SIERRA CLUB TO MEET FRIDAY TO SET ASIDE ESCALANTE CANYON

The Las Vegas Group of the Sierra Club will meet on February 27 at 8:00 p.m. on the UNLV campus.

Mr. Jack McLellan of the Sierra Club's Uinta Chapter in Salt Lake will describe a proposal to set aside the Escalante Canyons area of southern Utah as a wilderness area.

Preservation of the Escalante in its wilderness state is especially important, since the Escalante area is the last unspoiled remnant of the scenic splendor drowned by the construction of Glen Canyon Dam and the filling of Lake Powell.

Determined public action is urgently needed to save the area, which is threatened by the proposed construction of a major highway by the Utah State Highway Commission. The highway would bisect the area and would irreparably damage the Escalante's beauty, in Mr. McLellan will discuss the impact of highway construction on the wilderness and will present slides of the Escalante Canyons and the Waterpocket Fold. The public is invited.

BUDGET REPORT GIVEN

A budget report was given by Johnny Clark, CSUN Treasurer, recently at an Executive Committee meeting.

CSUN expected to receive from student fees for the year, $125,000. They expected $69,000 for the first semester and 55,000 for second semester. It is expected that they will receive less than 55,000 due to a decrease in enrollment. Exact figures from Reno will not be available for about five weeks.

CSUN still must pay $5,000 to the Athletic Department for the first semester, 5000 to be returned to the Student Union Fund to be used for equipment for the Radio Station, 4000 to Dr. Paul Harris for the Fine Arts Festival and 2500 to the Black Studies program. Also, 22,500 must go to the Athletic Department for second semester.

There will then be $16,000 left from the 55,000 for the fulfillment of all budgets for the second semester.

In June, if 55,000 is received from second semester fees, there will be a deficit of 1,000. This money will be made up by cutting of budgets. If 55,000 is not received, more budgets will have to be cut to make up the deficit.

Latin American Expert To Speak At UNLV

Miss Betty Richardson, an authority on Latin America, will be speaking at UNLV, Tuesday, March 3.

She will speak at 1 p.m. in The Kitchen and at 8 p.m. in one of the lounges on the second floor of the Student Union.

She is prepared to speak on such topics as: 'Latin America--our next Vietnam?' 'Rich Countries/Poor Countries' and 'Key Issues facing the United Nations.'

Miss Richardson was born in 1916 in England and became a U.S. citizen in 1962. She was educated in foreign languages with emphasis on Spanish.

She worked in the field of International law with the Nuremberg Trials and International Bar Association in New York, 1949-50.

Recently, she was Director for Latin America and Caribbean programs for the Church World Service.

Since 1967, she worked for the American Friends Service Committee at the Quaker United Nations Program with special emphasis on Latin American issues.

During June, 1969, Miss Richardson went to Cuba with passport validation from the U.S. State Department. That trip made a powerful impression on her because she was able to gain first-hand information, using Spanish fluently during her stay.

She is scheduled to spend part of February visiting Guatemala in effort to gain better information on current developments there and in the rest of Latin America.

The United Nations is another topic that Miss Richardson is versed on. She worked on various UN topics and has had first-hand contact with most of the delegations to the UN.

Both lectures are free to the students and public.

CEVETTE PRESENTS CASE FOR FRAT ROW

Last Wednesday, CSUN President John Cevette presented a case for the establishment of a Fraternity and Sorority Row for the University of Nevada, Las Vegas campus. Cevette said 'There is a definite need for on-campus housing to provide the natural enthusiasm that surrounds the resident campus. One shape that this housing must take is in the Greek Row concept.' In the ten minute presentation Cevette pointed out the need for concrete action, on the part of administrators for the estimate of this type of housing.

Dr. Donald Baepler, Vice-President for Academic Affairs, noted that the probable first step would involve a test case for the Attorney General's office in Carson City to determine the legality of Greek housing on the University campus.

Dr. Roman Zorn urged further study that would provide a broader base for decision making. He commented that there were many unknowns at the present time which would have to be carefully studied. Much would depend on the financial situations of individual houses and their readiness to construct their houses.

