BY MAUREEN HEHER
STAFF WRITER

UNLV's very own museum of Natural History has opened in new, enlarged quarters right near the UNLV campus.

Located at 1310 Ascot Drive, number 5, it is just down the street from the former building. By 1975, the museum, which is a department of the University and partially funded by the Junior League of Las Vegas hopes to move onto the campus itself, perhaps in the Humanities Building.

"We are really pleased with the new location," said Dr. Shellah Brooks, UNLV professor of anthropology.

"Thanks to the owners of the building, we were able to design the interior exactly the way we wanted. We hope that everyone in the community takes time to visit our new facility," Brooks added.

More than 130 visitors were counted during the open house and an average of 200 people a week have since discovered the new building.

Indian artifacts including beaded, ceremonial hatchets, jewelry, pottery and an array of knives and arrowheads all line the walls. Dioramas depicting Piate Indian life are also on display.

Most artifacts are from the Rockwell on Minarik collection, but graduates and undergraduates working for the Nevada Archeology Survey contribute to the museum through their excavations.

CSUN Elections Next Week

UNLV students will elect new executive officers and class senators in CSUN Elections being held in the next few weeks.

This Friday is the final day for candidates to file for one of the seats. Forms can be picked up in the CSUN office.

Candidates will be narrowed down to two contenders for each office in the Primary Election being held next week, March 28 and 29.

Up for grabs are the offices of student body president, vice-president, and treasurer, and two senators each from the Freshman, Sophomore, Junior, and Senior classes.

A General Election April 11 and 12 will produce the final winners in each category.

CSUN Senators Deal With Various Issues

BY DIANNE TRAHAN
STAFF WRITER

CSUN election rules were set down, budget irregularities were discussed and two senators lost their seats at the last student Senate meeting, March 14.

Excepting on change the rules governing the campaigns which began Monday, were approved. Candidates under the amended rules are allowed to tape their posters to metal surfaces.

The financial report of CSUN was also discussed at the meeting.

Senator Mike Malone asked why $2251 had been removed from the radio funds savings account and for what purpose.

Toby Bennett, CSUN secretary, explained that the money was used to finance the yearbook which had run over its budget last year.

Dianne Trahan, The Yell's Layout and Composition Editor has added a list of talents to the staff. As a second semester student, Dianne has geared much of her extra time to writing and laying out The Yell's 16 pages of weekly copy.

With a year left before she must chose a major Dianne will remain enrolled in the University College, where she is leaning more and more to a journalism major.

Unfortunately, UNLV does not offer such a program, and Dianne feels that she will transfer after her sophomore year is completed to a California State or University college that offers the major.

Nevada Solons Hear Law School Proponents

Las Vegas supporters of a law school for Nevada had a chance to make their case before a joint committee of State Legislators Friday.

At a public hearing held in the Student Union at UNLV before a crowd of 80 persons and the committee members who made the trip heard a number of statements in favor of the school. All favored placing it in Southern Nevada.

Ten of the 14 total members of the Senate and Assembly Education Committees which sponsored the hearing were not in attendance.

Those who did attend were Las Vegas Senators John Foley, Senate Education Chairman, Joe Neal and Chic Hecht. Assembly Education Chairman Jack Schofield also of Las Vegas chaired the hearing.

A statement was made that the UNLV administration favored the funding of a school of architecture over a law school.

However, President Roman Zorn, who attended the meeting but did not speak, said this was "not accurate."

He said his administration has "presented a number of possible proposals for professional schools, including law and architectural schools," to the legislature, but has "assigned priority to none."

The speakers argued both the justification for a law school and why it should be located at UNLV rather than at Reno.

Viet Nam's Casualties Gone and Forgotten.

KENNETH BAXTER
YELL EDITOR

Reading the front page of any newspaper, turning on the news on radio or T.V., or even watching Sonny and Cher has resulted in only one thing since the cease fire agreement back when!? The rejoiciful reunions of the gallant returning warriors from Viet Nam. POW's you say? Call them what you will, it seems that they are more than predominatly members of the officers club. Or to phrase it for the laymen, they are lifers in His Majesty's service.

Being glad for the 500 or so returning vets and their families is of course the American way. What about the 25,000 men who were maimed and left limbless from this thing called a police action for ten long years? They are all but forgotten except for their monthly checks from Uncle Sam to ease the "pain" of a missing arm or worse. The thousands of men in prison for having the courage to say no to a war that they felt was unjust continue to be ignored. The 50,000 - 100,000 draft dodgers or deserters have been labeled much worse.

The point is that all the "hoop-da-la" about these courageous lifers is very touching, but if we allow ourselves to forget this war like we have forgot all the other senseless conflicts, it may happen again.

Of course that time could be the last for America as we know it. Wake up America to the true and very real ugliness of "your" involvement in Viet Nam. Please don't let it happen again.

CSUN PRIMARIES AND ELECTION TIME!

The price of meat continues to rise with Lake Mead; Sammy Davis, Frank Sinatra, and Bob Hope all share Richard Nixons political beliefs; zero population control has been attained in the US of A; LV's air continues to get worse; and CSUN's annual elections for the executive branches and senators is around the corner.

What else is new you say?

Did you know that the budget for the year is about $100,000? Did you know that you pay $27 a semester just to maintain the Student Union like it is being maintained and used? The list of these $$$$$$$$$ signs is as long as the road to Tipperary! And what do the students do about it? If I had the answer I wouldn't be asking the question.

Why not ask the question of one of the studnets running for the CSUN vacancies. Maybe one of them will!

COLUMNIST MARREN'S ARGUMENTS AREN'T STICKING TO THE POINT

To The Editor:

I am familiar with some of the efforts of Terry Marren in support of legislation to establish a law school within the University of Nevada system. I share that desire, so find it difficult to take exception to any efforts to that end.

Mr. Marren's opinions in the "Yell", and as reiterated in the March 11, 1973 edition of the "Review Journal" deserve some comment.

It is with regret that I notice that Mr. Marren invoked the argumentum ad hominem -- argument against the man --, rather than a development of a logical argument about the question. It is, of course, for him to prove that Mr. James Bilbray or Mr. William Morris, "are worried about a Nevada Law School."

The inference, when in context, being that the lawyers in this state need fear a presumptive threat of future competition.

