Zorn pushes for full UNLV budget

UNLV President Roman Zorn now has the job of walking a tightrope between the governor and the legislature in trying to win the approval for all the UNLV budget that has been approved by the Board of Regents.

Before the legislature went into session, Governor Mike O'Callaghan reinstated some originally planned cuts in the University's allotment contained in his overall state budget which he submitted for legislative approval.

Zorn's objective at present is to do what he can to convince the legislature to approve all the UNLV monies, including funds for new programs which might be put on the chopping block.

The UNLV President is pleased that the budget proposed for the coming biennium has received "better treatment than past budgets have received" under the past state administration, with "90 per cent of the original budget approved."

In appearances before the Assembly Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance committee last week, Zorn argued the need for new degree programs at the growing southern campus.

Many campus observers are pointing at a vital need for increased programs at UNLV to insure even growth and full education prospects for students.

President Zorn said that he didn't know at this point what action the legislature was going to take on the budget, but felt "the climate was good," when he was last in Carson City.

He did have the opportunity to observe a few legislators question UNR President N. Edd Miller over an objectionable advertisement which appeared recently in the UNR student newspaper (see story on page 1).

Medchill Fills CSUN's Vacated V.P. Post.

By Tom Borrup
Staff Writer

Vice President of CSUN, Patt Medchill, who filled the second spot after the resignation of Shayne Skipworth, said recently that he feels himself in a powerless and almost useless position.

Skipworth resigned due to his graduation last December and Medchill who was President Pro Tempore of the Senate succeeded into the office.

"You can't as one person, even the Vice President, change anything," Medchill said.

He felt the President is the only one with any power now, yet the Senate can overrule him.

Not having been in office at the start of the year, Medchill felt he lost having any input into the make up of the budgets and policies determined then.

Here at UNLV on a football scholarship, Medchill doesn't appear to want to take a strong stand on any issues.

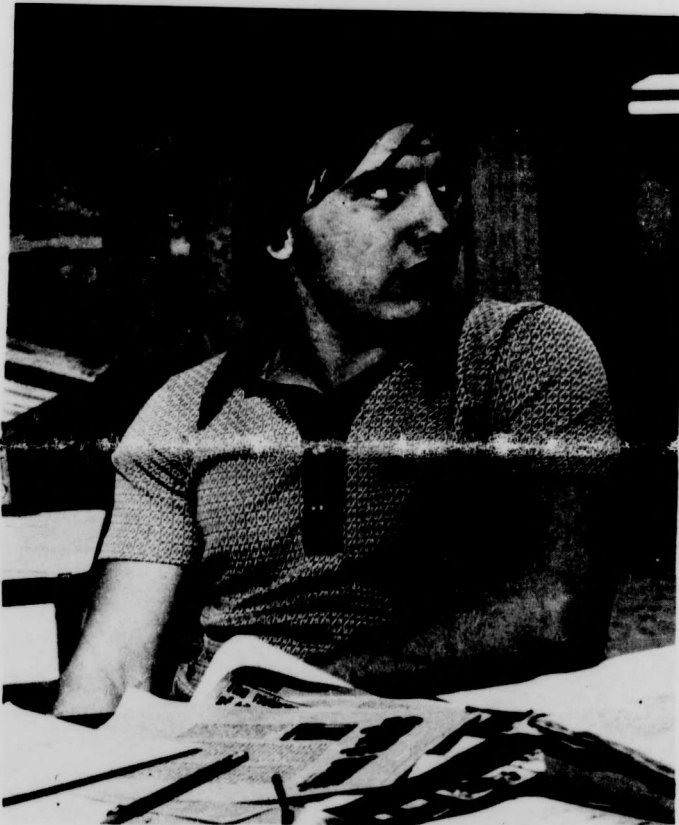

Nor does he have any ideas for changes for CSUN even though he says he's unhappy with the way things are. He also was hesitant to be quoted in the Yell.

The physical education major was handed a senate seat last summer when resignations and graduations took away many of the student senators. In the fall he was elected to the senate post with a total of 31 votes.

Then, in the Senate he was elected as President Pro Tempore.

His first appearance in the political arena of UNLV was last spring when he unsuccessfully ran for president.

"I guess I didn't like things the way they were," is the reason Medchill said he ran.

Patt Medchill CSUN V.P.

He said he had no real platforms for his campaign but figured if he became President, he could learn what was going on and why and then determine changes.

Medchill said if the President's position suddenly became available he wouldn't really want it but would take it as "a duty thing".

If he wasn't graduating in May, he would want it, however.

Of the Senate, he said, "Nothing really happens in the Senate. They spend more time fighting on what the constitution says, then anything."

18 yr olds still must register

As a result of the signing of the Vietnam cease fire and the announcement by Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird that the "use of the draft has ended" many citizens have misunderstandings about the status of the draft.

Mr. Addison A. Millard Nevada State Director of Selective Service, explained the only thing that has been suspended at this time is the actual induction of young men into the armed forces. The announcement of the Vietnam cease fire and future reliance on volunteers to fill the ranks of the armed forces, enabled Secretary of Defense Laird to halt inductions five months early. The President's authority to induct will expire on June 30 under the Selective Service Act.

Mr. Millard emphasized the Selective Service Law is a permanent law and young men must continue to register for the draft. They have from thirty days prior to their 18th birthday until thirty days after to register with their local draft board or official Selective Service Registrars. After registration young men will continue to be classified and assigned lottery numbers in order for this country to respond to any future needs for manpower mobilization. Mr. Millard went on to say, "We are very concerned that young men through misunderstanding or misinformation will break the law by failing to register with selective service. We have already encountered some instances where young men or their families have the misconception that it is no longer necessary to register and by failing to do so they are violating the Military Selective Service Act which is a federal offense."

Sagebrush Editors suspended for printing "objectionable" ad

Last Tuesday, January 30, the Editor and his assistant of UNR's biweekly paper, The Sagebrush were suspended. The suspension was handed down by the Associated Student Body President, Rick Elmore, Buddy Frank, Editor, and Barb Raymond, his assistant Editor were both put on temporary suspension pending further action.

Frank and Raymond were asked to separate themselves from the publication of the student owned and operated paper when an ad deemed objectionable by the State Legislature and University President, N. Edd Miller appeared in the January 30 issue of The Sagebrush.

According to certain sources on the Reno campus, President Miller asked ASUN President Elmore to take some kind of action in regards to the objectionable ad.

Reno's Publication Board meets tonight to decide the future fates of its newspapers top two people. The board consists mainly of students with only 2 advisors who are not. Elmore, Frank, and Raymond are also on the board.

Whatever decision is reached it would appear to be one that the students felt to be the best for the Reno campus.

Their decision will possibly set future precedence on a form censorship for the University's student publications.

Linda Nagy, an assistant-editor to date, was picked by Elmore to continue in Franks place. The student funded Sagebrush is published on Tuesday and Friday throughout the school year. The ad in question did not appear in Friday's paper.

To be "reinstated" or not to be "reinstated," this is our question.

