

Tarkanian Accepts Coaching Position

UNLV Lands Lauded Coach

UNLV has finally landed its first round draft choice. For a Head Coaching position that is,

Jerry Tarkanian has agreed to the very favorable terms and conditions offered to him by the University and the community boosters. The contract calling for a $20,000 yearly salary from the University and a "bonus" of $2,000 a year for filling the Convention Center along with all the "extras" seems to have convinced him and his wife and four children to make the move to Vegas.

After completing five very successful seasons at Long Beach State, Tarkanian decided to lend his talents to the basketball fans of Las Vegas.

The boosters of Rebel basketball since the early days of NSU have reportedly kept "tabs" on Tark since Rolland Todd was awarded the job 8 years ago.

"The decision was not an easy one to make, but I feel confident that I have made the right one," stated the 42 year-old towell chewing mentor.

The University's Intercollegiate Council met with Tarkanian last Friday afternoon for about 70 minutes and then delivered its unanimous approval of his appointment as Head Basketball Coach to President Zorn.

Tarkanian then met a second time with the President that week,

The only remaining formality before Tarkanian's "official" appointment is the Board of Regents approval that should be delivered in their April meeting.

"The community is virtually 100% behind us, and I feel that we have been offered the opportunity to build a great program," Tarkanian stated.

Candidates Heard

The Political Science Students' Association provided an open forum for candidates seeking executive offices in student government on March 23.

The candidates spoke out on important campus issues and answered questions from the audience.

Val Buhecker, candidate for the office of president, told the audience, composed mainly of campaign managers and supporters, that "programs are great but people are more important." Buhecker stated that he emphasizes the individual in his campaign.

Presidential candidate Mike Malone labeled student government a "farce" and vowed that he would change the CSUN government from what it was in the past.

"If you have control of student government you can do a lot more than sitting on your ass outside it", maintained Lloyd Gangwer another contender for the office of CSUN president. Gangwer advocated low cost student housing. He feels that students should utilize their power on the many committees on which they serve.

Dan Wade, the last presidential contender to address the Association, stated that unity was the most important factor in campus government. He supports two "super" concerts and a beer bar

Healthy Living is Message of a New Las Vegas Church

BY TOM BORRUP
STAFF WRITER

Religion - a cause, principal or belief held to with faith and ardor.

One might say that all living humans eat religiously, for the most part. But, only of late do some people --- in this city anyway--- eat as their religion. The Church of Nutritional Science, now about three months old at 10th and Carson Streets, could well be the center from which healthful eating may grow in Las Vegas.

Opening to the public at 11 each morning, seven days a week-- it's a difficult place to describe.

Around eight months ago, Ray Fellows, founder of the church, bought the dilapidated building from the Seventh Day Adventists and formed a group who along with the building became a bona fide church which opened a couple months ago.

Today the chapel looks like sort of a cross between a restaurant and an every day church sanctuary. And, the whole building has been excellently restored by the church people.

Behind the chapel is the kitchen and behind and above are several other rooms. One of these is presently being used as a classroom, another is in the process of being turned into a grainery and upstairs eventually will be more classrooms.

The "message" -- or whatever one might call it -- of the church is nutritional eating. But, any spiritual faith is entirely left to the individual.

Lance von Allmen is the coordinator of the church or sort of the "second person" as he put it.

"We eventually hope to do as (continued on page 5)

Too Much Money to Sports Department?

KENNETH BAXTER
YELL EDITOR

Since the recent turnover in the Athletic Dept. has finally encompassed the #1 job, (Director) and the "Big 3" Head Coaching positions, there has been some controversy as to the worth of such changes to begin with.

The opinion that these people hold is that too much attention ($) is being given to sports and not enough to the academic interests on campus. You know something? They are 100% correct.

Of course athletic programs bring in revenue when they are a success. Long Beach State's lone nationally televised game produced $27,000 revenue for the two competing schools. The gate should have been about the same. Notre Dame is guaranteed $200,000 to play football on the road. The beat goes on.

The donating individuals don't care about music, or science, or art, or even sociology! For sin you say, it is their own right to "give" money as they see fit. And they aim to see first rate college sports, not music concerts or science fairs.

The Judy Bayley Theatre wasn't built with recycled aluminum beer cans. It was built with $$$$$$$$$$ donated by local music "fans" who don't give a damn about watching Jimmy Baker dribble a basketball around Mike Stewart for 2 pts.