I think it far more germane to point out that there is enough work for all; thereby showing a need for a law school.

Example--the need for good legal representation for the poor; or someone to fight for environmental problems. Those examples being areas that an attorney who is well established in the "divorce mill" might not choose to enter.

A recent graduate, one who has attended a Nevada Law School, and is familiar with our States problems; might approach them.

Let's not alienate Bar Association members; at present we have their support.

There are enough fallacies in Mr. Bilbray's argument to address ourselves, to; let us answer those.

One World Crusaders

To The Editor:

I am writing to inform you of my sincere opinion of the letter in your last publication concerning One World Crusade. The writer's opinion that the members forced literature in the faces of students seemed extremely exaggerated to me on the basis of my experience with them.

Last fall I attended the University and was approached by one of the members of the movement. His manner of communication was very courteous. He had the attitude of one with concern for the world's situation, and the desire of all of the people on earth to unite.

As a student who has been studying the philosophy since October, I am appalled at the apathetic attitude toward world unification shown in the letter. I feel it is necessary to correct the slander of the One World Crusaders.

Obviously the person who submitted the letter did not respect his own opinion enough to sign his own name. This indicates to me that he was only blowing out unnecessary hot air!

THE NATIONAL SCENE

Looking at the 1976 Presidential Possibilities

By Larry Sabbath

In looking ahead to the 1976 Presidential race it is possible to see some really interesting developments. The rumors currently being carried in the national press about the change in party by Governor John Connally lead to many avenues of speculation.

Given the middle of the road image of the Texan, it would be a relatively easy switch for him if the opportunity presents itself. Unlike the situation that John Lindsay found when he attempted an immediate run for the Presidency after changing party registration, Connally has had experience serving under Nixon in the cabinet. It was poor Lindsay's misfortune to attempt to change parties and campaign for the highest office without paying any of the dues that one must.

If it is true that the Governor is considering Senator Brooke of Massachusetts a running mate, the Democrats may be in danger of losing a great portion of their traditional support. If there have been two groups of the American population that have consistently been in the Democratic fold it has been the South and the Blacks.

It should be remembered that just about the only decisive majority in the 1972 election was contributed to the Democrats by blacks. If the Republicans are able to nominate a black of Edward Brooke's stature they just might be able to swing a major change in the voting habits of Black Americans.

Coupled with the continuing loss of the once solid South, the position of the national Democratic coalition is in deep jeopardy. Much of this analysis is dependent on the nominees of the Democrats, and that is even more speculative to consider. It would be most interesting to see the voting pattern of the Black Americans if the Democratic candidate was someone of the Kennedy ilk and he was opposed by a Connally-Brooke ticket.

Mention of the possibilities of a Black Vice Presidential candidate brings another question to mind. In recent years there have been a number of Vice Presidents who have ascended to the Presidency. It would really be ironic if the Republicans were the first party to elect a President who is black. It would even be more ironic if he were able to get into that position because of a Southern politician.

This speculation is probably very premature, since the Republicans can practically be counted on to ignore this obviously strong ticket and nominate the less electable but also less controversial ticket of Agnew-Finch.

Members of Spanish La Raza Group Giving up too Easily

To The Editor

La Raza of UNLV is a student organization whose purpose is to create self awareness among the Spanish speaking students within the community and the university.

The group meets once a week for an hour in room 307 of the Student Union Building. The agenda takes a couple of days to a week depending on what is going to be discussed.

As I stated before, the groups' purpose is to create awareness among the Spanish speaking students, but can a group such as this create awareness among other students when the majority of the members are not aware of themselves? How can they create awareness when all they do is complain that people are not aware that a problem exists for the Spanish speaking people in the university and elsewhere.

I guess I could use all sorts of rhetoric to explain why this occurs, but that would be a waste of time and effort. The only explanation I can give is that in an hours' time I can see a fear that emerges from the faces of the members.

I can see a sense of insecurity; a security I have never experienced before. And I ask myself is it worth it to waste my time and effort with a group of people that are afraid to act because it means work, and with work something that might bring about change.

The change might create the awareness they desire, but with the creation of awareness, responsibilities are brought forth that the majority of the group can't handle.

The creation of awareness also brings forth questions such as, how can we solve the problems that the Spanish speaking have? Oh! we can offer suggestions and make demands, but the majority of the members don't want to follow through with the suggestions and demands we ourselves make.

They fear the work, they would rather cry discrimination and quit when the going gets rough, rather than back up their demands and suggestions.

La Raza may be a group name, but in reality it is a farce because only a few really want to work, and the rest want the glory of being associated with a name regardless of its' actions, and complain when things don't pan out.

Someday, maybe someday, the fear and the insecurity will disappear. Maybe someday La Raza of UNLV will take the responsibility that comes with making demands and suggestions, maybe someday La Raza of UNLV will become aware of itself, maybe!

A Dissolved Member of La Raza.

One World Crusade Defended by Reader

To The Editor:

I am writing in response to a recently published "Letter to the Editor" regarding the One World Crusade.

The One World Crusade originated in Seoul, Korea, and has spread to over thirty nations and half a million people. Different cultures, religions, disciplines and age groups find common ground for cooperation through the unification principles.

It has been taught as an accredited course at the University of California, Berkeley, also through the free University and lectures to classes at Yale, Brown Oxford, City College, Columbia, the Sorbonne, University of Munich, University of Tokyo, Yonsei University (Seoul, Korea), and at the International Christian Fellowship held at the Church Center, United Nations, New York City in October of '71.

Last month 110 professors from the Orient gathered in Seoul to hear the Unification Principles and were extremely positive.