Kenneth Baxter
Yell Editor

The "face" of the University has certainly changed over the course of the last couple years. As Dr. Baepler pointed out in an article a couple weeks ago, there has been many new faces in the administration over the last few years, and the new breed of professor, the man that teaches his class in person not just in name has arrived on the scene. These changes have certainly come non to soon for most students and to late for others. However, the recent concern of the students has been, what grounds are some of these professors not being "reinstated" on?

Not being reinstated is of course the popular vernacular for being dismissed by the upper administration before proccurring the protection of the 7 year tenure. Which of course has nothing to do with breaking mirrors and little to do with the 7 year itch.

Some of these teachers have not only been able according to their students, but have actually garnered the respect of them. The recent dismissal of two teachers in the Political Science Dept. actually invoked the non active interests of a group of students on campus to take some organized action against the administrations actions. Some ground was gained and half the battle was won, but the best is yet to come. Several other teachers, not to be disclosed at this time have recieved their traveling papers. They shall all be contacted by the Yell, and their opinions on the matter of their dismissals shall be brought to light.

In the final analysis, the students should have a large part in the hiring and firing of the people most responsible for their futures. Namely, their profs.

Any information in regards to teachers that are being "let go" or otherwise not reinstated, would be appreciated by this office.

Professional jealousy has been the guiding factor in the dismissal of past profs, lets not let it decide the future of those now in question. Sure, the administration has reseans of their own for these actions, but we the students are not only entitled to this information, but demand it.

Letters to the Editor

Pres. Zorn on a limb?

Dear Editor,

At the senate finance committee meeting that I was attending in Carson City, Feb. 1 Dr. Zorn came out very strongly for the inception of the new programs that have been purposed for UNLV. To me this appears as a risk for the man, because this is not the strategy for the Chancellor's office.

There have been undue amounts of pressures put on students, faculty and administrators to keep representatives of CSUN from attending the finance hearings in Carson City. However, we have maintained active representatives at all of the hearings and hopefully will continue to due so. There are more hearings and Dr. Zorn has more or less put himself out on a limb by coming out for and all we seem to get out on a limb by coming out for a M. A. in Speech & Theater Arts, a B.S. in Architecture, an Education Specialists, a B.S. in Law Enforcement, a M.S. in Psychology an Ed. D. in Education and D.B.A. in Business Administration.

The only question I have is how much pressure is going to be put on students and administrators to cool their rhetoric and not try for these programs? The students are the ones who will suffer from our not having the new programs. The only thing that we have recieved in new programs in the last two years were going from a A.S. degree in NURSING to a B.S. in Nursing and the only thing that is purpose for the next two years by the governor is a B.S. in Law Enforcement. We are a new school trying to grow and all we seem to get is piece-meal growth.

NATIONAL SCENE

RICHARD NIXON: It's time to tell the truth!

By Larry Sabbath Staff Writer

Will the real Richard Nixon please stand up? Will the real Spiro Agnew please stand up? Yes, it's time to tell the truth-- or the current version of it. Richard Nixon and Spiro Agnew may have the distinction of being the administration with the greatest tendency to flow with the political tides.

Admittedly, Nixon had been relatively consistent in his views prior to his narrow victory in 1968. His campaigns were always recognizable since the opposition would be labelled "soft on communism". The President's career is, to a great extent, indebted to the communists for giving him his only real issues. As a product of the 1950's Nixon was able to benefit from the attacks of Joe McCarthy on the "Red sympathizers" who were said to be responsible for the American loss of China. It was necessary for Congressman and Vice President Nixon to continually call for a hard line against Communist China so that he could avoid any taint of sympathy for the enemy.

Nixon's consistency early in his career probably led to the major gains he made politically during his prosecution of Alger Hiss and his famous "Kitchen debates" with Drushchev. The atmosphere of the fabulous fifties was ripe for a stance of anti-Communism and master politician Richard Nixon rode it for all it was worth.

Upon his election in 1968, after a couple of tough losses, Nixon started to sense a change in the mood of the American people. No longer did they blindly accept the assumptions the cold war as they had prior to the Vietnamese mistake. Realizing this, Nixon discussed the secret plan for bringing that conflict to a halt. Not only did he talk of an end to war, but he actually brought some moderates into the administration. The first term brought Henry Kissinger, a well respected student of foreign affairs, into the White House staff. Personable William Rogers became Secretary of State as it appeared that the President was surrounding himself with men not associated with the cold war. In addition, the first term found the United States actually concluding some agreements with the Soviet Union over the use of weapons. Toward the end of the Nixon first term we were treated to the reversal of American policy toward China and we must ask ourselves whether this is the real Nixon or the politician.

In domestic policy Nixon also appeared to be moderating his views at the outset of his administration. The appointment of Daniel Moynihan and James Farmer seemed to signal a welcome change in the President's attitude toward the poor and the black.

The moderation side of Richard Nixon was not, however, to dominate his first term. Events, led primarily by the war, caused the Nixon of the 1950's to rear its head from time to time. When demonstrators came to the White House to protest events in Vietnam, the President was too busy watching college football to look out his west window. Instead, Nixon reverted to the old politician and unleashed Agnew to denounce the demonstrators with the alliterative expletives for which he has become famous. When the war was not coming to an end through the use of military pressure on North Vietnam he used the strict Republican logic of putting military pressure on Cambodia. Those members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who dared protest were seen as aiding the enemy by permitting him to beat the United States at home when he couldn't win on the battlefield.

Even the most conservative supporters of the President had to be disappointed at times since his use of the price freeze should have been heresy to old time Republicans. The political career of Richard Nixon is indeed an interesting one since it seems that his only principle is one of expediency. (The saga of Spiro next week)

Population control not religious issue?

By Vic L. Byers III

Pope Paul made the news the other day. His remarks were about as well received as a letter bomb (by me, anyway).

It seems that the good Pope (or should I say The Good Pope?) was reaffirming his role as the masthead of conservatism in population control when he said, "...the women of the world must not lose sight of their main mission in life - motherhood."

This is not the usual 'Vatican-announcement' - the Pope was not merely denouncing the use of unnatural birth control practices as he has in the past.

He went one huge step further by asserting that, beyond avoiding the conception of children, the women of the world must do their ever-loving best to fulfill their "main mission in life" and bear children.

I was recently criticized for making such a trivial distinction. But I consider it to be important - however trivial.

You see, this statement shows that the Church is becoming even more extreme in its attitudes of population control. While in the past few years the Pope was content to denounce various and sundry forms of birth control, he now feels compelled to flatly propose that it is the duty of all women to bear children.

And why this change in attitude? What's pushing the Church to such an extreme? I believe that the answer lies in the recent successes of the various population control programs and practices that have been, until just recently, totally ineffectual.

Meaningful population control is becoming a reality. With this, the Church sees a decline in its absolute control over the lives of the people. This has caused the Church and the 'population-controlists' and has forced them to the opposite pole of thinking.

Where the 'negotiations' between the church and the 'population-controlists' were difficult before, they are now impossible.

There no longer exists a middle ground. What side of the fence do you find yourself on? Ask yourself this:

In your prayers tonight, will you beg for the help of the Almighty or will you give thanks for your powers of reasoning and technology that enable you to solve the problem for yourself?

