REMEMBER ?

That's it by Sal Eugene

Since this is the last issue of the Rebel Yell, and possibly the last edition of the year, I have decided to find out just how many of you have actually been paying attention to my column. Thusly, I will now administer my final exam. And I warn you, I will not tolerate cheating.

- 1) Which of these men is a favorite of the college crowd?
  - A) Spiro Agnew
  - B) Ronald Reagan
  - C) S.I. Hyakawa
  - D) Roman Zorn
- 2) Which phrase is most used by the Vice-President?
  - A) fat "Jap"
  - B) Polak
  - C) Impudent snobs
  - D) IX@#$$%&*!!
- 3) Which campaign promise has Nixon best fulfilled?
  - A) ending the war
  - B) avoiding recession
  - C) ending the draft
  - D) none of these
- 4) What happened on Earth Day at UNLV?
  - A) collecting of trash
  - B) meaningful legal action
  - C) nothing
  - D) writing on the walls of bldgs.
- 5) What happened at UNLV during the anti-war strike?
  - A) massive rallies
  - B) march to the Boulevard
  - C) boycotting classes
  - D) staying at home
- 6) Why don't UNLV students participate?
  - A) apathy
  - B) more apathy
  - C) extreme apathy
  - D) the entire campus belongs to the Young Republicans Club
- 7) Why was the parade of Virgins cancelled at Homecoming?
  - A) no parade was scheduled
  - B) one got sick and the other wouldn't march alone
  - C) APATHY
  - D) Greeks united

And now for the grade. If you think that you answered all of them correctly, then you may receive an "A." If you feel slightly insecure about the whole thing, then read the test over again until you get the drift.

In conclusion, I would like to make one final plea to all instructors: Remember, only you can prevent campus fires.

I would like to also mumble something obscene in Italian, but, out of respect for this higher institution of whatever, I will post my remarks in German lettering on the door of my neighborhood church.

PEACE.

REVOLUTION?

There is a new definition being written into the pages of the dictionaries. It's a new definition of revolution. It reads: active resistance expressed by the people toward their government when that government no longer pays heed to the will of the governed. Admittedly it is a rather broad definition. It makes no reference to violence or non-violence; it makes no reference to governors or to forms of government. It does, on the other hand, express a fundamental premise of democratic government: that it must express the will of the people—all the people. Is a government expressing the will of the people when it sends troops into Cambodia? when it shoots six blacks to death? when it calls Justice Douglas' integrity into question for supporting active resistance to oppression? when it searches every ticket holder who goes to a rock concert in Jean? when it limits public opinion to a minimum at a Clark County School Board meeting? What has happened to the will of the people?

Agnew seems to think (if such a word is justifiable) that it is just a "spring lark" with no meaning. Nixon seems to think that it lies dormant in the silent pseudo-majority. Others seem to think that it lies in the halls of Congress. But Doesn't the will of the people lie in the people?!!!!

The new revolution is here; and it's here to change, to free, and to express. It doesn't have a bandwagon or a bureaucratic hierarchy. It is the will of the people, and, after all is said and done, isn't that what counts?

FREE FRENCH FILMS

Alliance Francaise will again present free French films the 21st of May, 1970 in SS116 at 8:30 p.m. Films to be shown are La Corse, an interesting travelogue on Corsica, the birthplace of Napoleon; Apollinaire, a study of the poet Guillaume Apollinaire; and Une Journee a la Comedie Francaise a behind-the-scenes tour of the world famous Comedie Francaise.

All students are welcome, whether of French; history, drama or any other subject of the same interests.

This issue of the Rebel Yell, perhaps the last, can finally be used as the forum it was originally intended to be. All year long the students of this university have had to endure the cliché-ridden rantings of Mac Macdonald and the 'Old Man River' approach of Earl and Ed. They did endure and in doing so staked a commitment to new policies of action at UNLV.