Professor Arnold Toynbee has critiqued "Full Circle" the unification principle in scientific terms as:

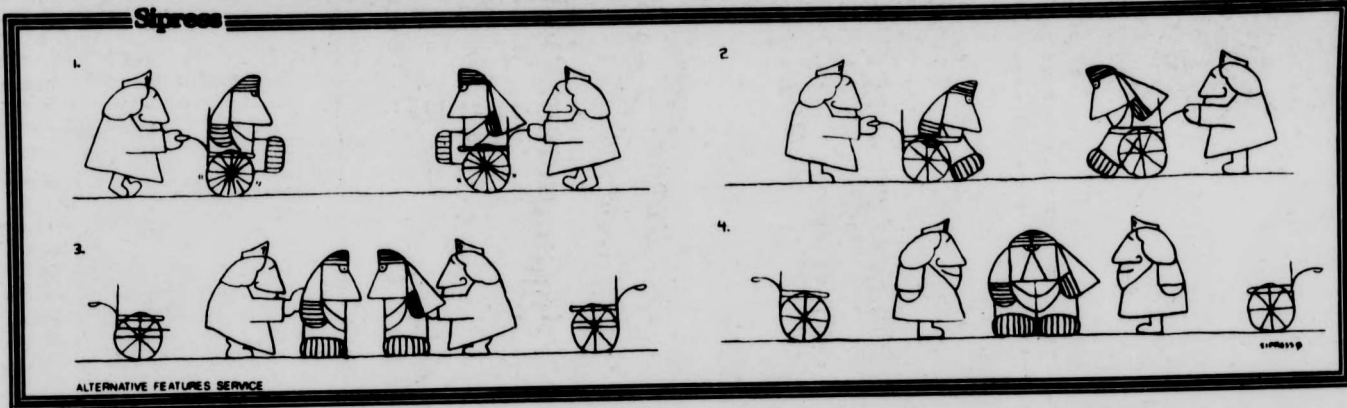

...the book that gives me encouragement. It opens up the possibility of unifying 'the two cultures.' I am happy to find my own field set, in this book, in a comprehensive framework.

The Principle is being widely shared and received in every state of the continental United States. Perhaps you can understand our enthusiasm for this new club at UNLV.

On behalf of the local club members, I would like to apologize for any offense we have given to anyone. The Principle teaches harmonious give and take produces growth. We only hope to be stimulating and since the world is in such trouble there is a feeling of urgency. However, I was surprised at the protesting letter because this is an unusually courteous group.

We believe only in a dominion of love and truth, not force. Hopefully OWC will help to open up UNLV to the world's situation.

(Miss) Linda Marchant
Advisor, OWC at UNLV

THE NEVADA SCENE

Are Pay Toilets a Communist Conspiracy?

By Terry Marren

If any of you visit our Nevada legislature you will be truly amazed. At first it appears so unorganized that one wonders how they get anything done. Perhaps the structure of the legislature has something to do with that.

Any bill must go through a long series of steps before it becomes law. First, a person or group must contact a legislator and convince him to introduce and support the bill. Once that support is rallied the next step is to go to the bill drafter. Here the legislator is counseled as to if the bill is unlawful or already covered by some long forgotten section of the Nevada Revised Statutes.

It can take up to three months for the bill to come from the bill drafter to the first floor reading. To make it easier we will follow an assembly bill. The bill always goes to the sponsors house first.

The bill is briefly mentioned at this first session and then sent to a designated committee. It is the duty of the committee to hold hearings and gather information concerning the proposed bill. This is where the kooks and interest groups come out of the woodwork.

I remember one bill in some state legislature a few years ago trying to ban pay toilets. A member of the John Birch Society stated that pay toilets were "a Communist plot to constipate America." The bill is also amended in committee and if that happens it goes back to the secretary for a reprint before the committee vote. When it finally gets back it is voted on by the committee and if it gets a majority it is then sent to the floor with a DO PASS. If it does not get a majority it gets a DO NOT PASS. A DO PASS generally has an 80% chance of passage on floor.

So the bill is read the second time before the entire body and it is then briefly discussed. If there are enough objections to the bill or it's new amendments, it can be sent back to committee for reconsideration or to another committee. If the discussion is mild the bill will be voted on. If it passes the house by a majority then it goes to the other chamber and is never seen again by the entire body.

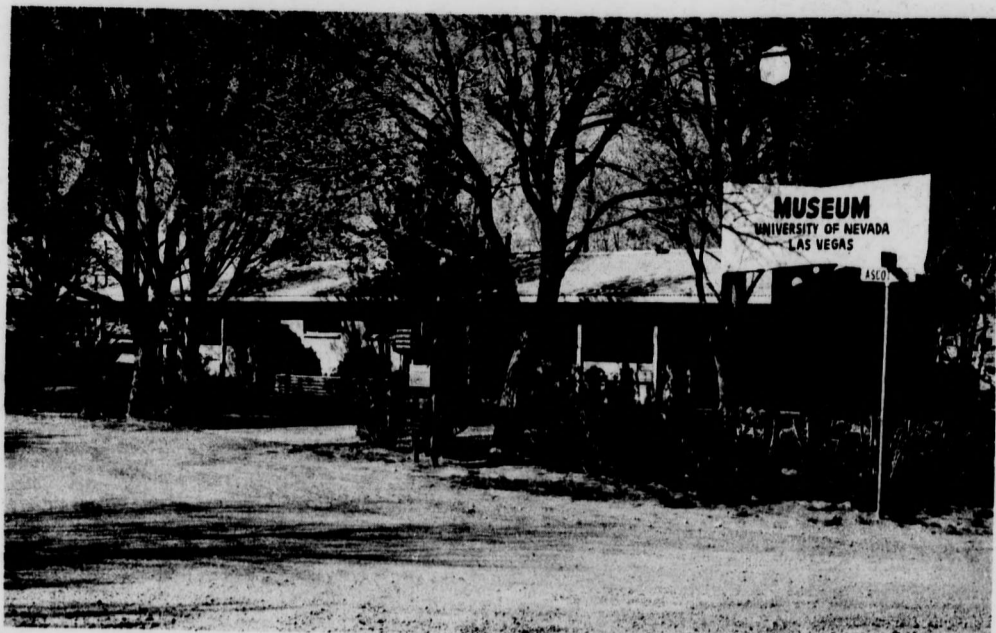

Now our bill goes to the Senate and goes through the same procedure. When the bill emerges onto the Senate floor from committee, very often the bill is completely different from the original version. On some very hot issues the use of the joint committee conference is used. Here both the Senate and the Assembly committee concerning the bill come together to compromise and perform phrase surgery.

The one aspect of my visit to our legislature that most interested me was the microscopic view offered by one committee hearing. That is I felt I was only seeing about one eighth of the finished product. Many times a bill actually meant quite a different thing by the time it went to the Governors desk for signature. This is a product of our bicameral legislature. The only state with only one house is Nebraska. I feel that this would make for a more efficient system, but I don't feel we could go to one house in Nevada.