Hike becomes nightmare

EDITORS NOTE: In an attempt to give the Yell's readers some insight into the make-up and background of its staff, the following story is about the cousin of the Editor, Ken Baxter.

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK (AP) - Robert Baxter's "day hike" turned into a weeklong nightmare as he lay injured beneath a tree in Yosemite National Forest, in too much pain to move more than a few feet from where he sat.

Baxter fell from a path Jan. 14 while hiking in the John Muir Trail near Nevada Falls.

He was rescued by a team of 11 rangers late Sunday night, a week after his accident.

"There was really no one to miss me until the beginning of February," he said. Baxter fell about 200 feet from the trail, "I couldn't walk, I could only drag myself across the snow, so I placed myself under a tree to rest and wait."

The tree became his shelter for the week. When he attempted to move the next day, he found that his injuries were more serious than he had thought. Doctors said he has five fractured vertebrae, a sprained ankle, abrasions and severe frostbite.

The only food Baxter had packed for his day of hiking was a lunch of dates, carrots and nuts. It had to last him for seven days.

The weather didn't cooperate with the fallen hiker. Two violent storms crossed the Sierras during Baxter's week under the tree, dumping rain on him for several days at a time. Dressed only in cowboy boots, jeans, and a shirt and light sweater, Baxter huddled under a poncho for the worst parts of the storm.

Sleep was hard as food to come by for Baxter. He didn't sleep at all for the first two days.

"It's sure changed my thoughts about registering with the park before I go hiking," he said. "But I don't think I'll stop hiking and camping alone. It's such a good way to get together with yourself."

"I think once the initial reaction wears off, the whole thing will be a good experience. I had a lot to think about up there, a lot of looking inside myself. You realize how superfluous you are and how important other people are."

"There wasn't anything to do the whole time," he added from a hospital bed, his voice slightly foggy by pain-killing drugs. "I wrote novels and stories, I dragged myself to forage for snow and ice for drinking water, and after a day or so I had a pattern for calling for help."

"I would call 'help' loudly then wait for a count of five, then call again, then count to sixty. The counting seemed to help pass the time."

THE NEVADA SCENE

Come Sailor with us!

by Terry Marren Staff Writer

Many political writers are unfortunate in that they have no muck to rake. I thank the stars that I live in Las Vegas.

Dr. Al Johns has said many times that politics is more corrupt locally than nationally. The reason for this being that more people are watching the national scene. The problem with the local scene is that quite often a political crime is not detected until it has long been committed. A truly skillful politico usually covers all of the possible fronts of attack before he cheats. Hence we have the obvious case of James "Sailor" Ryan.

Ryan decided to sell his vote on a zoning matter for some $5,000.00. Fate and good fortune brought Ryan to the court of Justice of the Peace Robert Reid for arraignment. J.P. Reid ruled very bizzarely, as usual, and stated that Ryan could not be charged.

Another factor was our over zealous Attorney General Robert List. The trouble with Mr.

List is that no one has told him that we are living in the 1970's, and not in Chicago of the 1920's. I haven't met Mr. List, but I am sure he wears a trench coat and carries around an 8 x 10 glossy of Elliot Ness in his wallet. As I understand it List had two state agents hiding in the trunk of the car that the informer was driving. The informer was rigged with a cheap tape recorder and probably with a camera in his lapel. The big moment came in Ryan's driveway. The informer paid Ryan and everything became quite fuzzy. I imagine the batteries went dead and the trunk locked. I would love to have seen Laurel and Hardy jumping out of that trunk. I wonder what would have happened if the informer owned a VW?

Sailor Ryan honestly believed he could get away with anything. I worked at Southern Nevada Memorial Hospital from 1970 to 1972. At that time, as now, the hospital was constantly in debt and in need of more state money. At that time, however, a solution was in sight. Several businessmen decided to make SNMH a community hospital. In this new category the hospital would have been eligible for more federal and state money. The upshot was that Sailor Ryan killed the plan for "the good of the community." He emphatically pleaded at the time that he wanted nothing from the deal. I'm sure it was just a coincidence that he has been the kingpin in all deals pertaining to SNMH since that time.

Now many of you out there remember the tee pee scandal? This incident occurred only a month or so before the bribe. Briefly, Sailor Ryan had a tee pee constructed at the airport with county money totaling $10,000. The tee pee was meant for use as a souvenir stand for a private party. It turned out that he soon after married the same private party. When the others on the County Commission found out they ordered the stand be torn down. Then a few weeks later he became involved with the bribe.

I hope I have' shone some light on Dr. John's contention that politics is dirtier locally than nationally. Who was watching Sailor Ryan? The sad thing is that he could very easily be re-elected. The sad fact is that unless a man like this is prosecuted he becomes a folk hero of sorts. There is something about the underdog phenomenon at work here.

I might add that George Franklin of the City Commission has also been charged with being a crook. It is charged that he asked Johny Tocco for $10,000.00 to swing a liquor license for a new bar on West Charleston Blvd. Apparently there is some evidence because the grand jury is pursuing the matter. Isn't it strange you can't call a man a crook, but instead you call him a clever politician. That seems very strange to me because I would never think of calling George Franklin a clever politician.

Campus Sample Survey

With the recent hustle at UNR's Sagebrush college paper still unsettled as of this writing, and the Yell having printed several articles that may be considered in poor taste and using profane language in the past several copys, the Yell staff would like to hear what the students have to say about censorship. It is a topic that has been recently discussed in the Yell, at the campus, state, and of course on up to the national level, Freedom of the press has always been considered by many to be Americas strong suite in its Constitution and basic unalienable rights. What do you the students and future represenatives and leaders of tommorrow have to say?

1. Should the Yell be allowed to print the truth as they see it, regardless of what the administration, faculty, or community think is the truth?

2. Should the use of "four letter" words be allowed where it is not deemed to be in bad taste or is taken in direct context or a direct quote from an individual?

If you have any feelings about these questions or any others please fill out this form and drop it off in the CSUN Government Office in the 1st floor of the Union.

Medchill V.P.

There's only been one senate meeting so far this semester at the time of this interview.

And, according to Medchill everything was either sent into committees or put off until the next meeting.

In his position as Vice President, he says he hasn't found much to do. Of the 20 hours so far this semester he's sat in his office, no one has come in.

"Maybe Shayne (Skipworth) set the precedent that the Vice President doesn't do anything," stated Medchill.

He says he checks in his office every day to see if there's anything for him to do and he briefs himself before going to meetings.

As Vice President he's automatically a member of all committees. Medchill is glad he's had the opportunity to serve as Vice President. He says he gained an awful lot in his own personal awareness of what's going on.

Right now he's spending two hours a morning, five days a week student teaching in physical education at Cashman Junior High School.

Graduating from McFarland High School in Wisconsin, he went to Mesa Junior College in Arizona for two years before coming to UNLV on a football scholarship in the spring of 1970.

"What I'd like to eventually do is coach a major University football team," the graduating senior said.

Right after graduation he'd like to be a graduate assistant football coach.

He says he's had a couple offers in private business in Las Vegas with recreation companies.