Are you beginning to see that it all boils down to where you're at, PRIORITIES. And the right to build by donating the all mighty buck to ventures that you deem as important is your own and no one else's.

The theory in building a winning reputation in sports is that your school's name can be seen from coast to coast on the tube, local papers, magazines and even heard on the radio 24 hours a day.

America loves sports and there is no changing that. And schools become known for their national contenders, not for their fine institutions of learning.

The facts are all there. When was the last time that you heard USC's great Dental school mentioned before their #1 football team?

College athletics is here to stay. So is academics. The choice of interest is up to the individual doing the donating. If you feel that the learning end is being unjustly slighted why not donate $1,000 or even a five or a ten spot to UNLV's growing academic curriculum? President Zorn will only be happy to turn it over to the College or Department that you have it "ear marked" for.

Reader Objects to YELL Ad

To The Editor:

As a taxpayer supporting the University with my tax money, and as a parent supporting your newspaper through fees charged my students attending the University, may I express my deep regret that you have chosen to honor an advertising contract for the balance of this semester with Mr. Greenwald and will be printing a half page ad for the hard core pornofare "Deep Throat"?

May I also express my disillusionment in your solicitation of the ad?

I think it is sad that Mr. Greenwald felt compelled to use the "Yell" as his advertising outlet and to offer a cost reduction to seduce the students to his theatre. You might note that our local daily papers do not carry his ad.

Joyce Haber, a noted columnist, calls this picture the 'hardest core pornofare ever filmed'. I bow to her description.

I had joined members of the University students and community members in commending you on the type of newspaper that was published the last few editions. It is sad to me that you felt it necessary to commit our money (yes, we pay you a salary as Editor) to this end. It is my understanding that the decision to accept this ad was yours alone.

I know it is an impossibility, but were it possible, I would demand the return of My money that is paying your salary and printing of the newspaper.

This is not intended as a censorship of your editorial policy, as we all recognize free speech and freedom of the press. I just want to express my great disappointment.. you had started your job so very well.. I feel a deep personal hurt.. I feel you have personally let me down.

To those of you who patronize the film's showing.. It's your thing!..

Mrs. H. Jefferson

Editor's Note: How can an individual, such as Mrs. Jefferson, bow to "one" individual's description in regards to a matter that even the Supreme Court has trouble in defining? When it comes to what is "socially redeeming, everyone is equally in the dark. Or at least they should be!

As for the identical ad not being printed in the "local" paper. Both the Sun and the RJ are running the ad (white on black) with the simple deletion of the dirty word, "THROAT." Does this monumental change in the ad's structure have some miraculous change on the movies content? I could go on to these untrue and rather simple attempts at trying to "not censor" The Yell, but it is evident by her very nature that it would be to no avail. It is people like Mrs. Jefferson that give porno a bad name.

Day Care Center Praised

To The Editor:

I am writing to comment on the CSUN Senate meeting as reported by Dianne Trahan.

Specifically I would like to recognize the excellent job being done by the women (not "girls") who operate the Day Care facility.

Rest assured that running a good day care facility is no easy job. Mrs. Allen and Mrs. Ranger are conscientious, dedicated, amazingly cheerful even in the midst of rather chaotic moments, and greatly appreciated.

Without the presence of this fine facility I would not have been able to return for my last year of school. Therefore, I am very appreciative of the Center and appeal the CSUN Senate appropriations committee to see that these women get their raises.

Nixon One Step Late in Economy Troubles

By Larry Sabbath

Today's column is dedicated to that master economist, Richard Nixon. It might be more appropriate to label him old "one step late". As most economists will tell you, there is a natural time lag following any development in the economy before its effect is felt by the general public. Because of the President's reluctance to take decisive action the problem has been exacerbated.

It wasn't very long ago that the United States was in the position of facing runaway inflation coupled with unacceptable levels of unemployment. This situation, which college students of the 1960's were told couldn't happen in this country, was a legacy of the Johnson years requiring a quick remedy from the incoming President, Nixon, as a lifetime advocate of rugged individualism, opposed any governmental intervention in the economy beyond limited use of fiscal and monetary tools for fine tuning.