When one observes the Nevada legislature, one thinks that the prime object is to retard change rather than to move ahead. I believe that this is the true function that our legislature is performing.

If you have the time drive up to Carson City and watch them go into their act. Most of them can't remember your name through a five minute conversation with you. In fact after you talk to them ask them if they remember your name. I think you could even leave your name tag on. When you see these people it will be easy to determine what is public image and what is the real man or woman. I saw very few real people and a hell of a lot of shells.

Two live reptile and amphibian exhibitions at one end of the hall enables students to watch these animals' food and sleeping habits. Occasionally, students are allowed to handle the harmless gopher snakes and advice is given on what makes good pets to keep.

Bob Leavitt, the scientific photographer for the museum, explained that it is important for children to handle things. "Not everything here is kept behind a glass barrier. Grinding stones are left out on tables for them to touch and even grind some wheat on. Skulls of antelopes and animal skins are free to touch."

Leavitt said it was surprising the number of children who had never actually felt animal skins or antelope horns before.

The Education Program brings in up to 500 Clark County students a week or the members on the staff at the museum visit schools and present lectures on archeology, anthropology, and geology. According to Leavitt they try to teach what it exactly means to live an Indian life style and their process of changing when the white man came.

Dr. Richard Brooks is the director of the museum with an efficient 5 membered staff: Bob Leavitt, Lenore Embree - President of the Southern Nevada Herbatology Association, Maureen Moen - Cataloguer Secretary, Suzanne Turgeon - Secretary and Christy Plain - project assistant to Sheila Brooks.

The Museum of Natural History is open free to the public from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturdays and from 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

thusly a better paper for the students."

"At Gorman the Editor was appointed by the journalism teacher, but we still had a lot of freedom of thought", commented Dianne when questioned about the high schools censorship policies.

Dianne also feels that the newspaper should not be influenced by the CSUN Senate on matters of importance simply because they are "paying part" of the bill.

During her summer vacation she would like to work for one of the local papers to get on-the-job experience as a copy girl or part-time reporter.

When questioned about UNLV's environment she said, "It is not what I thought college would be like. I expected more involvement from the students than this campus has displayed since I started my classes last fall."

With student government giving activities $50,000 a year, Dianne feels that some of this money would be better spent on the much talked about FM station that has been again proposed by the Senate.

Because of the University's lack of any journalism outside of Professor van Betten's class and The Yell, Dianne feels that she she will continue to lend her increasing talents to next years staff and possibly transfer before her junior year.

Law School Chances Look Slim for State

Dr. Ralph Roske of the UNLV History Department drew a strong response from the crowd when he said, "Give the average student a chance," in explaining how it has become vastly more difficult for Nevadans to qualify for law schools in the last few years.

The sentiment that it has become nearly impossible for Nevada students to enter schools outside the state was echoed by most of the speakers at the hearing.

President of the Pre-Law Students Association at UNLV, David Harrington, informed the committee that interim facilities are available on campus to house a law school while, if authorized, a permanent facility is built. He also gave the figures of 139 pre-law students at UNLV, 50 per cent of whom, he said, are veterans.

Attorney Neil Galatz summed up the inadequacies of the present legal library in the Clark County Courthouse and also noted that many continuing legal education programs now available in Las Vegas could be easily tied in to the curriculum of a law school.

Las Vegas City Attorney, Earl Gripenrog, who is now looking for votes in his re-election bid, presented a brief statement on behalf of himself and the Mayor endorsing the idea.

Local Real Estate Agent Jan Gould cited the official figure of 331 high school seniors indicating law as their first career choice and came up with her own figure of 447.

At various times the lawmakers asked those giving testimony to send the committees certain facts and figures, including the cost of establishing a law library and the number of UNLV students denied admission to law schools in recent years.

The present chances of the proposal for a Nevada Law School being passed during this session of the legislature are considered slim.

Dr. Ralph Roske speaks before a joint committee of state legislators who are considering

right) Joe Neal, Jack Schofield, John Foley, Chic Hecht, and speaker Dr. Ralph Roske.

I have to thank Anita Ward for her creative additions to my article. Leaving McDonalds must have seared some imagination. I promised her that I would put in a recipe for chile, but Lloyd Gangwer is suppose to give me a good one, so I'll be patient. Also if any of you out there in Rebel land have any special recipes I would appreciate trying them and putting them in the corner.

If you still haven't seen a Rebel baseball game, you're missing a unique experience. For this week's delight you get a munchie Donna Moreno has wanted me to try for quite some time. I would have put it in sooner, but I lost it for awhile. So next B-ball game make, bake and take:

Donna's Hermit Cookies

- You need:
- 1 cup packed brown sugar
 - 2/3 cup butter
 - 2 eggs well beaten
 - 1/2 teaspoon baking soda in 1/2 cup hot water
 - 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
 - 1/3 teaspoon nutmeg
 - 2 teaspoons vanilla
 - 2 1/2 cups flour
 - 1/2 cup rasins
 - 1/2 cut nuts

Do:
Cream together sugar and butter. Add eggs and baking soda. Mix together. Add remaining ingredients and mix.
Drop spoonfuls onto greased cookie sheets and bake in middle of 300 degree oven until brown. (About 10 min.)
For a little cook's culture this week try picking up a book of sketches by M.C. Escher either in ours or the Clark County library.

LDS Student Organization To Host Youth Devotional

On March 22nd, Paul H. Dunn, of The First Council of Seventy of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, will present a devotional to the youth of this area; ages 17 through 25, though others are welcome.

The program hosted by the Latter-day Saint Student Association of UNLV, is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. in the East Stake Center of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, located at 1735 East Paiora Avenue.

As an outstanding school athlete, participating in baseball, football, basketball, golf and track, Paul H. Dunn cultivated a love for life and dedication to his chosen beliefs. That forced a live, motivating foundation for the dynamic presentations characteristic of Dr. Dunn's style.

Since entering the field of educational administration after grappling with the decision of whether to continue a professional baseball career, with which he had been connected for four years, Dr. Dunn has obtained an A.B. degree in religion from Chapman College in 1953, an M.S. in educational administration (1954) and a doctorate in the same field (1959), from U.S.C.

He has authored five books, among which are: You Too Can Win, Ten Most Wanted Men, Meaningful Living, and I Challenge You.