"Jobs are tough," Medchill said, "I could end up not even in coaching."

Hot baths may be Hazardous.

Too many hot baths can harm a man's virility, according to tests carried out in Galveston, Texas.

Volunteers were put in steam baths for half an hour a day for 18 days.

Scientists found the men were sterile for up to 67 days after the experiment.

Dr. G. Pincher, a London scientist, did a similar test in bath temperatures ranging from 105 to 120 degrees. He concluded that hot baths could also make men impotent.

He said: "The human body was never meant to be dunked in hot water, it ruins virility, saps energy, deprives skin of natural oils and weakens resistance to illness.

Some experts say that in winter no one should bathe in hot water more than twice a month.

Nevada Employees Entitled to Compensations & Special Benefits

Right now you're probably a student, and not a member of the workforce. But one day you'll graduate, and start earning a paycheck. Chances are that you'll stay in Nevada. And that is why it's important that you know something about the Nevada Industrial Commission (NIC).

The NIC is the sole agent for workmen's compensation in Nevada. So if you suffer an on-the-job accident, which requires doctor or hospital treatment, or if you lose time from work for that reason, you may be eligible for workmen's compensation.

You should know this, in order to protect your rights. The vast majority of employers are decent honorable people, who wouldn't dream of trying to pull a fast one if you got injured at work. But there are always a few around who might try to take advantage of you - if you don't know about the Nevada Industrial Commission (NIC).

The NIC hears stories about workers in small outfits, who allege that they were fired because they suffered an on-the-job injury. Such claims are difficult to substantiate, but obviously, the more a worker knows about his right to workmen's compensation, the less chances there are of his not receiving benefits.

Workmen's compensation in Nevada operates like this: An employer pays the NIC a premium based on his payroll, the amount varying according to the type of operation. The money is held a profit-making organization. Thus if the amount paid out in claims is less than the premiums paid, the NIC would refund money to the employers; if the amount paid out is more than the money taken in, then the employers' premium must be raised. That is why the NIC checks all claims to be sure they are authentic.

Payments are made for medical expenses, both doctor and hospital, so that an injured worker is restored to health as much as is possible. In addition, benefits are payable for temporary total disability (as when a worker breaks an arm) by the NIC and then disbursed for payments to workers who are injured while on-the-job.

In its operation, the NIC's aim is to break even; it is not and for permanent partial disability (as when a worker loses an arm).

Workmen's compensation benefits are also payable to dependents when a worker is killed at work. In 1972 thirteen people in Clark County were killed while at work; of these, five were actually murdered! So far this year two people have been killed at work.

Workmen's compensation covers more than you might think. Did you know that the Rebels are covered by workmen's compensation, when they are playing or practicing? Obviously, if a member of the opposing team chews off one of the Rebels' ears, replacing it presents problems, which is why an injured worker is restored to health 'as much as is possible.'

Obviously, it is better to prevent industrial accidents than to pay compensation for them. For this reason, the NIC's branch office at Sahara Avenue has four safety consultants that constantly visit the companies, hotels, factories, your campus, and all types of business, to ensure your right to work safely. They are also responsible for enforcing the Federal Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) of 1970.

That is the basic outline of workmen's compensation in Nevada. The Nevada Industrial Commission hopes that you will never become a recipient of workmen's compensation - but you should know that it exists!

Handicapped Scouting organized for local handicapped boys.

By Richard Juillerat

This February marks the 63rd Anniversary Celebration of the Boy Scouts of America. During this month many fun and interesting events are planned, as are every year. Something new has been added this year, however, Handicapped Scouting.

It is said that Scouting is opened to all boys, at least one is to think so. There have been instances where a handicapped boy has been turned away simply because a particular troop does not want to take the time to help these young men.

Troop 777 sponsored by the Sunrise JayCee's has a different view of this situation. This specific troop is organized for and by the handicapped with specially selected individuals such as Special Education teachers and veteran Scouters working together to bring Scouting to the handicapped boy.

Along with these carefully chosen individuals is another group of people, who without their support, Troop 777 would not be functioning. Responsible for the organization of this Troop are the members of Troop 777 sponsored by the Homesite Baptist Church. Troop 777 is one of the few units in Las Vegas which opens its doors to the handicapped. Much support is received from this brother troop in the way of program assistance. Their leaders also give much assistance on the advisory level in all phases of Troop 777's activities.

Now that Handicapped Scouting has been brought to the boy, it should be brought to the attention of the public. Troop 777 cordially invites one and all to view their live demonstration of Handicapped Scouting, at the Lorenzi Park Handicapped Recreation Center, 3333-2 W. Washington Avenue. Showtime is at 4:00 p.m. each Thursday throughout the month of February. Their display will also be opened Monday through Friday, 12:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. throughout the month for anyone who is interested.

Bridge Club

The Rebel's Duplicate Bridge Club will hold bridge game every Wednesday, 6 p.m., in the Student Union Building.

The game is restricted to university students, faculty and their mates. Card fee is 50¢.

The club manager is Versiellen Driver, a certified director. Master points will be awarded since the club is sanctioned by the American Contract Bridge League.

It is not necessary to join the club formally. Players may attend any Wednesday of their choice. If a partner is needed or more information call 642-6192.

Ken Baxter and I just realized that baseball season starts in a couple weeks, and we're not even in shape to be members of the once famous, "Up-On-the-Hill-Gang", (including Harold and Bush and Al and Rich) will be back in the Glorious Gutter. We might even take some wanton women down to the depths of despair with us.

Not too surprisnly, I was told by a young lady that the Science Tech building is "unsafe at any speed" to tread in unescorted. Since I learned everything I know from P.E.P. "Moving Company" (that's Paulson, Espinoza, and Phillips), I'm only surprised that any females come out, once they go in.

This weeks recipe is for Lottie Shealy, who first introduced oysters to me. So this week Tantalize your taste buds with;

Squattie Body Lottie's Oyster Stew

You need:

- 1 cup oysters
- 2 cups milk
- 1 cup heavy cream
- 1/4 cup chopped onion
- 4-5 sliced fresh mushrooms
- Dash garlic
- can oyster stew soup
- 1/4 teaspoon parsley
- 2 tablespoons butter
- sour cream

Do:

Brown onion and mushrooms in good sized pot with the butter. Add soup, then milk and cream slowly. Simmer. Add garlic and parsley. Place in ovenproof serving dish; top with sour cream, brown lightly under broiler and serve.

To get ready for the coming baseball season, I recommend literaly, "Cannery Row" by John Steinbeck, which is really excellent any time during the year.

$1 million in endorsements for variety of scholarships

Endowment income from a bequest totaling more than $1 million will provide a variety of scholarships for students next fall at UNLV it was announced today.

The bequest--one of the largest private endowments in the history of education in the state--was established in the form of charitable trust funds by the late Kenneth M. de Vos, for many years a prominent Las Vegas businessman.

Dr. Roman J. Zorn, UNLV president, said sufficient income has now been generated to begin appropriating scholarships to high school seniors, recent graduates of secondary schools and UNLV upperclassmen.

Each of the scholarships will be valued at $1,000 per year and will be renewable for a maximum of nine semesters provided that the recipient's academic achievement meets university standards.