Two possible locations discussed by the committee were a large section marked for the development of student housing adjacent to the present Tonopah Hall and area that may be suitable by the eventual disposition of the proposed Swenson Avenue which as presently planned, will divide the campus and run parallel to Paradise Road.

Cevette commented that he would establish an ad hoc committee composed from each of the fraternities and sororities to generate the information needed and hoped that the report reach completion by the end of April.

He additionally noted that this project could only reach a successful end if there was a concerted effort. He added that he hoped the Interfraternity Council and Panhellenic will act as the catalyst.

UNIV. SYMPHONY HOLDS CONCERT

On Sunday, March 1, students and faculty will have the opportunity of hearing a concert played by the University Chamber Symphony under the direction of conductor, Prof. Keith Moon.

For this coming concert, Prof. Moon has chosen to play Schubert's Unfinished Symphony, the Bach Brandenburg Concerto No. 3, the Octet for Wind Instruments by Hindemith, and the Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 15 (K. 450) by Mozart. Soloist for the Mozart Concerto will be Dr. Robert Steinbauer, Professor of Music.

The performance will take place in the Moyer Student Union Ballroom at 2:00 p.m. It is sponsored jointly by the University Musical Society, The Musicians Performance Trust Fund through the cooperation of Local 369 of the Musicians Protective Union, and the Nevada Council on the Arts. There will be no charge for admission.

CINEMA X FLICKS

Cinema X is presenting another set of fine films on Wednesday, March 4 at 8:30 p.m. in SSI03.

One of the films is NAZARIN by Luis Brumel. This is a 1958 feature.

This is a stunningly photographed story of disenchantment, the film reflects what Brumel once said about his work: 'To show with a cold white eye what they have done here on earth in the name of God.'

It's Happening Again

By Harold Coskey

Let's build a fine arts complex! Take a building and cut out classrooms because they are expensive. Also take out needed office space because we can't afford them. Now cut the funds and stall the completion of the building because of incompetence. Congratulations, you can now become a member of either the Board of Regents or the State Planning Board.

Not everyone could manage to foul up the starting of our new complex as these people have! They can't get funds together, and they can't let the building out for bids from contractors, so it should now permit fifteen months to complete construction and allow eight extra months because a campus building has never been completed on time. If you now total the time to completion, you might be able to use the Performing Arts Center in 1973. First predictions anticipated completion in 1971. We seem to need twice as many classrooms and instructors now, what will we need in 1973?

The beautiful Regents have decided, also, that landscaping and parking for this campus is a top priority matter to be covered by a special fund taken from the capital improvement fund. This fund, according to the current class catalog, to be used to pay for buildings, and buildings are a thing of great importance to us in that we don't have enough. Why do we need lawns when we have crowded classrooms? Why pave parking space when the campus is understaffed in comparison to the student ratio? Why plant trees when the laboratories are poorly equipped? Why pour asphalt when buildings are in need of repair? Why plant shrubbery when there aren't enough desks or other supplies?

I do believe that more, and improved, parking is necessary, however not a priority. I believe that this campus must move ahead in achieving a better system of education. Nowadays, good quality education costs money for, again, necessary equipment, supplies, staff and classrooms. A well outfitted university is conductive to a better education.

There must be some way to convince the administrators and Regents and Legislators that they are destroying our chances for a decent education. They must learn that their fool politics and string manipulations are quickly pulling this state university right into the ground.

THE V.-C.

By John & Earl

On the 17th of Feb. at the Faculty Senate meeting, the Student Body government endorsed a teach-in to be held at a site not yet determined. The motion made at the Faculty Senate meeting was to have the faculty dismiss their classes here on campus and then 're-convene' their classes at the site of the teach-in.

The theme of the proposed teach-in is Environmental Control. While we of the Veterans Club realize that the topic of Environmental Control is one of utmost importance to all of us, it should not be given prime consideration to us as students.

Our mission as students of UNLV is to get an education, and in order to do that we must attend class.

The Veterans Club views the past and proposed future class dismissals as a way for the teachers to legitimately cut their own classes.

Incidentally, I wonder if the Student Body government made any provision in their endorsement of the teach-in to re-imburse the students who honestly want to attend classes on the day of the teach-in for their lost classroom time, or if they made provision for transportation to the site of the teach-in for those who want to participate in the activities.

The question we now ask is, how can we attend classes if the teachers have dismissed them?