New Regent Open to Students

By Patrick Denley

Nedra Joyce wants to be known as a University Regent who is accessible to students.

'I will try to meet and talk to students who have any problem they want to discuss,' the newly appointed Mrs. Joyce stated.

She recently left the position of assistant city editor at the Review-Journal to join the KORK-TV news staff. She can be reached or a message left for her there.

After graduating with a BA in Journalism from UNR in 1959, the Reno-born mother of two moved to Washington D.C. where she worked on a newspaper and as a political aide.

She returned to Las Vegas in 1967 and got a reporters job at the R-J.

Nedra is the type of individual that might not be expected to wind up in a seat on the University Board of Regents which governs the expenditure of over one half of the total Nevada state budget.

She is pleased that many of the calls and greetings she has received since Governor O'Callahan's announcement have expressed satisfaction that an 'average person' will occupy the post.

'I am not a politician she states firmly.

'This is not a stepping stone opportunity for me,' she continued, 'I have no interest in any further political office.'

Mrs. Joyce called the job the 'only public office I ever felt I could personally be involved with.'

She has long been interested in the position, but never dreamed that she would have a chance at it.

'I want to help make the University what it really should be,' she observed.

As education writer for most of her time at the R-J, Mrs. Joyce learned much about the functions of the Board of Regents while covering their meetings.

'UNLV has finally almost achieved parity with UNR', she stated.

'As soon as we finish the Performing Arts complex and the Life Sciences building, we need a comprehensive study of all the new programs which UNLV needs,' she continued.

'UNLV doesn't have a single doctoral program,' Mrs. Joyce emphasized.

Nedra is aware of the many reasons why Nevada should consider creating a law school as part of the University system, and supports the call the Board of Regents has already made for a feasibility study behind establishing more professional schools.

She would like to 'help dispell once and for all the North-South conflict on the Board which has been a problem for years.'

Nedra's attitude towards her new responsibility was reflected when she said, 'I look forward to being able to influence and improve the education of future Nevada leaders.'

REBEL SPORTS

REB SWEEP

The UNLV baseball team ran its record to 11-3 for the season while entertaining the Dons from the University of San Francisco.

The Rebels, in their first game in the new ball park, and in their first WCAC start of the year, scored 6 runs in the fifth inning to overtake the Dons in Friday's game.

Herb Pryor, the Rebel hurler, had been the victim of poor fielding through the first four stanzas. He was down 5-0 before the big Reb sticks made their appearance.

Mike Brock delivered the first runs for the locals with a booming triple. Randy Grigg then scored Brock with a single, but had to leave the game because of a leg injury.

Clarkson then came into run for Grigg. After Bill Milne had singled, Dan Chambers then struck out, Eklund walked to bring Jim DiFiore to the plate. DiFiore, in a bit of a slump, then came thru with a long double to clear the bags. Jim was thrown out trying to stretch the hit into a triple and that ended the inning with UNLV on top to stay.

Pryor pitched well all day and had himself out of a jam more than once when errors hurt him. Only one of the SF runs were earned. Herb struck out 10 Dons while running his record to 3-1.

On Saturday the Rebs found the heavy winds to their liking. They pounded out a total of 17 hits for the day, including 4 home runs in the first game. UNLV won the first game 14-2 as they punished the SF pitchers. The second game went to the Rebs by a score of 6-5.

Eight Reb hitters split 11 hits in the first game as the result was never really in doubt. Shortstop Chris Zockoll was 2 for 2 before being taken to the hospital to get stitched up. He also scored 2 runs and drove in a run. Brock picked up his third triple of the day and DiFiore, Leary, Milne, and the pitcher Bonnell added home runs to aid the cause.

Bonnell, now 3-1, struck out 11, gave up 2 earned runs, but needed last inning help from freshman Dennis Olson.

During the second game a considerable amount of time was spent watching USF UCLA come back after leading by only a point to beat the Dons, 54-39.

The Rebs scored 4 runs in the bottom of the second inning and overtook the Dons. They were not headed the rest of the afternoon as they picked up 2 runs to win on 6 hits.

Jim Byrne picked up his 4th win against no defeats, but needed some help from Stan Eisen in the seventh. Byrne gave up only 1 earned run, while striking out 4.

Pat Leary and Bill Milne each drove in 2 runs to carry the Rebs to their series sweep over the hapless Dons. It just was not a good day for USF athletics.

POMONA TRACKS DOWN REBELS

WCAC DROPS USOC

LOS ANGELES - The West Coast Athletic Conference has withdrawn from the United States Olympic Committee, according to Rev. Wilfred H. Crowley, S.J., Commissioner.

Father Crowley stressed that the Conference will continue to cooperate in the development of strong Olympic competitors, but that a restructuring of the USOC is urgently needed.

"At the present time," he stated, "proper representation is not accorded the school-college community and the athletes. The monopoly exercised by the international franchise holders is not in conformity with principles of American democracy."

The WCAC Commissioner expressed the hope that the Olympic Committee can be restructured according to the principles adopted recently in Chicago by The Committee for a Better Olympics.

This decision by the WCAC follows the action taken by the NCAA and many major conferences in the country.

Lloyd Mitchell

Saturday at the new track, the Rebels grabbed a second place, finishing behind one of the strongest track teams in the nation-Cal Poly, Pomona.

The triangular scoring showed Pomona with 110 points, UNLV with 45, and Azusa managing a weak 26. In the dual scoring, UNLV lost to Pomona, 95-40, and defeated Azusa, 79-68. The Rebels are now showing a 4-4 record.

Competing in winds ranging from 15-25 mph, the Rebs won only 4 events during the long day. In the field events, Carson Madison went 47-10 in the triple jump to obtain a personal record in the event. Madison also placed fourth in the long jump with a distance of 21'10"

Jumping Joel Porter vaulted his way into another first place. He went 14'6" and got really close to clearing 15'4" in the pole vault.

Switching to the running events, Mel Turner turned in a 49.5 in the 440. He ran the last half of the event into those gusting winds, and still managed to grab a first with good time. Turner also ran a fine leg in the 440 relay.

Lloyd Mitchell, chosen as the "trackster of the week", garnered a first in the 440 intermediate hurdles with a 55.8 showing. Mitchell also placed in the 120 high hurdles and grabbed a personal record of 45'10" in the triple jump.