For the first year, income from the endowment will provide about 12 grants for incoming freshmen and up to a dozen more for upperclassmen.

Funds from the bequest have been earmarked for three types of scholarships, Dr. Zorn explained.

The Kenneth M. de Vos Scholarship for Disadvantaged Minorities will provide college opportunities for students of several ethnic backgrounds with some special consideration given to applicants of Afro-American descent.

Other stipends, called the Kenneth and Mary Alice deVos Scholarships, will be awarded to students demonstrating talent in the performing arts. The related endowment trust was established several years ago by Mr. deVos and his late wife.

The third fund provides for "Mildred Cotner Scholarships," which are granted to sons and daughters of Nevada families of average income who have distinguished themselves in their academic studies. These academic excellence scholarships are named in honor of

Mr. deVos' office secretary, who is credited with recommending the UNLV funding for student assistance to her friend and employer.

Students interested in applying for the deVos and Cotner scholarships must file the necessary forms with the UNLV Office of Financial Aids by Feb. 1.

The university's Scholarships and Prizes Board will review and award all grants from a ranked list of candidates by March 1.

The deVos bequest, Dr. Zorn said, greatly enhances UNLV's scholarship program and will enable many students to attend college who otherwise might have abandoned their educations because of lack of finances.

He said the gift also provided a substantial tax savings to the deVos estate because of the special provisions allowed under the Tax Reform Act of 1969 for contributions to public agencies.

The president expressed the hope that the deVos bequest would set an example to others in the community who are interested in furthering education through estate planning.

UNLV funding in committee, several cuts proposed

The Nevada State Legislature meets every two years to consider legislation and to fund state institutions for the coming biennium. Before the legislature convenes state funded institutions submit their budget to the governor's budget director, Howard Barrett, who in turn makes recommendations on changes to the governor. This year the University Regents presented a 79 million dollar budget for the university system to the budget director. (The University System being UNR, UNLV, Community College Division, Desert Research Institute, and other related services). Upon reaching the Governor's office the budget was substantially thinner, it had been reduced 10 million dollars. Of the 10 million dollar cut the two universities had suffered about 7 million dollars of that cut. However, the hardest hit areas on both campuses were Buildings and Grounds, National Student Loans, and New Programs for the University. The buildings and grounds had been cut by about 1.7 million dollars from the requested amount. The N.D.S.L. had been cut from $75,000 to $25,000 a year for the system.

National Defense Student Loans work on a 9 to 1 federal-state matching fund basis. With the proposed state fund cut, student loans would have been reduced by 1/2 million dollars per year. The hardest hit area was new programs (see accompanying story). The cut was 2.4 million dollars, of which 1.4 million was earmarked for UNLV.

However, after hearing the arguments of top University officials and student representatives from UNLV and UNR, the Governor announced that he would reinstate part of the original request. This included the full amount asked by the Regents for student loans.

The Governor's budget request is now in the Assembly Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee. There have been two meetings of these committees on the university budget, and the C.S.U.N. student government has maintained a representative at these meetings.

The Yell will continue to report on the progress of this measure.

Programs in doubt, legislators decide

In this legislative year the UNLV Campus requested funding of eight new programs to be started in the coming biennium. They are a M.A. in Speech and Theater Arts, a B.S. in Architecture, an Education Specialist Degree, B.S. in Law Enforcement, M.S. in Anthropology/Sociology, M.A. in Psychology, ED. D. in Education, and D.B.A. in Business Administration. The cost for these programs to be implemented and to continue through the beinneum is 1.4 million dollars. The Governor's budget director recommended cutting everything, but the Governor reinstated the B.S. in Law Enforcement.

UNLV's and UNR's Education Colleges have proposed a ED.D which would be combined and take in disciplines from both schools. Presently all the teachers in the State of Nevada must rely on institutions in other states in order to receive a Doctorate in Education.

Anthropology and Sociology purposed a joint M.S. program. The purposal has been in existence for five years and accepted by the Regents for the same amount of time. The Las Vegas Valley is probably one of the best anthropology sites in the country and the metropolitan area here is excellent for sociological study. Yet there is not a M.S. in Anthropology or Sociology.

These are only three programs that have been requested of and approved by the Board of Regents.

The state legislature will decide the future of these programs at UNLV. And at the same time, the legislators may be deciding the quality of education for the future at the University.

SORRY... WE OVERRAN OUR BUDGET FOR DESKS.

Law school question raised in letter, support sought

Do we really need a law school in the State of Nevada? This is a question that quite a few people are asking themselves these days and it seems there are some who feel the answer to this question should be found. Recently, a resolution was passed in both the State Senate (introduced by Senator John Foley) and the State Assembly (introduced by Assemblyman Jack Schofield) to form a joint committee from the Senate and Assembly education committees to investigate the need for a law school. This joint committee will hold a hearing on February 13 at 2:00 in the Legislative Building, Carson City, to hear testimony concerning this issue. This is a very critical stage in the course of development if the law school is to become a reality. I urge everyone, particularly those going into the legal field, to write to either Senator Foley or Assemblyman Schofield and demonstrate your desire for the law school. I think it would also be wise to take a little more time and write a personalized letter to the Representatives from your district. A short letter now may very well be your insurance policy for future in the legal profession. The interest has been generated and there are people ready to listen, so let's give them something to listen to.

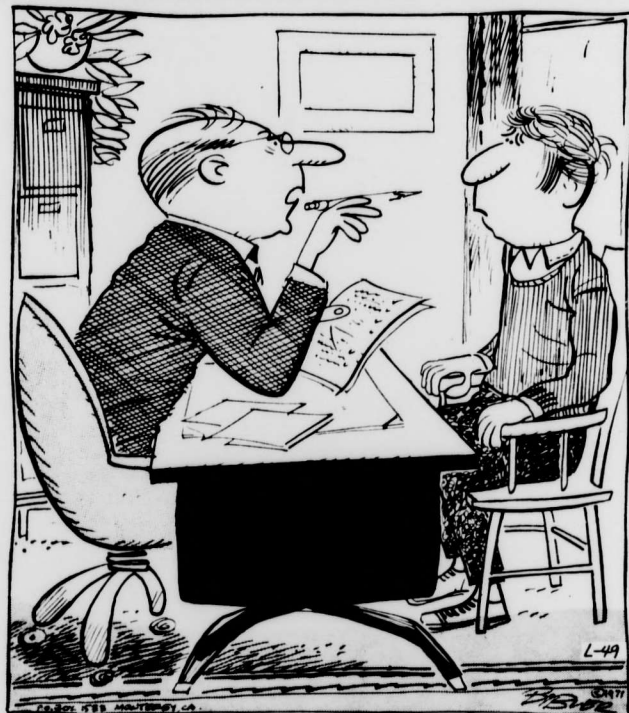

Let's look at the issue from another point of view, how hard it is going to be to get into a law school outside this State. Consider for a moment the implications of a statute passed by the Montana State Legislature Restricting the admission of any out-of-state student (despite qualifications) if his admission would exclude a qualified resident student. I believe it is indicative of the fact that there are more students continuing into law school and the states are naturally limiting non-resident admissions to protect their own students. Also, as the demand to get into law school increases the qualifications for admission get higher. If the qualifications for resident students are getting higher just consider what they are going to be like for a non-resident. (Of course, this isn't necessarily true with a private law school, but the difference here is in the amount of money involved to get in. For example, Vanderbilt Law School in Nashville, Tenn., which is private, demands $2400.00 a year for tuition alone.) But not only are qualification demands higher for non-residents, there is also a non-resident fee imposed if you should get accepted. This amount varies from school to school, but I think the point here is that this non-resident fee represents another burdensome feature facing the Nevada student wanting to go to law school and having to look beyond the boundaries of his state to do so.

