amazement of all there were no watermelon seeds on the floor and no chicken bones on the tables. With this in mind it appears that this group will be doing something on campus. Like having a Black is Beautiful lecture series, to begin with. Personally I wish the group the best of luck, and if you can't understand that you are evidently color blind. So all you soul brothers and sisters join-up, don't be a U. Thomas.

 Science is looking for the rest.

If all the preceding hasn't been enough, we have now arrived at the point of sublime ridiculousness. When one decides that one has been judged wrongly and that the punishment imposed is improper, then one can appeal. Another document of some intelligible content would have stopped here, but not the Women's association Constitution. If one wishes to appeal judgment, she must obtain permission from either the house mother, the president, or the vice president of the Association.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I would like to commend Mr. Sid Goldstein for publicly expressing the feelings of millions of young Americans who gave their support to Senator Eugene McCarthy in his bid for the presidency of this country. Mr. Goldstein expressed very well the frustrations of this group in the American political process in general and in the convention process in particular.

There is one point in Mr. Goldstein's column which attracted my attention and concern. This point was included in the second to the last paragraph which implied that the professors in the Political Science Department of this institution are involved principally in the teaching of the merits of the American political system. Mr. Goldstein should be aware of the fact that political scientists in general are not so much involved in describing the merits of any system but in identifying the principal characteristics of any system so that they can provide some explanations why the system or certain aspects of it are functioning in certain ways. The profession of political science today is not so interested in mere description alone, but in explanations as to how the system works. Therefore, Mr. Goldstein has no grounds in accusing the Political Science Department of this institution of propagating the traditional teaching of political science.

I will appreciate very much your publishing this letter in your next issue of the newspaper so that we can clarify the nature of the discipline of political science and how this discipline is being taught on this campus.

Sincerely yours,
 A.E. Lapitan, Chairman
 Dept. of Political Science

Dear Editor:

This letter is to assure you that action supposedly taken by some member or members of our group (those people are yet unknown to me) against your Photographer were not at all officially approved by myself or anyone during our last meeting.

We most respectfully regret such action and want to make it perfectly clear that S.P.A. welcomes your representatives, and indeed any person on campus, who wishes to attend or participate in its activities. The Rebel Yell staff is particularly welcome since it has been so influential in introducing Nevada Southern University to S.P.A.

Again, please understand that S.P.A. its Executive Board and its membership directly refute and sincerely apologize for the action you have referred to in your current editorial.

Kind regards and best wishes,
 BRUCE ADMAS, President
 Students for Political Action

MAKING OF A MONSTER — This scintillation tube is used in the whole-body counter to determine the amount of radiation emitted by a patient's body. REBEL YELL Reporter Harold Coskey lies on a contour bed inside a building made of six-inch steel. All parts of his body are about equally distant from a crystal detector which picks up any radiation he emits. If radiation is present, it is thus recorded on an analyzer.

BOOZE, ANYONE? — No, this isn't really a scientific improvement on Pappy Yokum's backyard still. It is used to make the distilled water for use in the rad lab. It has a ten gallon per hour flow rate and is made, in places through which the water flows, of glass for easy cleaning.

SMOKING RATS? — R. L. Satterwhite, a technician at the rad lab, observes a rat, in the front chamber, smoking a cigarette. The experiment is being conducted to check the effects of polonium-210, a radioactive material found in cigarettes; on body tissue. The apparatus was designed by Satterwhite from odds and ends that were around the lab.

ANYONE GOT A HAMMER? — Leonard Siu pours liquid oxygen into this apparatus in order to cool water for use in this gas analysis equipment. Gas analysis is only one of the tests the rad lab uses to make sure the country remains uncontaminated by radioactive traces.

ELECTRON MICROSCOPE — Bess Fitzinger observes particle movement in the rad lab's microscope. The unit is used in micro research concerning radioactive particles. The instrument is useful because it can magnify very small particles to a point where they can be seen and studied.

Sheraton Hotel Manager Joins Faculty

The Board of Regents recently announced the appointment of Bruce Baltin as a lecturer in the expanding Hotel Administration program at Nevada Southern University. Baltin comes to Las Vegas from the central offices of the Sheraton Hotel Corporation in Boston.

As assistant to the chain's Senior Vice President for Operations, Baltin had served as Sheraton's statistical analyst and assisted in all phases of Sheraton's operations. In these capacities, Baltin was responsible for advising regional and individual managers on operational exception review procedures.