Overall, Coach Edwards was satisfied that the UNLV boys did so well against such a high caliber of competition. He felt that the team did as well as was expected. "We ran into some very talented tracksters. The Cal Poly team is a very talented team. I feel that our whole team did quite well."

Next week the Rebels go against Northern Arizona University, and Laverne College.

APOLOGUE: Last week the YELL ran a picture of a trackster with the name Ed Cantu for an identification. As we all know the young man shown was not really Ed Cantu, but was a runner from Palomar. This week we are showing the full uncropped picture to show to Ed and the world that a mistake was made; by our printer of course. We know who Ed is and we hope he will accept our apology.

JUNIOR CENTERFIELDER J.M. DIFIORE, shown here hitting in the old ball diamond, became the first Rebel to hit a home run in the new baseball park with a smash in the first game of Saturday's doubleheader. Jim is a returning letterman, and hit .320 last year.

AFTERTHOUGHT:

The baseball team is off to a great conference start. The pitching staff is carrying the load now but the hitters are coming around. The new park is really nice. It was very well planned, the little hills provide just enough of a windbreak to keep spectators from becoming too uncomfortable. The BAT GIRLS add a nice touch. It could only happen in Las Vegas. USF will undoubtedly take the road back to California that the Rebel sticks are for real. Speaking of USF, the basketball WCAC champs, they did their best against the Bruins of UCLA. Only it wasn't enough. The slow-deliberate offense they used was very effective in the first half, but they seemed to lack something in last 20 minutes. UCLA advances to the finals of the NCAA basketball playoffs. As one of the four remaining teams they must be considered the odds-on-favorites to repeat. Strong winds held the track team back just enough on Saturday, as they could manage only 4 first place finishes. Lloyd Mitchell was chosen as "Track Athlete of the Week" by Coach Edwards and his assistants. He took one of the Rebel first with a win in the 440 yd. hurdles. (See foto page 10) Cal Poly-Pomona brought a very strong team here for the meet. Check the times for the 100 yd dash. Two young men, who's names I did not get, running unattached, ran the wind-aided 100 in times of 9.3. Luis Livingston is fast becoming the premier Rebel sprinter. Ed Cantu is also setting records in the distances. Joel Porter is re-writing his old pole vault marks. All in all, this may be the finest group of track and field athletes in UNLV's short history. Add to that the fine track and most or all of the school records are in jeopardy. As should have been expected, the tennis team did not have a match until after my deadline. So the anticipated great coverage that they so deserve will be delayed at least a week. The golf team is featured this week, with a picture. They set a new school record for an impressive won-lost record so far this year. Golf is a natural for the Las Vegas Valley area. The pros have been stopping here for many a year. Jerry Tarkanian is still grabbing the headlines here in town,

As I write this he was to make an announcement on Monday(AD)*. His teams showing in the Western regionals was not exactly anticipated. But, I'm glad to see the WCAC team(USF) advance more than just the first round, even if they had to face the "Walton" gang. I pick: UCLA, BUT I don't pick Tarkanian. "Well now," said the dummy. "What do I write about now." Major league baseball will be under way shortly. The big news this year is the designated pinch-hitter to be used in the American League. I am not a great baseball fan, but I am crazy about the Mets. So, it's easy for me to pick the Mets to represent the National League in the World Series. As to who they will face, I like the Yankees, or the White Sox, or Oakland to repeat. Big Deal! Congratulations to Coach Lloyd Booth for guiding the Rancho Rams to the State basketball title. Coach Booth was my first organized hoop coach way back when we opened up R.O. Gibson Junior High School in 1963. I believe the job as the 9th grade coach was his first head coaching attempt. He took us rookies to the city finals. Even then, he was a winner.

Humanities Committee Sponsors Urban Affairs Workshop for all

The role individuals play in the future of the Las Vegas Valley is the theme of a series of four discussions being held once a week from 7:30 to 9:30 pm at the North Las Vegas Civic Center Auditorium.

Designed to familiarize the public with local developmental problems, "An Urban Affairs Workshop" hopes to establish the basis for a more pleasing environment in the community.

The first session entitled "The Physical Environment," was moderated by Ron Thompson, director of the Clark County Regional Planning Council, and brought up such subjects as sewerage, pollution, and population problems.

Last week's workshop, moderated by Robert Hanzel, also with the Regional Planning Council, considered the economic question of whether or not industry should be brought to Las Vegas. Planners agree more time and money should be spent on residential areas rather than tourist spots.

Monday, March 26, Dr. Ron Jack of the Political Science Department will present the panel on the "Political Environment."

Government organization, the power structure, and maintenance of the social structure will be explained in relation to an individual's life style.

Audience participation is encouraged so that the public can have some input in finding solutions to urban problems.

Dr. Jack explains, "We must first create a public awareness of the urban scene. Then we can reassess our priorities to provide the best possible social environment."

A grant from the Nevada Humanities Committee enables the Clark County Regional Planning Council to present this project free to the public.

Nyquil, Contac, Hoax on Public

The cold medicine, "Nyquil", according to Dr. Donald LaBrocque, is nothing more than a 'witch's brew.'

It does not ease sleep as advertised. Rather, says LaBrocque, it makes victims drowsy from its alcohol and antihistamine combination, likely a hazardous combination.

Dr. Carl Arbesam says that the cold "reliever" Contac, does nothing for cold sufferers.

This New York State University professor calls all over the counter cold and cough mixtures, "A hoax on the public."

Tests by UNLV Professor Finds Meats Contaminated

Tests conducted at the University of Nevada in Las Vegas under the direction of a highly qualified specialist have clearly proven that many of the markets in Las Vegas are selling contaminated meat.

Consumers League of Nevada who conducted the tests is now considering legal action against those markets.

Carried out by Diane Lang, a research assistant, under the direction of Dr. Richard Tew, Associate Professor in Biology, the tests found that only 10 per cent of the meat sold in Las Vegas could have passed a state inspection and 40 per cent were actually so contaminated with high bacterial counts that there is a distinct likelihood that persons consuming these products would become ill.

For the past year, the Consumers League has requested that state and local health officials improve the standard for inspection of retail meat stores and the testing of meat products that are being sold to the public.

There has been no response or action. As a result, the CLN conducted its own tests on ground beef products purchased from four supermarkets in Las Vegas.