Here are some more interesting facts to look at! Recent enrollment in law schools has increased while at the same time the size of freshmen classes have decreased by 2.9 per cent. Examine this along side the fact that last year 154,000 students took the L.S.A.T. and of that figure, 50,000 did not get into law school for one reason or another. Also this year, so far, more students have taken the L.S.A.T. than ever before. The fact is that law schools are full to capacity with people crying to get in.

Also, in 1972 a survey was taken through out the State with high school students to get an indication of interest in law school. Results showed 331 students showing an interest. A Department of Education study of data concerning 9th to 11th graders in Nevada reported that 447 listed law as their first career choice and 315 indicated law as their second choice. The number of pre-law students here on campus can be identified at around 100, and there are, I'm sure, others we don't know about. Of course, this does not mean all of these people will go to law school, but it does indicate significant number of Nevada students want to attend law school and are faced with the strong possibility of being denied that privilege.

The time is right for action and that action is people writing to their Representatives and letting their feeling be known, that we want, and need, a law school in the State of Nevada. Nevada students should not be denied the privilege of pursuing a professional career in law. I urge you once again to take time to consider your future and then write to your legislators and the Education Committee of both houses in the legislators. A complete list of legislators is available in the CSUN office, Executive Coordinator Pre-Law Association Michael E. Wheat

Junior at University serves in Carson City

Gary Collie, a Junior at UNLV is currently serving as assistant Sargeant at Arms at the State Capital in Carson City, Nevada, during the current session of the Nevada State Legislature.

Gary has been a student of about three years after moving here from Ohio where he went to school at Ohio State University. A Political Science major, he has been very active in Nevada politics for over a year. Collie attended the county and state Democratic Convention last year and went to the Democratic National Convention as a page for the Nevada delegation.

He is presently active in the County and State Democratic central Committees. About his service so far at the legislature, Gary says the experience is giving him a "real perspective on the political situation in Nevada."

Students Soon to Get the Boot!

The Office of Campus Security advises vehicle users on the campus of new parking regulation enforcement measures being initiated. Numerous and repeated parking violations by some individuals on campus have created the atmosphere for the change.

The new measures include use of a vehicle immobilizer installed on the front wheel of an illegally parked vehicle so that it cannot be moved. The immobilizer, known as the "Boot," can only be removed by use of a special tool and will be removed only after the driver has identified himself so that personal responsibility can be established as a basis for appropriate action.

The boot will be placed only on those vehicles which have become a parking nuisance and have been observed as repeated offenders. Before the boot is actually used, however, a warning citation will be placed on the vehicle stating that the license number has been recorded with Campus Security and that continued violations of Campus Parking and Traffic Regulations will result in use of the boot, which will be used only as a last resort.

Dale Florian
 Campus Security

VEHICLE PARKING STICKERS AVAILABLE

The Campus Security Office, Frazier Hall, room 112, advises everyone who uses a car on campus that they can still obtain necessary stickers for their vehicles so they may legally park on University lots.

The Office of Campus Security wishes to advise all University connected persons of a major change in the Frazier Hall parking area effective immediately following the Christmas holidays.

The major change involves the reversing of the entrance and exit of the parking lot. Entry will be made from the entrance that leads to the Humanities Bldg. and the new exit will then be at the north end of Frazier Hall parking lot providing access to both north and southbound traffic on Maryland Parkway.

A security officer will be on duty at the new Frazier parking to wave persons south to the new entrance. This procedure will help persons using this parking lot become accustomed to the change.

All parking slots will be changed making parking easier and more convenient. Appropriate directional signs will be installed to facilitate parking and to ease traffic congestion. The change is being made to help alleviate traffic hazards and parking problems now associated with the Frazier Hall parking area. General cooperation in complying with the new plans will be appreciated.

After ample time is given for persons to get used to the new area, citations will be issued for both parking and moving traffic violations.

Archeological workshop to be held on campus

A two-part workshop designed to teach local amateur archeologists the aims and methods of scientific archeology starts

Feb. 6 at UNLV.

The sessions are available free of charge, thanks to a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities entitled, "People's Archeology for Nevada."

Instructor Robert Crabtree said the purpose of the workshop is to acquaint the general public with proper archeological techniques so that people in the state can contribute to the profession in a systematic manner.

The first five-week session will be devoted to classroom instruction. Collectors are urged to bring their artifacts so that they may learn how to catalog, classify and photograph them.

Proper classification is of value to professional archeologists in evaluating local resources and will enhance, for the owners, the significance and understanding of their collections, Crabtree said.

The workshop will meet from 7 to 10 p.m. through March 6 in Room 314 of the Social Sciences Building on the UNLV campus.

Participants will have an opportunity to put their archeological principles to good use when they take to the field during the second part of the workshop from March 18 to April 15.

These Sunday sessions from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. will be conducted at selected excavation sites in the Las Vegas Valley. Instruction will include on-site sampling procedures, mapping, recording and other standard exploration techniques.

"It could be that one of our class members will uncover something of real scientific value," Crabtree stated. "That's because we're really in a pioneer stage of exploration here from a scientific standpoint."

Crabtree, who has done extensive archeological field work in the U.S., Mexico and British Columbia, earned his undergraduate and master's degrees from the University of Washington. He has completed further graduate work at the University of Arizona and the University of California, Los Angeles.

Persons who wish to register for the workshop should contact the UNLV Museum of Natural History, 1310 Ascot Drive #5.

POT-- Robert Crabtree, instructor of an upcoming archeology workshop at UNLV, examines a utility jar from the Moapa Valley believed to be about 1,000 years old.

REBEL SPORTS

LIKE IT IS

By Gary Radunich
Staff Writer

Probably the least written about sports personalities in town are the three men who do all the Rebel's sports writing, Review Journal's John Moser, Las Vegas Sun's Doyle E. Smith, and UNLV Sports Information Director, Dom Clark. It's time they got a little ink!

For pure writing talent, Moser has to be rated one of the top young journalists around. His witty accounts of Rebel activities have earned him many local newswriting awards. Having done couple of radio interviews with Moser, I've found his style easily transferred from typewriter to microphone. If given the proper exposure, John could develop into a nationally known writer.