Among his other teaching responsibilities, Baltin will teach a course in Hotel Management and Operations. Students will begin with a theoretical hotel that is about to open and will make all the management decisions that are necessary. Included in this area are such items as pro forma forecasts, labor needs (with attention to design and equipment placement), room rate structure, techniques of reporting and control and the many, many allied decisions, e.g., in-house or laundry rental; pre-opening advertising campaigns; insurance coverage; and employee development programs.

Baltin and his wife Phyllis come to Las Vegas from Boston. He is a graduate of the Cornell University hotel program where he headed the Cornell Hotel Association's tutoring aid program and where he also was assistant banquet manager at the Hotel Ezra Cornell.

"Another important faculty addition, one that expands the university's ability to serve both the student and the community", was the comment of Jerome Vallen, Director of Hotel Administration, on welcoming Bruce Baltin to Las Vegas.

Humanities Committee Sets Goals, Hears Grievances

The Humanities Student-Faculty Committee met for the first time last week in an effort to define purposes and goals and to organize ways and means of accomplishing them. The committee, which has been called one of the most important achievements at NSU in some years, is presently composed of some twenty students and faculty members.

The functions of the committee were generally divided into four areas: (1) grievances; (2) advising and consultation; (3) curriculum; (4) general communications.

In the area of grievances, the committee will hear students who dispute grades on examinations and courses. Although the committee will have no power to actually change grades, it is expected that the faculty members of the committee, in the case of a valid dispute, will have considerable influence in persuading other faculty members to change a grade.

In the area of advising and consultation, the committee will provide a staff who is experienced in the subtleties of the various Humanities courses; who will be able to help students in selecting courses and offer advice in areas of specialized study.

Suggestions as to the validity of a particular curriculum for a given degree are classified in the area of curriculum and school requirements. Herein valuable suggestions as to curricular structure and classes required for degrees will be discussed.

In order to maintain a dialog between students and faculty members, the fourth area in which work will be done is that of general communications. This program will endeavor to inform students as to the needs of a particular segment of the Humanities College and to hear student comment relating to the College.

Three faculty members are now active on the committee: Daniel Larson, Department of English; Jean Rousseau, Department of Foreign Languages; and Janet Travis, Department of Philosophy.

Larson commented that, although there was not as much attendance as he had anticipated, "The meeting was extremely successful. There was great interest in the problem areas, and people offered legitimate suggestions and grievances which more than seemed to warrant the attention of the committee."

Mrs. Travis concurred and said that "Students are definitely to be encouraged to make suggestions as to the operation of the committee and the subject matter to be considered."

Bruce Adams, a philosophy student who has been working toward such a committee for some time, said, "All of the other colleges should establish similar committees. As it stands now, the college of Humanities has, by establishing this committee, formally distinguished itself as the only college at this University which is willing to acknowledge student opinion."

Any students having suggestions for the committee should contact the faculty members of the committee. Later, definite schedules will be arranged for the student members. Dr. Rousseau is available Tuesday and Thursday afternoons in his office. Mrs. Travis will devote Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 10:30 to 1 p.m. to committee work. Her office is in SS 229. Mr. Larson will be available every Tuesday afternoon in the Student Union snack bar.

The committee will next meet on Thursday, Oct. 10 at 7 p.m. in the Moyer Student Union.

AWS Elections Slated

Associated Women Students functions as an auxiliary to CSNS. All women students are automatically members of A.W.S. The officers are: Jo Ann Janes, president; Joni Hurst, Vice-president; Judy Fleishman, secretary; and Sharon Dillman, treasurer.

The governing body of AWS is a council consisting of a representative from each women's organization and nine representatives chosen by non-affiliated women. If you live off campus and are not affiliated with a women's organization, you are encouraged to run for a position on the council. Petitions for candidacy are available in the office of the CSNS president on the third floor of the Student Union.

AWS has desk space on the second floor of the Student Union. If you have any questions, by all means contact one of the officers. All meetings are open, and all women are urged to attend.

Information Center Opens

It was decided at the last meeting of the Student Union Board that the information center, located at the entrance of the Student Union, will be under the auspices of the CSNS second vice-president.

It is hoped that the information center will become the hub of on-campus publicity for all events. The center will be open to any and all groups. To achieve this goal without inviting mass confusion, certain procedures will have to be followed.