The faculty has the privilege of dismissing classes at their discretion. However, the students themselves, because of the 'no cut' policy at UNLV have no choice as to whether they shall attend classes.

Sellers Feels Affinity With Idealistic Hero

Ever since he first read Terry Southern's novel, Peter Sellers felt a deep affinity with the eccentric idealistic hero of the 'The Magic Christian' which opens Wed. Feb. 25 at the Huntridge theatre.

As a vehicle for Sellers' acclaimed comedy talent, the satirical novel is certainly an inspired choice. This also can be said of the casting of Ringo Starr as Sellers adopted son in the Commonwealth United release.

From a position of great wealth and social privilege, Sellers, as the book's Sir Guy, surveys a world seething with materialistic values and sees it as his solemn duty to attack them head-on with Starr as his heir and accomplice.

'Sir Guy's standpoint is irreverent but also deeply human,' says Sellers. 'He may be anti-society but he is also pro-humanity.'

Peter Sellers was born in Southsea, England into a family bulging with show business talent. There were no less than eight uncles in the business as stage producers at one time. His mother, Agnes Marks, was a variety artist and his father, William Sellers, a musician. His grandmother introduced musical revue to Britain at the turn of the century. In fact, Sellers can trace his ancestry back to the 18th Century barefist champion of England, Daniel Mendoza, and the Victorian Prime Minister Benjamin Disraeli.

He began his career in the Royal Air Force by doing impressions at camp concerts in India during the war. Back home after the war ended, Sellers tried his luck in the professional theatre. After many ups and downs he was given a job at London's Windmill Theatre, discovery point for many future British stars.

Already a prodigious mimic, he got his first radio assignment by calling up a BBC producer on the telephone using the 'borrowed' voices of two well-established performers to recommend him.

He appeared in the first broadcast of 'The Goon Show' in 1949, a pioneer of madcap comedy shows which ran for seven years on London radio. Sellers made rapid strides from then on appearing in 1954 at the London Palladium and in a Royal Command Variety Performance.

Seller's first film was a long-forgotten one released in 1950 called 'Let's Go Crazy,' now a collector's item. He played five roles including a take-off on Groucho Marx. In 'The Ladykillers' he played a dim-witted crook opposite Alec Guinness, the first significant screen break for Sellers.

Just as 'The Goon Show' pioneered a new form of radio humor, so on television Peter Sellers was the originator and star of brilliant ITV comedy shows--'The Idiot Weekly,' 'A Show Called Fred,' 'Son of Fred,' and 'Yes, It's the Cathode Ray Tube Show.' Around this time he also made a top-selling LP disc, 'The screen performance as the shop steward in 'I'm All Right, Jack.' He went on to make, with his 'Goon' cohort Spike Milligan, an eleven minute short called 'The Running, Jumping and Standing Still Film.' Although produced purely for fun, the picture captured four international awards.

After such successes as 'The Mouse That Roared,' 'Two Way Stretch,' and 'Never Let Go' (a strictly unfunny part of a callous car salesman), Sellers starred opposite Sophia Loren in 'The Millionairess.' The latter led to their Silver Disc-winning LP, 'Peter and Sophia.'

Sellers directed and starred in 'Mr. Topaz,' in 1960 for 20th Century Fox. It was not a commercial success but the film did have a large number of unswerving admirers. The next few years saw him starring in 'Lolita,' 'Only Two Can Play,' 'Waltz of the Toreadors,' 'The Dock Brief,' 'The Wrong Arm of the Law,' 'Heavens Above,' and the bunglin Inspector Clouseau in 'The Pink Panther.'

Sellers astonished even his fans with a three-way display of virtuosity in 'Dr. Strangelove' -or- 'How I Learned To Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb.' Next came 'The World of Henry Orient,' 'A Shot In The Dark,' and Dickens' Scrooge in a television film, 'A Carol for Another Christmas.'

'What's New, Pussycat?,' 'After The Fox,' 'The Wrong Box,' 'Casino Royale,' 'The Bobo,' and his two most recent films, 'The Party,' and 'I Love You, Alice B. Toklas,' bring the dazzling portrait gallery up-to-date.