As the astute politician, the President realized that the continual failure of his moderate policies was leading to much public criticism. This led to a complete change in his attitude for more radical solutions; this brought the now-famous phase I price and wage freeze. By instituting such a radically un-Republican program Nixon was taking a major step toward solving the worst symptoms of the economy's failures. It was, however, one step late.

Since economic policies like the price freeze are not felt by the consumer immediately, the results of the program were slow to surface and conditions continued to worsen for a significant time. It is also essential to point out that the freeze did not apply to raw form products.

With this background in mind, we can look at the problem of food products that is currently the major concern of American consumers. It is apparent that the President has earned the title of one-step-late in this sector of the economy. Here we find that it is taking a real crisis, the threat of boycotts and the consumption of pet foods by the public to bring any reaction from the President.

For a long period of time there was no action from the executive offices on the price of food. It is only in recent months that a policy allowing the importation of foreign meat products beyond a stringent quota has been considered. The effect of that new policy is not likely to be felt immediately by the consuming public. It is also clear that the administration of Richard Nixon is not yet ready to act in the food market to restrict prices. Perhaps both of these actions will be one step late.

In the meantime we can follow the fine advice of the President's economic team member Arthur Burns. (He's the same Arthur Burns who was so successful at maintaining prosperity during the Eisenhower years). His advice is "Let them eat cheese."

Youth Wage Lowering Attempted

By Pat Denley Managing Editor

A fight is now being carried on in Congress pitting the economic welfare of the nation's young people against the vested interests of some American businessmen and the Nixon Administration.

In the last session of Congress, a split developed between the House and the Senate over a proposed increase in the federal minimum wage.

The Senate voted to boost the wage to $2.20 per hour for most categories of employment. The current level is $1.60.

However in the House, under pressure from the White House and other business representatives, a similar bill was amended with a clause which allows employers to pay employees under 21 years of age only 80% of the minimum wage which would apply to everyone else! This would serve to keep young peoples wages at their old levels, which are generally quite low now.

Directly implicated in the move to keep wages down is the McDonalds Corporation, McDonalds Chairman of the Board, Ray Croc, donated $255,000 to Nixon's re-election campaign. Now lobbyists for both the hamburger chain and the administration are leading the fight to discriminate against young workers.

The effort to raise the minimum wage for workers reflects the very evident fact that prices have skyrocketed in recent years.

But Nixon has thrown a wrench in the works at young peoples expense for the benefit of his campaign contributors. Does anyone remember how, a few short months ago, Mr. Nixon sang the praises of young citizens in search for votes?

Nixon's efforts have been aimed to hit young citizens right where it hurts - in the paycheck. Almost all students at UNLV work either full of part time, a great many trying to go to school and support themselves at the same time. Whether the lower wage for young people is passed could make the difference for some students in being able to continue to go to school.

Thousands of young Las Vegans work in establishments that pay little more than the minimum wage, such as the many quick food outfits and retail stores, plus many service and maintenance jobs. They stand to be hurt the most by any Congressional action which fails to make a new wage standard applicable to all workers.

The issue should be resolved in the present session of Congress.

Young workers in Clark County who don't agree that they are second class citizens can write and express their opinions to Nevada Senators Alan Bible and Howard Cannon, and Representative David Towell.

Professor Carpenter's Tenure Denial Protested

To The Editor

Dr. George Carpenter, a member of the faculty, a full Professor of Sociology, will not be back this fall. Dr. Carpenter has been denied tenure.

This process is not particularly new in fact it occurs regularly throughout the collegiate world to numerous individuals.

The major reason for this decision is that Dr. Carpenter tends to polarize students. Administration figures interpret this as a liability rather than an asset. Roughly translated, only non-controversial, middle of the road staff are retained unless they have a better than working knowledge of the system, and a talent for politics.

Here at UNLV the criteria generally used for decisions on tenure include Publications, Popularity, and Participation in University affairs.

This whole process has assumed the mask of Bureaucracy. It is an arbitrary, subjective process that can single out an individual. Unfortunately the process relies on a major input at the Department level. Naturally, here can be found conflict on a personal as well as professional level. My point is that there is sufficient latitude here for a highly subjective interpretation of the official criteria.

Dr. Carpenter has been criticized for what students call "earthy" presentations. It is said by those in authority, his lectures contain too little theory. Perhaps this is a fault, but I think not. To all those who have dealt in abstracts for years, pragmatism may indeed seem an errant course, if not threatening.