Any organization wishing to use the facility should contact the office of the second vice-president, Student Union room 304, or Mr. Gifford Proctor, the STUDENT Union manager.

Ticket sales, publicity for events, and other activities of this nature may be conducted at the center. However, bake sales, membership drives and the like will not be handled at the center.

Randy Frew, CSNS Second Vice-President, reminds all that with the advent of the Student Union and the facilities it affords, comes the opportunity that has been long anticipated. He urges everyone to take advantage of the facilities provided.

Chorus Council Appointed

The Co-ordinating Council of the University Chorus was appointed at the first meeting of the season in the Student Union. The appointed council members are: Gary Lang, chairman; Jeanne Marie Libotte, acting vice-chairman; Barbara Bailey, executive secretary; Carol Adrews, Librarian; Sharon Lang, Historian; Terry McMahan, advertising committee chairman; Al Douglas, service committee chairman.

Mr. Douglas Peterson, conductor of the University Chorus, opened the meeting. He invited all students who like to sing to join the chorus. Meetings are Tuesday through Friday during the noon hour. All chorus members are also urged to attend the co-ordinating council meeting which are held each Monday.

For all shutter-bugs and dark-room artists, NSU is going to have a photo club. The organizational meeting will be today at 7:30 p.m. The NSU darkroom is the place, room 118 in Tonopah Hall. Anyone in anyway interested in any aspect of photography should make it a point to be there.

If it is impossible to attend, but the interest in this organization is there, contact Greg Allred in the Rebel Shop, Student Union bookstore.

Business Sorority Holds Rush

Phi Gamma Nu, National Professional Business Sorority is presently engaged in rushing activities. Anyone interested in pledging is encouraged to contact one of the Phi Gamma Nu officers. The officers are: Jo Ann Janes, president; Martha Fontaine, vice-president, Margerite Wright, secretary; Kathy Hougen, treasurer; and Margaret Fox, scribe.

Phi Gamma Nu and Alpha Kappa Psi, National Professional Business Fraternity, held a rush coffee on September 24, in the Student Union. A rush tea was held on September 29 for all women business majors.

Phi Gamma Nu offers its members a variety of professional and social activities, with the emphasis being placed on the role of women in business.

Kappa Sigs Sponsor Dance

The date, October 25, the time, from the soft hour of 8 p.m. to the shrieking hour of midnight. Where? The Moyer Student Union Ballroom. What is it? The Kappa Sigma CSNS Hallowe'en Dance. The admission charge is so nominal that it is non-existent. Costumes are urged, but they are not mandatory. There will be prizes galore - door prize, ugly man, and others.

"Jude" Upsets the Old, Old Line

By Sid Goldstein

By now it becomes rather difficult to describe the work of Lennon, McCartney and Co. All the pearly adjectives were used long ago, and an entire generation of tenny bops have gone to college humming anything from "I want to hold your hand" to "Lady Madonna".

The talented foursome's latest offering, "Hey Jude", is no let-down. Once again, as in so many previous offerings, the Beatles have blasted another traditional musical ethic. In this one, Mr. Paul is telling "Jude" to forget the advice of the Richard Rogers song writing generation and "let her under your skin". The point here is clear, the actual caring is what's worth it, not the hazy, flowery, love letters in the sand of the old school.

Musically, "Hey Jude" scores as well. The score is a cross between McCartney's "Yesterday" and Lennon's "Hello-Goodbye". It has the rock element, but the roots are ballad all the way. The song breaks at about the three-quarter length and begins to attack in the style that would thrill Marshall McLuhan. As they have done before, the Beatles leave you feeling as if you had been listening to two songs.

This single ranks as the best one of the summer. In this age of the LP, the Beatles are the one group that can get away with putting out 45's and selling them.

After listening to "Hey Jude" you almost want to run and find Richard Rogers on a street corner just so that you can say to him, "Hey Rich, the Beatles have made you irrelevant."

Rebs Preach To Parsons By The Tune Of 27-7

The Nevada Southern Rebels defeated the gritty but undermanned Westminster Parsons 27-7 here Saturday night at Cashman Field for their fourth victory in a row in their first year of football.

A hometown crowd of 6,800 welcomed the Rebels home and saw a team that at times looked awesome and considerably more polished since play in Las Vegas.

The Parsons, who couldn't dent the Rebel defenses until the fourth quarter, gave up yardage grudgingly, hitting hard in the first half. They got tired in the last quarter, yet in the final minute of play were parked on the Rebels' six-yard line at the gun.