Health officials say that the present law regarding meat standards is unreasonable and cannot be met and thus no regular inspections have been conducted for the past year.

Five samples of meat were tested and only one out of the five would have passed state inspection. That sample was meat which was prepackaged and shipped from out of state.

All of the other four contaminated samples were packed in Nevada.

Dr. Tew, who directed the tests is a specialist in microbiology and has worked for both government and industry for 15 years as an authority in food poisons. For four years he was a bio-chemist for Oscar Meyer Meat Products Co. and has received a number of awards for work in food poisons and their toxins.

Under present state meat codes a maximum of two million bacteria per gram are permitted. Forty per cent of the samples showed counts of more than 100 million and the worst violator had a count of more than 150 million.

Concurrent tests made by the Board of Health on some of the same stores showed no violations.

Basically every butcher in the state of Nevada can do whatever he wants to as he knows that the health officials refuse to or cannot enforce their own codes, said a CLN spokesperson.

The CLN has requested that a law be passed forcing the Health Department to regularly test meat products.

Independent tests should be made on a regular basis to insure that the health department is actually doing its job, and without these laws, not only is the public buying products that are unsafe but they may actually be poisonous, says the CLN.

Volunteers needed at Consumers League Office

Manned by volunteer help, the Consumers League of Nevada now has an office located at 827 South Fourth Street in Las Vegas.

Already becoming too small to meet the needs of the league, the office is open Tuesday through Thursday, 9:30 to 11:30, and whenever else someone can help out.

CLN wants to hear from all consumers who have something to say.

The office has an automatic answering unit for those who call when the office isn't open.

Taking up to 12 messages a day, the unit often fills up and callers can't leave a message.

Please call again if this happens to you.

CLN is trying to find more volunteers to give a few hours a week to hold down the office.

Rent for the office is $50 a month -- if you can help out with that or have any ideas, please give the league a call.

Also ideas about other office locations -- larger and cheaper -- are welcomed.

CLN Pres. Pat van Betten Wants Support of all Nevada

Dear Nevada Consumer,

This is a very special issue of the Consumer League Newsletter. We have abandoned our regular mimeographed monthly for this one issue because we want to try to reach many consumers through-out the state.

We want to try to demonstrate some of the many areas of concern to all of us. We have stressed some of the basic legislative priorities on a state level, because that is where we are placing the bulk of our energies right now.

We in Nevada need a great deal of legislative reform, and we hope to see much of it happen this year in Carson City.

Nevada consumers are defenseless in the market place, because some of the basic protections, enjoyed by consumers in many other states, are not realities here. We hope that this bird's eye view of the consumer movement in Nevada will make you want to get involved.

No one bankrolls the consumer movement. All of us working with the League donate our time. When we speak on an issue, it is not because we have been paid to testify; when we speak, we speak out of conviction. We speak out of concern for a system that is not fair to the consumer.

It is not fair because many existing laws do not reflect a recognition of the injustices consumers face nor do they adequately protect the consumers' rights in society today.

As you read through some of the many issues highlighted here, you will see that there are solutions. These solutions, however, can only happen if you are willing to carry your share of the load.

The success of the consumer movement rests with each of us -- we must become involved in working for change.

Your potential for getting things done is tremendous. As a first step, become a member of the League, to strengthen our voice when we speak up.

The $5.00 membership, I'm told, is the bargain of the year! (Of course, additional donations are always welcome). If you are a member of an organization, consider having your organization affiliate with us as well. Organizations can get an affiliate membership for $25.00/year, which allows for a liaison person to receive mailings, and for one vote at the annual meeting.

Consumers League came into being because Nevadans wanted a voice in decisions about food quality, product safety, the economy, and all the many issues that affect our lives and our pocketbooks.

Please join us in our efforts to get the job done. Join Consumers League -- invest in yourself! We simply can't get the job done without you.

Most sincerely,

Patricia van Betten
President

INTERVIEW

Batdorf and Rodney

by Bill Becker

PHOTOS BY TOM BORRUP

Tom and I had one and only one reason for being at the Ice Palace Sunday night February 18. John Batdorf had consented to an interview. We watched Batdorf and Rodney practice backstage before they went on and I was hoping the interview would be as good as their music. The two musicians met at the Kitchen at UNLV over a year ago and advanced their music career by recording two albums.

After playing a set on stage they were welcomed back with cheers and applause that shook the four walls of my head. Tom and I were waiting for them in the back.

"That's an encore, that's an encore," Mark Rodney said to John as they reversed their steps back to the begging horde of Vegas boppers.

Eventually they finished and we joined them in the back where beer, $11 cognac, and grass were provided for the groupies, roadies, friends and animals that floated here and there, back and forth, in and out, side by side.

"We'll start as soon as they (Bloodrock) leave, o.k.?" John said as he rolled a number.

Bloodrock took their time about leaving and minijammed as Tom, the mild-mannered photographer, and I, the ever-observing reporter, programmed our conversation with un-words.

"It's hot in here."

"Take off your jacket."

"Good idea. What time is it?"

"Almost 10."

"Already. Gosh it's getting late."

Bloodrock boogied and Batdorf sat with us. Rodney was somewhere else but I started the interview anyway. The tape-recorder went on two questions too late which provided a good laugh for us all.

"Alright, so you met each other in Las Vegas. Did you go to school at UNLV?"

"No, man."

"Did Mark?"

"We never finished high school," John chuckled.

I went on with the questions and he continued his short but friendly answers.

"I'm from Dayton originally and Mark's from New York."

"Why did you come to Las Vegas?"

"Well, for a break from L.A., I guess."

"Well, what were you doing in L.A.?"

"Not too much, man."

This was the mood of the interview. Not too many interesting facts but a lot of pleasant laughter.

"How have you been received in concerts?"

"Good, man."

"Everywhere?"

"Everywhere."

"And where have you played?"

"Everywhere."

"How was the OFF THE SHELF album received by critics?"

"Good, really good."

John did manage to answer me with words other than "good" and "everywhere" for a few questions. He told me that although Batdorf and Rodney were popular only in California, New York and Las Vegas, their albums have had positive reviews in Playboy, Rolling Stone, Free Press, and even the London Disk.

Mark made his appearance and I spoke to him for awhile. As he listened to my questions, the Coca-Cola he was gulping dribbled down his arm.