The Sun's Doyle E. Smith has only been on the Las Vegas scene since August, but has already earned himself a spot as one of the city's most popular writers. Smith's popularity has extended out on the strip where Doyle has become "Mr. Comp", (free meal) and is a welcomed guest in any of our town's "class spots. Originally from Lincoln, Nebraska, Smith's association with the University of Nebraska has enabled him to receive first hand insights on former Gorman star Dave Humm, who is presently the all-conference quarterback for the Huskers. Doyle is one of the few writers I've met that is willing to go the extra mile to try and get the real personality of the athlete he is covering.

The man with probably the most under-rated job of all is UNLV's Dom Clark. Not only must he fill the media with Rebel information, but he must also be a psychologist---trying to give each sport and each coach the recognition he seeks. It is Dom's job, also, to listen to the contradictions and fallacies of the coaches, weed out what is fact and what is fiction, and still maintain the image that the coaches wish to portray. Clark has a great rapport with athletes, and even a has-been like myself can always count on Dom to help in any way he can.

The role of a Sports Information Director is a difficult one. He must be both aggressive, and yet diplomatic. Dom Clark fits this description and seems destined for a long distinguished career here with the Rebels athletic program.

COURTSIDE CHATTER

New football coach Ron Meyer certainly seems like the right man to guide our program. He is sure to bring a lot of Tom Landry's system with him. Landry has made the Dallas Cowboys pro football's best run organization...The winner of the WCAC can look forward to the regionals held in Pauly Pavilion the home of the UCLA Bruins....Rebel baseball will be coming up shortly. Look for pitcher Herb Pryor to garner many honors this season...Mike Whaley out for the year...Bob Florence and Jim Baker both high on the national charts in scoring and rebounding respectively...Florence continues to get many requests for his services from females all ages, shapes, and sizes.

REBEL HOPES TAKE DIP IN BAY CITY;

Our Rebel hoopsters quite possibly had their league title hopes dashed against the Bay Bridge last Thursday night in San Francisco. The young Rebs were guilty of excessive turnovers while falling to league leader Univ. of San Francisco 87-83.

The Rebels placed all 5 starters in double figures, being led by Jimmie Baker with 25 and Bobby Florence with 23. Toby Houston and Pat Bolster had 12 each and Lester Weaver added 11. Team shooting was a hot 50% but 18 turnovers hurt the fine team effort.

The locals led for minutes in the first half as both teams shot 75% or better for about 5 minutes. Trailing by only 4 with 2and1/2 minutes to play in the first half the Rebs slipped to a 9 point deficit at the half.

Toby Houston won the opening toss-up of the second half but Jimmie Baker breaking away could not connect on a lay-up. The Don's then scored for an 11 point lead instead of 7 and there-in lies the 4 pt spread. The local hoopsters fell behind by as much as 15 pts in the final 20 minutes and fell just short in their valiant comeback effort.

The high scorer for the game was Jimmie Baker. Jimmie had 11 field goals and 3 of 5 from the line and also had 12 rebounds. Toby Houston added 12 pts and 12 bounds. The guards, Bolster (12) and Weaver(11) both hit double figures for possibly the first time this season. Beautiful Bobby continues with his hot hands(see Gary Radunich's Like It Is). Flo hit 11 of 15 shots from the field but could not draw the number of fouls that he usually manages to draw. Bobby finished with 23 pts and added 8 bounds. But he was defended very close as the Don's made sure he didn't get the ball very often.

As usual, a notoriously poor shooting team had a great night against UNLV. The Don's (A 38% shooting team) shot 50% for the game and also placed their 5 starters in double figures. They were led by 6-10 Kevin Restani. Restani hit 11 of 20 from the field for 22 points and had plenty of help from 6-9 Snake Jones(18), guards Phil Smith(18) and Mike Quick(14) and 6-9 soph Eric Fernsten(4). Fernsten only took 5 shots from the field but made all 5 in addition to 4 of 5 from the charity stripe. Restani grabbed 13 caroms and Jones and Fernsten 8 each.

Only Bolster left early from the Rebel squad, while Jones fouled out with 13 minutes to play. The Rebels could not take advantage of his loss however. The rebounding stats were identical and the shooting stats very close. The Don's will be in town on Friday February 23, 1973. See you there.

Then Sink In Santa Clara

by Anita Ward
Staff Writer

What exactly are Rebels? Over the years the term has been used to define a revolutionary figure, someone who has the ability to change things. Well, the UNLV Rebels may have reversed that definition last Saturday night, because they sure couldn't change that score against Santa Clara.

The game began at a rather quick pace. The Rebs kept within 1 or 2 points of their opponents for the first quarter of the contest, but then with the score at 25-23, the much-feared Broncos bucked their way into a whole new ball game. Following 4 consecutive one-on-one failures by the Rebs, they outran, out-scored, and completely outplayed our beloved Rebels. They did everything, including converting almost all of the 17 Rebel turnovers in the first half.

The guards were a bit of a let-down for the UNLV boys, maybe their defensive efforts drained a little of their energy. Pat Bolster and Tex Weaver both left the game early via fouls. Pat did not manage any points and Tex fought for two. Toby Houston also ran into slight foul trouble, which caused the appearance of Don Weimer, Ron Dale and Lonnie Wright initially replaced Tex and Pat.

In the first half offensive spurt guard John Piro was a big difference for the Broncos. He bombed in 14 of his 15 points from outside.

Bob Florence's average may have dropped as a result of this game. At the end of the half Flo was 4-8 from the field and 2-4 from the line. He played a balanced first half by also pulling down 8 rebounds.