This year saw three moratoriums, Earth Day and finally a strike. These events were supported by a new kind of student for Nevada--a student who is not afraid to FINALLY say what he is thinking. While Earl and Ed huffed and puffed, anti-war activity grew; while hidden persons painted swastikas on the walls of our campus labeling them, the People's Coalition got it together, while Mac Macdonald wore his black peace armband, writing "No one listens to those intellectual cripples," hundreds of students and the administration co-operated in a complete shutdown of school, not to negate, but to affirm life over death.

Now we can look to next year. Our high schools are producing many active students, people who are not tied to the ways of the past. In a scant few years the voices of stagnation that once controlled this campus and this community, will be nothing more than hollow memories.

If a history of this campus is ever written, let it be recorded that this was the year of the first change... This was the year when we turned away from what we were, this was the year that our students began to think. This is truly----- A BEGINNING.

to You?

It is the feeling of some faculty and students that, despite the press to end the semester, recent events--the deaths of the four students at Kent State and the two students at Jackson State, fire bombings on the Reno campus and the call to meet violence with violence by both right and left wing groups--represent a cry to the university community for imaginative, constructive, non-violent responses to dissent. The following proposal which has been endorsed by the Faculty Senate and by the Student Senate is to be implemented next week.

1. Faculty members are being asked to consider spending some time on Monday, May 25 or Tuesday, May 26, discussing non-violent methods of responding to non-violent forms of dissent.

2. A committee will compile these suggestions and submit them to a panel of local, state and federal government officials, law enforcement agencies, faculty, student and administrative representatives and community leaders. This panel will meet in the Student Union Building of the UNLV campus on Thursday, May 28, to consider and to extend the proposals for non-violent response to violent dissent.

It is hoped that the end product of the university and community problem-solving effort, will be a guide line to be followed by student faculty, university presidents, and law enforcement agencies, not only in Las Vegas, but across the country.

The sponsoring committee encourages students to ask their professors to discuss this problem on Monday or Tuesday, but wishes to emphasize that the professor has the option of: 1) refusing to put the decision of whether or not to discuss the problem to a class vote, and 2) deciding on his own not to discuss the problem. Faculty and students who do not have an opportunity to discuss alternative non-violent solutions in class may submit in writing their proposals by placing them in a suggestion box which will be located in the lobby of the Student Union Building next week.

Individuals interested in helping implement this proposal may contact the following persons: Robert Koettel, psychology; Evelyn Mauldin, education; Eric Robeschaud, psychology

The rising tide of national horror makes passivity a difficult option for any American. Tragic situations leave little opportunity for indifference or the luxury of indecision. This is especially true on the college campus.

The American student is an anomaly. Perhaps no other group in society so passionately craves institutional change yet remains too pathetically organized to produce it. Those students dedicated to social progress cannot establish their own priorities, let alone those of society. Students that are so skeptical of the functioning of American democracy have yet to establish their own.

America's response to the student community has been equally confused and inconsistent. Students receive congratulations for questioning, but admonitions for action. Students have shed the silence and anonymity of the 'fifties' which was labeled 'consensus' for the era of protest and mobilization which is being labeled as the minority voice of a small core of extremist radicals.

The time has come for American students to rise above the labels imposed on them by both the self-styled student spokesmen and national political leaders, whom we know all too well and hear all too often. No longer should students be polled or randomly sampled. No longer can students be merely spoken for or spoken of. Students, independent of the middle men, should resolve their own minds concerning the issues that plague us and proceed to the work of their resolution.

To come to a decision based on rational and logical thinking would be a significant step toward the results that we all envision. Demonstrations, although their effectiveness is significant, somehow tend to become twisted and are then put off as the product of radical and extremist minority. Nothing short of a broad movement of individual student expression can shake the myths about the student community.

It is not my goal to proselytize, but to provide you, the student, with a broad, open, and effective channel with which to convincingly express your opinion. The direct action to bring our visions of change to reality will be done by others; but the mission of getting students together in an unimpeachable democratic process must begin.

All I ask is that the students demonstrate their effectiveness on this single crucial issue by sending a Telegram as shown on the bottom of this page