He told me that jazz guitarists were his ears delight and Edgar Winter is his present favorite artist. John's is Steve Winwood.

This, to me, is contradictory to their style of music. They've been compared with Seals and Crofts, America, Simon and Garfunkle, and other easy listening artists.

Batdorf and Rodney are serious about their music. They play good music that should be heard. They're also friendly people devoid of hang-ups.

"Will you ever play on a session album?"

"Never."

"Never?"

"Never."

"Not even if you're asked?"

"Nope."

"Not even if you're stoned?"

"Nope."

"Not even if they stone you?"

"Maybe...if I get loaded, I'll do anything."

Batdorf and Rodney are interested in playing nice music and smoking grass. Those are the total facts gained from the interview. They record on Asylum Records.

Reviews Needed

The Theater and Music Pages would like students to submit record, play, book, or movie reviews. The best of the batch will be printed each week. Deadline is Friday for each issue.

All reviews must be two pages or less. Turn all copy in at the Yell office on the third floor of the Student Union.

Byrds in Home Nest

If you've been reading the Wrecord Wrap at all, you've noticed that I give everyone a good review. This policy is changed, people. Now's the time to get tough. GRRRRR. Boy, am I mad.

My all time favorite group, the original Byrds, have recorded an album. I've been waiting patiently for it ever since the word was out that McGuinn and Company were together for the second time.

David Crosby, Chris Hillman, Roger McGuinn, Gene Clark, and Michael Clarke have tried and failed to bring back the sounds they innovated in the 60's. Of course, you all remember Turn, Turn, Turn and Eight Miles High. How can anyone forget?

There was a time when I wanted to be a Byrd. The good old days. Ah! The Lovin' Spoonful, Buffalo Springfield, Mamas and Papas and THE BYRDS! They were all too good.

Gradually, each Byrd flew away to do their own thing. Roger McGuinn remained the leader of the band and toiled with the problem of finding suitable replacements for Crosby, who joined with Stills, Nash and Young; Hillman, who hid within the Flying Burrito Brothers and then Manassas; Clark, who recorded unsuccessful solo albums, and Clarke who drummed with the Burrito Bros.

When eyeing the new album, one feels the same enthusiasm as when Deja Vu kicked us to the record store. David Crosby produced the L.P. on Asylum Records (Home of the Heavies). Gene, Roger, David and Chris each wrote two cuts on the album. There are two Neil Young tunes and one Joni Mitchell song. Can you dig a new version of Cowgirl in the Sand? It's on the album. How about Joni's For Free? You got it.

The album is country oriented. I've heard each member do better, much better. I'm disappointed. Still, I love it because I know it'll grow on me. Even though there are places where they sound like Todd Rundgren, the Burritos, and the Eagles, as a whole the album isn't so boring.

They'll be going on tour, hopefully and possibly be recording another album. Times have changed and so have they. It's something you gotta live with. And come to think of it, I'm not so mad anymore. As a matter of fact, this isn't such a punching review. I forgive too easily.

Cuts:

- Full Circle
- Sweet Mary
- Changing Heart
- For Free
- Born to Rock 'N Roll
- Things Will Be Better
- Cowgirl In The Sand
- Long Live The King
- Borrowing Time
- Laughing
- (See The Sky) About to Rain

London Bridge Plays Ballroom

by Bill Becker
Staff Writer

London Bridge is an eight-man band from Provo, Utah. They performed in the Student Union Ballroom March 10th to a crowd of approximately eight people. I'm exaggerating of course, but the audience was unforgiveably small. This, most assuredly was due to the spring vacation which ended the 12th.

Bob Lowe plays trumpet for the band and he's the man I spoke to. Bob, like the other players, is young. Young being 20 and younger still being 17. That's Jeff Kocherans, the bass guitarist. A kid who forgets the words to ROCKY RACCOON. To top it all off, the group is only about a year old. So they have three singles have done relatively well and have hit the number one mark at KEYY in Provo, I Junno. They play alright but I really think they're in the wrong business. The music industry is made up of a lot of hard, throat-cutting people. London Bridge may be able to find success without being subjected to London Bridge makes their own kind of music in the Student Union Ballroom.

But, what about them, you ask? They're good people who do their best to entertain. Bridge records on Capital Records but their music is neither new nor polished for the type of concert they were to present. They're Top 40 and that's a hard medium to break into. Especially if you happen to be Morman and still going to college.

a long way to go and they know it.

Fact is, they harmonize well. The Lettermen liked them and that's how they got on Capital. So at least they have connections. And isn't that the best way to be heard?

Anyway, Bob told me that their the industries rape and if they're capable, they deserve some sort of acclamation. The Troubadore in L.A. wants them. That sounds like it will either help or kill them. Bob didn't even know if the Troubadore was a good place to play. Oh, Bob, poor Bob. You better pick up a copy of the L.A. Times. Innocence is not redeeming.

UNLV to Sponsor Art Exhibition

Original graphic art and the original prints of old and modern master artists such as Pablo Picasso will be on view and on sale in two exhibitions March 19 and 23 at UNLV.

The UNLV Art Gallery will sponsor one-day showings of collections from the Roten Galleries of Baltimore, Md., and from the Lakeside Studio of Michigan.

The Roten exhibition and sale of original graphic art will continue from noon to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday (March 19) in the gallery.

The Lakeside collection to be displayed from 1 to 7 p.m. Friday (March 23) will include original lithograph, intaglio, serigraph and woodcut prints.

The work to be exhibited in this presentation is valued at over $100,000, containing prints by artists such as Albrecht Durer, Jacques Callot and Georges Rouault.

Prints by contemporary artists will be included, and a representative of the studio will be on hand to answer questions.

The Lakeside Studio collection of more than 1,000 original prints tours the country each year, visiting major museums and universities.

Barclay Strings

A concert of semi-classical popular tunes will be featured in a string orchestra performance March 25 in the Judy Bayley Theatre. The Barclay Strings, conducted by Robert Barclay, will appear at 2 p.m.

Guest harpist Lois Craft will join the orchestra and will solo in the world premiere of "Preludio", by Mario Ruiz Armengol.

Sponsored by the UNLV music department and a grant from the Music Performance Trust Funds in cooperation with the Musicians Local 369, the concert is free to the public.