The many official accolades to come his way include Best British Actor (British Film Academy) Best Film Actor (British Variety Club), and Best Actor (San Sebastian Festival, 1962).

SIR GUY GRAND---That's the role played by Peter Sellers in the Commonwealth United comedy, 'The Magic Christian' co-starring Ringo Starr. Ever since he read the satirical novel by Terry Southern, Sellers wanted to play the role of the eccentric idealist hero on the screen. Now playing at the Huntridge Theatre.

FSP BEING STUDIED BY UNLV STUDENTS

A number of students, townspeople, and physicists at The University of Nevada, Las Vegas are carrying out work in FSP (Finite Sensory Perception).

According to Dr. Harry Fechter, research is being carried out to determine if there is really any reason for talking about Extra Sensory Perception.

Because for the first time in the history of man we have extremely sensitive detectors operating at the quantum limit, there is reason to believe that a scientific attack on FSP may now yield valuable new results.

Is the rarity of ESP phenomena because transmission depends on brain codes which, like fingerprints, are different for different individuals? If so, 'cracking the code' could allow broad communication and lead to exciting discoveries about the mind.

Because even the basic phenomenology is ill-defined, the department of physics would like to invite interested and knowledgeable persons to attend and contribute to the regular weekly meeting on Tuesday, 9:00 a.m., Science Tech. Building, Room 203.

Of the four known forces in the universe, Nuclear, Electromagnetic, Leptonic, and Gravitational, only the Electromagnetic interaction has the strength and range to be a logical contender for FSP transmission. If there is a new force, which seems doubtful, there must be established clearly the fundamental phenomenology, without which the subject cannot move into the stage of clear demonstration, controlled experiment, and productive theory.

WHO IN CSUN SIGNS AWAY YOUR MONEY?

Johnny J. Clark
CSUN TREASURER

If you are wondering what has happened to your CSUN money, first of all, I want to thank all of you for my new car, color TV, and sail boat.

It takes two of the following names to sign a CSUN check; Mr. Neumann, an accounting professor and the business manager of CSUN; John Cevette, President of CSUN; and myself, CSUN treasurer.

People ask me how sharp Mr. Neumann and John Cevette are. Well, one time I saw Mr. Neumann count to fifteen and he had to take his shoes off to do it.

Mr. Neumann is so cheap that he makes Schrooge look like a philanthropist. Mr. Neumann is the only person in Las Vegas that has his own reserved seat for the Free Breakfast at the Bonanza Hotel.

Mr. Neumann has been known to eat students alive for asking for money from CSUN. His family motto, over his dining table, is 'Eat or be eaten.' One time, for not getting a 20¢ discount on a bill, Mr. Neumann bit one of my toes off and at the time I was wearing shoes.

The Army Reserve Searchlight Unit on Sahara wants to use the top of Mr. Neumann's head for a spotlight. The top of his head is so bright it has been known to blind people a hundred yards away at NIGHT. Some people think that the top of his head is made of copper and he uses Brasso on it.

Then there is Mr. Cevette. His motto is 'If you don't have it, spend it.' It did take Mr. Cevette a long time to learn how to handle money. In fact, it took him three weeks to learn how to sign his name. I've got to admit he does make a pretty good X.

Mr. Neumann told Mr. Cevette and me about the way we handle money, 'If brains were made of water, we'd be having a drought.'

AIR FORCE NEEDS COLLEGE GRADS

Master Sergeant Roy D. Lott, Las Vegas Air Force Representative announced today that due to the vast technological advancement in today's Air Force, the Air Force is in desperate need of college graduates for pilot and navigator training.

The qualifications for becoming an officer in the Air Force are: (A) have a baccalaureate degree, (B) be a citizen of the United States, (C) be in sound physical condition, (D) pass the Air Force Officer Qualifications Test, and (E) be between 20 1/2 and 26 1/2 years of age.

These jobs offer excellent career opportunities for the eligible applicant with scheduled promotions and pay advancement.

Those desiring more information are encouraged to telephone MSGT Roy Lott, 385-6213, 301 E. Stewart St., Room 204, Las Vegas, Nevada.

Any student with the book, 'Eastman's Guide to the Novel,' who wishes to sell or loan it should contact the Humanities Office, Interim Office Building, 177, Ext. 243.