Dr. Carpenter is concerned with life. He deals with day to day problems such as marriage, divorce, and sex. Apparently, he feels so strongly about these things that he is not willing to keep them locked in a vague metaphysical closet.

Presently, major sociologists everywhere are stepping back and re-examining some of the cardinal tenets of Sociology, so long considered valid. Another interesting note is that a group of students intend to nominate Dr. Carpenter for the Teacher of the Year award.

Dr. Carpenters classes, many electives, are continually full to overflowing, certainly a strange response to an individual the administration has seen fit to remove. The decision is reported to be almost irreversible, probably due to the fact that mistakes are for people, not administrators.

A Need for Expanded UNLV Night Classes Brought Out

To The Editor:

I am a part-time regular student attending UNLV and able to attend only night classes and I am concerned about UNLV's evening program - or rather lack of one.

Those in the community who work an eight-to-five hour workday during the week have a very difficult time acquiring a college education, especially if their interests lie in fields other than Business Administration. Not only is this detriment to learning disheartening but I am sure that it discourages many from seeking a more formal education.

Starting out as a freshman, anticipation for every course beaming in my face, I was faced with closed night sections, closed spring semester courses for a year or more because I was unable to fulfill the prerequisite fall courses, and I have never been able to take at least three full-credit courses in one semester due to conflicting hours and days.

Courses with lab requirements are always unavailable to me since the class or the lab period is held during the daytime hours and both must be taken to receive the credits.

Many of the universities, colleges and junior colleges in the state of California have almost as complete a night program as their day schedule.

UNLV's educational opportunities need upgrading in this respect. We can and should follow this example. If this University is going to serve the community and offer education to all who seek it here, then a more flexible schedule must be made available.

Reader States Objection to Administration Bias

To The Editor:

This is an answer to Unsigned regarding "What about Professors- Tenure or Up for Promotion."

Feedback from students means little or nothing unless it coincides with that of the administration. Unfavorable feedback on an individual who is "in" with the administration is ignored as is favorable feedback on an individual who is not "in" with the administration. Feedback from fellow professors and even department chairmen can be equally effective in many cases.

Just recently tenure was granted for teaching to an individual even though it was opposed by a majority of the faculty and the department chairmen. The person in Question had taught only one or two courses at this University so there was little or no information on his teaching ability. Yet, in another recent case a promotion was turned down because a professor refused to be a "yes" man, even though the department chairmen recommended promotion and student feedback had been satisfactory. There are many similar cases.

Please, unsigned, get back to your studies so that professors and administrators can play their little political games. If you devote your time to your text books and classwork, the administrators will not have to be concerned as to whether a member of the academic staff is a professor or just a "teacher." Ira R. Pornography Called Undefinable

By Vic L. Byers III

By now most of us are aware of A.B. 368 - the porno bill co-sponsored by UNLV's own John Vergiels.

The bill calls for all patrons of adult bookstores to register their names with the store prior to purchasing a book or magazine. A.B. 368 has since been amended to include the registration of one's name prior to purchasing a dirty book or magazine at any store.

This amendment provides an illuminating example of the problems involved in legislating morals - namely, what language to use in constructing a moral statute and where to draw the line.

The language problem is as old as the fight against pornography itself. What is "pornography?" Vergiels and company did as bad a job as everyone else who has undertaken the task. A.B. 368 defined 'pornography originally as being any book or magazine offered for sale in an adult bookstore. Obviously not a very reasonable definition, it is at least viable for purposes of the bill. But then...

Some wise guy approached the legislators and pointed out the fact that some of the books and magazines sold in adult bookstores are also being sold in 'non-adult bookstores' (was it the Yell's very own analyst of things political?). This point rendered the bill's original definition of 'pornography' totally unviable and then began the language problem anew.

And now that the definition of pornography is not "any book or magazine that is sold in an adult bookstore," where can the legislators draw the line between 'acceptable' literature and that elusive thing called pornography?

Obviously, moral legislation in the realm of pornography will be set back for lack of a reasonable definition of that term. My guess is that it will forever defy definition.

P.S. - CSUN elections are approaching. Many fine candidates are competing for various offices in the 73-74 student government. Get out and vote for a change. By the way, if nominations aren't closed, how about Linda Lovelace for Prez?