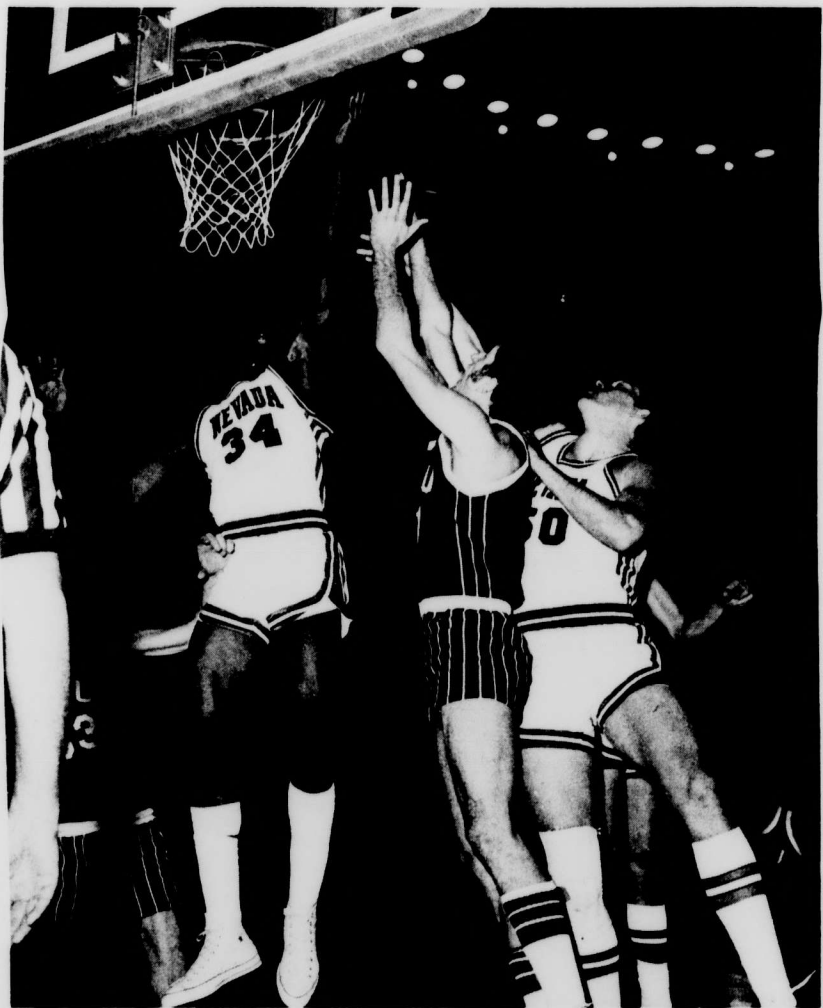

Before the buzzer ending the first half sounded, the Santa Clara team saw who this much-raved about Jim Baker is. He led the Rebels in scoring with 14 pts; 50% from the field and 67% from the line. He had 6 rebounds with plenty of determination and enthusiasm in each one.

There were many factors leading to the 15 point halftime lead, 17 UNLV turnovers as compared to 7 for the Broncos. The Rebs had a rebounding edge 25-22 and left for the locker room with a lot of catching up to do.

Whatever Coach Bayer said in locker room at the half helped at least for a while. The locals inched closer until they were within 8, and then Santa Clara blew it open entirely. By the end of the game they had 6 men in double figures and 2 others not far behind. Not one man really dominated their game. They were quite consistent with team-high Winkler (17), Lavaroni (14), Piro (15), and Diggs (16) pushing out in front.

With 3:45 left on the clock and a score of 88-65, Bayer seemed to throw in the towel. Wiemer, Dale, Cunningham, Piercy, and Wright finished the slaughter that ended 95-73.

Opera Auditions Here

Young singers in Southern Nevada who have opera talent will compete in this year's Metropolitan Opera auditions Feb 17 at UNLV.

Dr. Douglas R. Peterson, district director of the auditions, announced that applications are being accepted for the annual tryouts which begin at 1:30 p.m. in Room 109 of the Humanities Building.

The auditions are sponsored by the Metropolitan Opera National Council.

"The purpose is to find, to assist, and to encourage talented young singers in preparation for their careers, and to discover new talent for the Metropolitan Opera," said Peterson.

Cash awards, study grants and contracts with the Met are possible prizes for district, regional and national finalists.

"Candidates must have a voice with operatic possibilities, some vocal training, musical background and artistic aptitude," Peterson. "Professional experience is not required."

The singers must be sponsored by a qualified voice teacher, coach, conductor or musical authority and must be prepared to sing a minimum of five arias, preferably in more than one language.

Winner of the Southern Nevada district auditions will advance to the regional auditions in Los Angeles in early March. The Alexander Saunderson study award of $100 will be available at the local level to a singer who does not advance to the regional audition but who shows promise of future development.

Regional winners will advance to the national semi-finals in the spring at the Metropolitan Opera House. Those selected to enter the national finals will receive a $2,000 study grant, and finalists will compete for possible Met contracts.

According to Peterson, applicants must be within the following age limits; sopranos, 18-30; mezzo-sopranos and contraltos, 20-30; tenors, 20-30; baritones, 20-32; and basses, 20-33.

Annual All-State Band & Choir Concert slated for Saturday

Select music students from high school bands and choirs throughout Nevada will gather at UNLV campus for the annual All-State Band and Choir Festival, Feb. 8-10.

The festival is sponsored by Nevada Music Educators

Association and the UNLV department of music performers will be open to the public in the Judy Bayley Theatre at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 10.

Two guest conductors, one for band and one for choir, will supervise the groups.

Dr. Douglas R. McEwen, director of choirs at Arizona State University, will conduct the all-state chorus. In wide demand as a conductor and clinician, McEwen has supervised 16 all-state choirs and many more festival chorus groups from coast to coast.

He has also toured the Middle East and Europe as an assistant conductor and soloist with Roger Wagner Chorale.

Conductor for the band students will be Benton Minor, associate professor of music from California State University at Fullerton and coordinator of instrumental music and conductor of the wind ensemble.

A total of 25 Nevada high schools will be represented in the festival, according to Dr. Douglas R. Peterson, coordinator of the event since 1970.

The festival has met at the University of Nevada, Reno campus for the past two years.

Clark County students in band will number 58. There will be 62 choir students.

CHECKMATES AT UNLV

The Checkmates back together in a filmed interview in the Fireside Lounge of the Moyer Student Union while the Hidden Forest Blues Band warmed up the audience.

Audience reaction tells the truth about any concert, and the Checkmates in the packed student Union Ballroom last Thursday night got all the reaction that anyone could ever hope for. The crowd loved them.

The audience also said something to the Hidden Forest Blues Band, who kicked off the evening of great sounds and great crowd reaction to the semesters first concert.

A slowly growing crowd sat and listened quietly through each of their numbers, giving varying applause at the completion of each song.

They seemed to be good enough musicians, but lacked whatever the secret ingredient is that marks a group for greatness and excites a crowd to its feet.

The Checkmates certainly didn't lack that. Several times they had the entire audience on their feet, even standing on their chairs.

It was a well spent evening, put on by the finest local group to ever come out of Vegas.

They had the crowd on their feet more than once during their concert.

The Checkmates have what it takes to excite an audience.

"Trojan Woman"

"The Trojan Women," an account of the sorrow experienced by the women who are captives of the Greeks at the fall and destruction of ancient Troy, has been cast at UNLV.

The play will be performed at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 23 and 24, March 2 and 3, and in an afternoon show at 2:30 p.m. Feb. 25 in the Judy Bayley Theatre.

Director Dr. Jerry L. Crawford of UNLV's speech and theatre arts department recently announced the large cast of 28.

Graduate student Ernestine will play the central character Queen Hecuba of Troy, and her daughter Cassandra is acted by theatre arts freshman Greata Franchi.

Poseidon, God of the Sea, will be played by Eddie Hailey. Barbara Brennan portrays Athena, Goddess of wisdom, arts and warfare.

Shayne Collins and Randy Garrison are cast as leaders of the following chorus of Trojan women: Maureen Abell, Barbara Apple, Toby Artman, Rhonda Blair, Anne Dilorio, Sandy Feink, Judy Harnagel, Carla Lawrence, Pam Noble, Marian Plamer, Maryan Stephens and Gertude Storm.

The Greek military leader Menelaus will be played by George Mazzara and his wife Helen, the vain, beautiful temptress whose abduction started the long war, by Diane Robison.

Portraying Andromache, daughter-in-law of Hecuba, is Lark Williams while Zim Weakley plays her son, Astyanax. Mel Hamilton is cast as the Greek herald.

Tom Andrew, Lyn Beffort, Michael Bohannon, Alan Kist and Marvin Weakley will play the Greek soldiers.

The play, written by Euripides, is a comment on the evils of war. As the ancient city burns, the leasing female figures of Troy recount their losses in moving and poetic passages.