UNA-USA BOOSTS 80 STUDENTS

The United Nations Association of the United States of America has formed on the campus of UNLV and presently boasts a student membership of approximately 80.

The Las Vegas Junior Chamber of Commerce, the League of Women Voters and the Confederated Students of the University of Nevada, LV have endorsed the association.

Activities of the UNA include: 1) Through the Speakers' Program, International leaders and UN Representatives will be engaged to provide information and knowledge of international organizations and international politics.

2) The International Headquarters will be the source of informative audio-visual materials, such as film slides.

3) The local chapter of the UNA-USA will contribute to the support of the Model UN program and its annual meeting in the West Coast region.

4) All activities will culminate each year in a UN Day Program made possible by an interested and informed membership under the direction of a UN Day Committee.

Anyone interested in joining the association should contact Dr. Tae Y. Nam, political science, in SS124 before March 8.

On March 8, UNA will hold their organizational meeting. At this meeting, the officers for the association will be elected.

BEHIND THE WALL

BY alissa

On the second floor of the Student Union building behind the ballroom sits a room. One might think that a storage room or perhaps a broiler room lies behind this speckled green wall. However there are those who know what happens in this room, known as The Kitchen Behind the Wall, four nights a week.

The Kitchen Behind the Wall is more commonly known as the Kitchen. It was funded by CSUN and founded by a group of students for you the students of UNLV. The idea behind the Kitchen was to have a coffee house with a relaxing atmosphere.

The Kitchen was established so that you the students would have a place to go, a place to meet other students, and a place to be entertained.

The Kitchen Behind The Wall is a gathering place. It is a place to meet people and exchange ideas. The Kitchen has a relaxing atmosphere and has a wide variety of entertainment. The Kitchen is structured so that as part of the audience you can take part in the entertainment provided by diffe-

LAMBDA CHI FRAT FAST GROWING

Lambda Chi Alpha, the newest and fastest growing fraternity on the UNLV campus, has accepted the challenge of existing as a relevant organization in the university community by initiating an exciting educational program under which young men are accepted as 'associate brothers', thereby eliminating the 'tyranny of the pledgeship'. By committing itself to such a program, the Brotherhood endeavors to keep astride the constant challenge for change which has been threatening the greek system for years.

In support of progress and growth, Lambda Chi has recently elected its new officers. The group includes: President, Mark Michael; Vice President, Pat Boyle; Secretary, Myron Mendelow; Treasurer, Michael Rishwain; Educator, Tom Viner; Social Chairman, Bob Swigan; Ritualist, Steve Van Tuyl; Scholarship Chairman, Tom Summers; and Rush Chairman, Al Arata, who also cares for the children of the St. Jude's Ranch in Boulder City.

ARE YOU GOING TO MED SCHOOL?

Students applying for admission to medical colleges in the fall of 1971 are urged to take the Medical College Admission Test at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas.

The examination, designed to measure general academic ability and scientific knowledge of the candidate, will be administered May 2 and Oct. 17 in Room 103 of the UNLV Social Sciences building.

Applications, which must be returned with a $20 registration fee at least two weeks prior to the testing date, may be obtained in the Student Personnel Offices at UNLV.

Dr. Ben Owens, UNLV director of counseling and testing, said forms should be secured early. There will be no guaranteed acceptance after announcement dead lines, he added.

rent performers. It is further designed so that any student who has a desire to share his talents with others can do so. The Kitchen was established so that you the students could express your ideas and opinions, as well as your talents.

The Kitchen Behind the Wall provides entertainment to the students for the price of a cup of coffee or tea. This entertainment varies from folk music, rock and jazz to oral interps, plays and comedy skits.

For those of you who have not yet been there, do come. You will be greatly surprised. We guarantee you that you will have an evening such as that you have never experienced. You will probably make new friends and see how talented our students are.

THE SPOILER-REBS UPSET BRONCOS

Even if the Rebels never win another game, that beautiful feeling of exhilaration will last until some time to come.

Never have an five members of the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, basketball team looked like they belonged together as they did Thursday night and never has there been such a masterful job of coaching in the last seconds at the Convention Center.

They did it almost perfectly, from the 50 per cent shooting, to the few turnovers and finally that beautiful soft jumper from the top of the key by Bruce Chapman with seven seconds left that gave the Rebels a 72-70 upset victory over the University of Santa Clara.