Rebel coach Bill Ireland substituted freely in the last quarter and Parson coach Ron Nay played in 35-man squad to exhaustion.

Tailback Steve Buzick of Sparks, Nev., had a great night for the Rebels, scoring two touchdowns and kicking three PAT's. Buzick scored runs 12 and four yards.

In the third quarter both teams opened with passing attacks but their offenses bogged down until late in the period when the Rebels got a drive going.

Nevada Southern Rebels struck first late in the first quarter with Larry Hodges going in for a touchdown from the two yard line with 34 seconds left on the scoreboard.

Steve Buzick's kick was wide on the PAT attempt. The Rebels were forced to kick twice after a personal foul.

The touchdown march began when the Parsons were forced to punt deep in their own territory at the 13. The Rebels got the ball on the Parsons' 27 and scored in seven plays. George Saphire got a first down at the 13 and Hodges carried the ball over.

Midway through the second quarter, Rebel quarterback Bill Casey was temporarily injured when he was flattened after throwing a long pass to Nate Hawkins. Pass interference was called on the Parsons and quarterback Jimmy Thompson took over at the Westminster 14. The Rebels got to the one but fumbled the ball.

Harriers Lose, Face Riverside Saturday Morn

With the University of Nevada taking the first eight places, the Wolf Pack cross-country team went on to rout California State College, Fullerton, and Nevada Southern in a meet Saturday Sept. 28, at the NSU campus.

Peter Duffy led the field across the finish line in 29 minutes four seconds, with Pete Sinnott, Tony Risby, Henry Kirk and Paul Bateman rounding out the top five.

Doug Clarke was the first Rebel across the line, finishing in 15th place with a time of 32:50. Following Clarke across the line for NSU were Mike O'Dea, Andy Czaplewski, Juan Moser, and Lamont Howard.

Their strong showing gave the Wolf Pack 15 points to 55 for Cal State Fullerton and 93 for NSU with winner decided on the basis of fewest points.

It was the first meet of the year for the Rebel harriers and they will be back in action this Saturday against the University of California, Riverside. Highlander coach Jim White will bring a five man contingent to meet the Revels at the Vo-Tech running site. Last weekend Nevada Southern hosted Cal Western University in a dual meet, however, results were not available at press time.

Mirror On The Wall Who's Best Of All?

"... Mirror-mirror on the wall, who has the best small college basketball team of them all?....."

"I think he's one of the finest shooters we've ever had here... he could be a great one...has speed and quickness..possible guard or forward". These quotes of head basketball Coach Roland

Todd describe the chances one new recruit has to make the mirror answer ".....Nevada Southern, of course."

Tom Watkins is a 6' 2 1/2" junior from Riverside City College. Hailing from Los Angeles, he graduated from Fremont High School in 1965.

He was a High School All-American as well as being on the All-City and All-Southern league teams.

At Riverside, Watkins made the second team Eastern Conference and was a nominee for the Junior College Olympic trials.

Watkins enjoys skating, reading and stamp collecting and is a PE major at NSU.

"Terrible Tommy, as he is known, hopes to be a professional athlete, a businessman in Men's Clothing or a Radio "DJ".

With players of this caliber, Nevada Southern's chances of matching last year's record become better and better.

Rebels Defense Holds Opponents To 80 Yds In First Three Tilts

Outscoring your opponents is the only way to win football games, and this is exactly what the Nevada Southern University Rebels did in their first three games in history. However, much of the credit must go to the Rebels defensive unit.

Fumbles and penalties have kept the Rebel offense sputtering much of the time, but the always improving NSU defense has been a good insurance policy against the mistakes a new club was bound to make.

Statistics show one of the most obvious strengths - defense against the rush. In the first three games NSU opponents had a net of only 80 yards on the ground.

Almost all of this yardage was given up in the first game when St. Mary's rushed for 74 yards. In the second game Azusa Pacific was held to a minus six yards, and last week USF was able to net only 15 yards in 43 attempts.

Statistics would also indicate that coach Roger Barnson's defensive secondary has been learning some lessons. Everyone has thrown against the Rebels, but the touchdown count has gone from three against St. Mary's to one against Azusa Pacific to none against USF.

The big steadying influence in the secondary has been the play of Jim Thompson at safety. Thompson, the former Bakersfield Junior College star, hits like a linebacker and still handles his passing responsibilities.