The kingpins of the West Coast Athletic Conference came into the Convention Center with a 7-1 conference record and great respect for the Rebels who, although they were 5-4 in the league, hadn't lost a conference game on their home court.

For a while it looked as if that string would be broken, but although down by as much as 17 points UNLV never gave up, making two exciting comebacks to finally pull it out in the closing minute of play.

The loss moved the Broncos back into a tie for first place with Pacific, which barely got by Loyola 78-77 on the Tigers' own court Thursday night. Both clubs are 7-2 now.

The Broncos are 17-4 overall, all their losses coming on the road.

Coach Rolland Todd, whose call for the stall paid off, leaped from the bench and pounded the floor with enthusiasm with each shot that dropped for the Rebels.

And those shots were dropping. The Rebels made one of those rare appearances with 50 per cent shooting while the Broncos suffered through 39 per cent. Most of the missed Santa Clara attempts were those under the bucket, but the Rebel defense was tough in a very physical game.

The Broncos, who came into the game leading in five of six areas of team statistics in the league, received even more of a shock than Pacific when the Rebels upset the Stockton, Calif., team two weeks ago. In that one, the Rebels held the advantage throughout but against the Broncos, it was so much more of a tremendous effort, coming from behind against such a good ball club.

Dennis Awtrey, the 6-10 Bronco center who came into the affair hitting over 20 points a game, picked up 14 in the first half to lead his team to a 44-35 halftime margin. But after he hit from underneath to open second-half play, he didn't get another point the rest of the game, winding up with 16.

That was the story. The Rebel front line, Chapman, Cliff Findlay, and Odie Allison, kept things so bottled up under there that the Broncos couldn't maneuver. Even 6-5 forward Ralph Ogden, another 20-point a game performer, fell down in the second half, winding up with 19 points after hitting 13 the first 20 minutes.

Meanwhile, UNLV, although apparently having its problems getting close against the sturdy Bronco forward wall, displayed the most patience it's shown all year. The Rebels tossed up very few bad shots and even those went in.

All the Rebels took turns. After falling behind 6-0 in the first two minutes, Allison broke the ice with a bucket and then Findlay followed a short time later.

BRUCE CHAPMAN'S UNLV'S HERO

By Alan Laythorpe
SUN Sports Editor

Reprinted from the SUN

Bruce Chapman connected on a spinning 12-foot jumper with six seconds left on the clock Thursday night to give the desperately fighting UNLV Rebels a heart-stopping 72-70 West Coast Athletic Conference victory over Santa Clara before a near-packed house at the Convention Center.

The 4,700 fans in attendance brought down the rafters on Chapman's deadly shot which gave the Rebels a 6-4 WCAC record compared to Santa Clara's 7-2, and put the locals right back into the title chase.

The winning basket by Chapman climaxed a mad, uphill struggle in which the Rebels practically died on their feet in the first half but then came back to whip the Broncos with some daring play and clever strategy.

With four of their big guns--Cliff Findlay, Odie Allison, Al Clise and Chapman--in foul trouble with four personals, coach Rolland Todd had his team go into a stall with just over six minutes remaining and his team down 64-61.

Chapman who led all scorers with 21 points hit a free throw but Mart Peterson, the Broncos' 6-9 soph star, made it 66-62. Chapman got that back and Lou Small's gift shot put the Rebels within one at 66-65.

The stall continued but nearly backfired as Terry Bochte swiped a pass and rolled in for a layup and the Broncos again led 68-65.

UNLV just didn't roll over and play dead. It was Findlay, battling hard underneath, with a lay-up to again make it a one-point affair.

Chapman, everyone's hero, ripped in the crucial play of the game right here. A three-pointer which gave the host team a 70-68 and the Rebels were never to be headed again.

Peterson tied it with 40 seconds left on that fast-vanishing clock to set up Chapman's final heroics.

Until that point in the game it looked as if the Broncos were always going to manage to pull out that little bit extra.

They started out like gangbusters, rolling to a 6-0 lead, and midway through the first half were in the driver's seat 15-14.

'When are you going to wake up,' Bronco coach Dick Garibaldi was heard hollering at his team during a quick timeout. 'Feed (Dennis Awtrey).'

But feeding Awtrey was no easy task.

The towering 6-10 senior was not up to par for two reasons.

A painfully swollen knee hampered him and so did the effective two-man job by Chapman and Findlay.

Still something went wrong with the Rebels as the Broncos reeled off nine quick points before a reply for a 24-16 edge. They stretched it, and stretched it and stretched it and with three minutes remaining in the half led 41-22, thanks to Awtrey, Ralph Ogden and Peterson's fine shooting.

The Rebels came back!

Ten in a row they ran in with Chapman, Small, Allison and Al Clise gunning the shots home. It was suddenly, 41-32.

At intermission Santa Clara led 44-35 and really looked a winner.

Somebody forgot to tell UNLV.

Clise, playing a heckuva game, led a rally and then that fellow Chapman again went into action. His shot cut the margin to 52-51. Small gave the Rebs their first lead at 53-52.

It was tough from then on to the bitter end.

Anthro Election

At a meeting recently of the Anthropology majors, a number of people were nominated for offices.

The nominees are: Charles Sedgwick, Nancy Jackson, Steve Hayden, Randy Upton, LaRae Bringhurst and Dianne Aness.

During the next week an election will be held through the Anthropology-Sociology department to elect four of these students as representatives. The elected four will then sit in on faculty meetings and will participate in the affairs of the department.

A ballot box will be set up in the anthropology-sociology department and you will go there to cast your vote.

MOMENTUM CONTINUES REBS ROLL OVER USF

By Don Chase
R-J Sports Writer

Reprinted from the R-J

Those Rebel fans looking for a team letdown after that big upset victory over Santa Clara Thursday night were happily relieved Saturday when the University of Nevada, Las Vegas rolled easily over the University of San Francisco, 109-98, at the Convention Center.

The victory kept alive the Rebels' unbeaten string in West Coast Athletic Conference play at the Convention Center, boosting their record to 15-7 overall and 7-4 in league play. The Rebels' sixth conference win in as many games at home lifted them into third place, replacing the Dons who dropped to 12-10 overall and 6-4 in the conference.

Nothing else but the word 'fantastic' can describe the Rebel shooting and defensive work in the first half that started them on their way to one of the easiest league wins, and although the Dons made a strong effort in the second half, UNLV proved just too tough to overcome.

The Rebels, who led 51-42 at halftime thanks to 61 per cent shooting from the floor and rugged work under the boards, steadily pulled away and were ahead by 19 points with eight minutes to go, but USF came back.

That lead was too much, though, and the closest the Dons could come was nine points in the last minute.

A large group of USF alumni present in the almost full Convention Center just couldn't believe the Dons were playing the same Rebel team that fell victim to the USF club in San Francisco last month. But the Rebels have already made it clear that when they're home, look out.

The chief engineers of the Saturday night onslaught were Odis Allison and Lou Small, the two newcomers to the Rebels this year. They certainly showed more than ever that coach Rolland Todd's efforts to recruit them were not wasted.

Allison, the team's leading scorer, ripped the USF defense in the first half for 18 points. He did it with almost every shot in the book, the driving layups, twisting shots in traffic around the key and some breathtaking ones from the far reaches.

During a two-minute period in the early stages of the game, Allison poured through eight straight Rebel points that got the Las Vegas started on their way. Up until that time it was a see-saw affair with both teams scoring quickly each time they got the ball.

The Rebels grabbed their biggest lead of the first half when Cliff Findlay took a long down-court pass from Robert Riley. The 6-8 Rebel center made a great shot underneath to give UNLV a 51-38 edge with 2:24 left.

But then USF guard John Hancock hit from outside and forward Ron Centerwall pumped from the side in the closing minute for the 51-42 halftime score.

In addition to the 61 per cent shooting in that first 20 minutes, some fine defensive work underneath by the Rebel front line kept USF's sensational center Pete Cross from doing any damage.

Cross, the third leading rebounder in the country with 18 a game, and the WCAC leader with 20, was only able to take six off the boards in the first half. And a 20-point a game shooter going into the affair, he was held to just five points. Findlay, Chapman and the rest of the ever-hustling defense just wouldn't let him move around.