Playing deep with Thompson are two freshmen who have made giant strides at maturity.

Jim Vinson is probably one of college football's oldest freshmen at 25. After high school he played some service ball, but it still has been a while since he was in action. However, after three games it is all falling in place and he looks like a good find.

Steve Russi spent most of his time at quarterback in high school and he is still learning a lot about defense. However, he was recruited as a natural athlete with a good mind and the coaches felt they have a lot to work with.

Also in Russi's favor is his size (6-0) and speed (9.8) and in just three games he has improved tremendously.

Another freshman who has been particularly outstanding is Tommy Rowland. At 195 pounds many would argue Rowland is too small to play defensive tackle, but assistant coach Bill Daniel spent last season at Alabama as an observer, and he says Rowland is the prototype of the famous Bear Bryant lineman.

The touch freshman from Arvin, California, has speed, instinct, and strength. He also loves the game and would come and play in your backyard with about five minutes notice.

Mack Gilchrist, a freshman from Campbell, Ohio is in the same category. Gilchrist was put at defensive end in the second game because of injuries, and now there is no need to move him.

At the other end the NSU defense has gone with experience. Frank Provensal, a junior from Bakersfield JC, is the Rebels defensive captain, and with good reason.

Provensal missed the USF game with a knee injury and his replacement, Dave Bittel - another Bakersfield transfer - spent all afternoon with his arms wrapped around the quarterback.

Layton Duer, the 'mad-dog' middle guard, in addition to blocking up the middle with his 6', 205 lb. frame, has broken through several times to dump the quarterback for huge losses.

The Rebels linebackers have also played a major role in the defensive battle. Lee Wright, with two years of JC ball, and Bill Myers, with one, have played their positions with great skill and have more than made up for any mistakes or breakdowns by the front four.

Nevada Star Finds Home With NSU

By Dominic Clark

Just as every team has its unsung hero, so does every coaching staff. And Nevada Southern is no exception.

Defensive line coach Doug Carder has helped to mold one of the finest defensive lines in Small College Football today. Yet when NSU football is brought up in conversation nary a word is spoken about the ex-University of Nevada star.

Born and raised in Oakland, California, Carder attended McLane High School in Fresno, and graduated in 1962 as an All-League guard and All-League wrestler.

He then went to Foothill JC, Los Altos, for two years and repeated his high school feat in the always rough Golden Gate Conference.

Transferring to Reno in 1964, Carder enjoyed two of his most productive years. With the Wolfpack he was one of the best defensive players ever to play on the Reno Team. In his senior year he made the first team Far West Conference defensive team. Playing middle guard and line-

Frats Capture Wins 'Murals Commence

Sunday, Sept. 29 started the 1968 intramural flag football season. A tie, a forfeit, a shutout, an extremely close game, and a romp, highlighted the first day of play.

In independent action, Kappa Sigma II and the Crimson Tide struggled to a 13-13 tie, and The Mean, Fat, Tough Guys forfeited to Chi Sigma Chi II.

KE II scored first in both halves, but had to settle for a tie with the Tide. Behind 13-7 with less than two minutes left, Chris Zochol hit Murray Colton with a 15 yd. flare pass good for a score.

The PAT failed and a desperation pass by Sig quarterback Mike Rowe was picked off by Elburt Miller to end the game.

Any faculty or staff member wishing to play for the Toughies is urged to contact Ken Lipner, School of Business, ext. 241.

In fraternal play Alpha Tau Omega whitewashed Alpha Epsilon Pi 27-0, scoring all their points in the first half.

Ernie Delmonico, Jim Tener, and Tom Friestad combined to score all of Kappa Sigma's points in their 13-7 victory over Delta Sigma Phi. After tallying early in the game, KE was held scoreless the entire second half. Late in the contest, Russ Masek hit paydirt for Delta Sigma.

Chi Sigma Chi kept on in its winning ways by Bombing Tau Kappa Epsilon 42-2. Mike Rordan was good for seven and Russ Sanserino hit for 14 as the Sigs rolled to their seventh straight victory over a two year period.

backer, Carder was the 'pack's defensive captain.

After his senior season, Coach Carder served a hitch in the National Guard and graduated from NSU last June.

Married, his wife Sherry is a student at student at Nevada Southern. Carder, along with his many duties as a Rebel Coach, is working for his Masters.