However, the Cross story was different the second half. In the first six minutes he muscled his way under for eight points and added three on the foul line. The 6-9 senior, who led the league in scoring and rebounding last year, also started to toughen up in the rebounding department.

Cross and sophomore reserve Pat Loushin, a 6-7 forward, made quite a difference. In the first four minutes Cross had three baskets and Loushin two to bring the Dons back to within six at 58-52.

But Small, Allison and the others went back to work. Small, who like Allison was hitting with everything, muscled one under and Allison followed seconds later on the fast break to make it 62-52 with 16:17 left in the game.

Midway through the half the Dons cut the lead to five at 69-64 on two straight baskets by forward Johnny Burks and a three-point play by Loushin but then Small popped one of his favorite shots from the top of the circle and Chapman scored on the fast break to give the Rebels breathing room and cut a little more into the USF spirit.

In the last 10 minutes the Dons began making too many turnovers against the pressing Rebel defense and the local cagers didn't let an opportunity slip by.

In a one-minute period, Findlay scored on the fast break, new starting guard Al Clise sank a free shot, Small converted a three-pointer and Chapman hit a short jumper to make it 81-66 with a little over nine minutes left.

Cross scored 12 straight USF points over the next three minutes but the Rebels kept pace until a free throw by Findlay with 6:28 left gave the Rebels their widest margin at 91-72.

They coasted the rest of the way. Small wound up as the Rebels' top scorer of the evening with 29 points but Allison was right behind with 28. Chapman and Findlay both connected for 14.

Cross, however, led all scorers. Although he hit only five in the first half, he managed to finish the game with 32 points and put away 21 rebounds. Centerwall picked up another 21 for the Dons.

TOP MEN

Here are two of the 24 men out for track this year. According to coach Gordon Edwards, they will definitely be among our top point scorers.

DOUG CLARKE, right, a sophomore, majoring in biology holds the University record in the mile with a 4:36 time. Doug expects to run under 4:25 this season. He also expects to break the two mile record of 10:42 set by J. Whipple in 1966. This is especially outstanding in that most people can't run two blocks. Clarke was also the outstanding runner on the 1969 cross country team.

BILL 'PARNELLI STRIDER' Jones, left, one of the best, it not the best, runners and hurdlers to come from UNLV, is majoring in Physical Education and holds the University record for the 440, 49.8, and the 440 Intermediate hurdles--53.5. He expects to run the latter in 51.5 this season. This would rank him in the top ten nationally. Last year Bill set the meet and stadium records at the Riverside Relays in the Intermediate hurdles as well as the mile. Other events in which he does exceptionally well are: the 440 relay and the mile relay.

Utah Strikes Early To Kill Rebs

Reprinted from the R-J

Striking early, the University of Utah Redskins scored a 8-2 victory over the University of Nevada, Las Vegas baseballers here Saturday afternoon.

The winners jumped off to a 1-0 lead in the first frame, picked up two more runs in the second and 'iced' the contest in the third frame with a four-run outburst. They added their final tally in the ninth.

Meanwhile the Rebels were held at bay by the combined pitching of Danny Prock and John Landuras. Prock, the starter, worked five innings and gave up but one hit and blanked the locals in his stint. Landuras was touched up for three hits and two runs in four innings.

The big blow for the winners was a long home run off the bat of catcher Warren Tetley, but outfielder Dee Russell was the big man with the stick. He blasted out three safeties, one a double, in five tries.

Rebel starting pitcher Jeff Dick was charged with the loss. He was touched up for five runs all earned.

Golfers Split Matches

Reprinted from the R-J

Despite wind and frizzle conditions the University of Nevada, Las Vegas golf team split two matches Saturday to wind up a two-day round robin play with the University of California at Riverside and Utah.

UNLV, now 2-2 for the season, defeated Utah, 23-14, but lost to UCR, 23-13, at the Dunes Country Club course. In the other Saturday match Utah topped UCR, 19-17.

Steve Turner shot a 73 and a 145 two-day total to lead the Rebels, while Gary Turner (not related), came in with a 76 Saturday.

Sporting a 72 for both days Gary McCord of UCR took medalist honors with a 144 total. UCR finished the two-day affair with a 3-1 mark, while Utah finished with a 1-3.