Architecture has crowded out law at UNLV. Isn't it exciting? Next year our school will open its doors to the 14 Nevada students who have expressed a desire to draw buildings. Hordes of law school hopefuls will again be turned away. Thanx to Jack Schofield and hundreds of others for a damned nice try anyway.

The last few weeks have witnessed the editorial page of this paper devoted to in-fighting between two Yell staffers. I can speak only for myself, but is that all there is going on around here that deserves coverage?

Candidates Outline Ideas in PSSA Election Meeting for students. Della Yeager and Cliff Ferris two other Presidential candidates did not attend the forum.

Vice presidential candidates were on hand for the noon meeting and also expressed their views.

George Braddock favors more student involvement and proposed a series of standing committees to link students, departments, and colleges.

Opponent John Moylan maintained that most campaign platforms were virtually identical but a certain type of personality was needed to carry out these programs. "Vitality is lacking in student government", he stated.

"I stand on my record in the Senate", stated Al Fabbi also seeking the office of vice president. Fabbi advocated the establishment of a student radio station on campus and told the audience that the "basic groundwork had already been laid for the station in the senate."

Contenders for CSUN treasurer

also stated their platforms. Troy Newberry promised "plenty of time and a lot of effort" to carry out the duties of treasurer.

Better planning as a solution to the problems which often stem from the treasurer's office is favored by Rick Schioldager. Schioldager also stated that his background in accounting would aid him in the job.

The last challenger in the race for treasurer, Rick Aniello, stated that he would "submit a monthly financial report on time."

PAID ADVERTISEMENT

To Mister Daniel Wade:

The Political Science Association sponsored a "Meet the Candidates" session last Friday in the Student Union Building which exposed the blind promises and irrational statements of one, Mister Daniel Wade, who is running for CSUN President.

It appears to me that any sensible person who has filed for the Presidency of CSUN would be well-prepared and would have researched the statements he is making.

I am referring to the item on Mister Wade's flyers concerning concerts sponsored by CSUN. Daniel states that the Activities Board this last year has spent $40,000 on concerts to date. Any half-assed research into the budget of the Activities Board, that was approved by the Senate of which he is a member, would reveal that the Board has $20,000 to spend on concerts for the entire year with another end-of-the-year concert pending.

Wade may not agree with what has been done this year concerning Activities but that is not the question, the question is his validity.

Daniel Wade stated at the meeting that he has two dates at the Las Vegas Convention Center for two "SUPER" concerts next year.

I, also, question this statement. If he is at all familiar with the procedure of the Convention Authority, he would hopefully realize that dates are not awarded without first submitting the proposed group.

This leaves two possible assumptions----(1) Mister Wade has already assumed the power of the Presidency and committed or spent next year's budget OR (2) again, Mister Wade has failed to do his homework and has made statements to use as fillers in his platform for lack of any creative ideas.

I believe the later would be the correct assumption and indicates what his role as CSUN President would be if elected.

Possibly I cannot really blame Mister Wade for his statements because his experience in CSUN Senate is extremely limited relative to the other candidates. Mister Wade has been a senator for one month if that long, and was appointed just to fill a vacancy.

In closing, all I can say is that I am disappointed in the lack of knowledge of Mister Wade and the blind promises that this individual is making.

Hopefully, Dan Wade will not have the opportunity to prove his incompetence any further than this campaign.

Natural Foods as Way of Life

a church ought to -- be open 24 hours a day and make the food preparation a minor part," Lance said.

Presently there are five classes being taught there along with the two-hour Sunday sermon, Yoga, Herbology, Organic Gardening, Arts and Crafts and a lecture by Dr. R.C. Pilsner, a local health food advocate.

According to Lance there are seven other classes which are presently organizing. Other groups are welcomed to use the church for their events. "We've had Mormons, Jews, Jesus people, Ekankar people, and Divine Light people ask us about the place and come down here," Lance said.

"There's a great need for a place where people into art and music can do things without being ripped-off for their talents," he said.

In an area on the side of the building where they plan to grow an herb garden, is a place where artists can display work.

According to Lance, "It's sort of like a continuous, year-round church bazaar."

Musicians are welcome to entertain in the chapel and many talented strip musicians and visiting groups have shared their music there.

Interest in the church is growing and every day the number of people who come in for a healthy meal increases.

The menu isn't large but it's interesting. It isn't expensive but it's, most of all good for you.

Six people take part in the daily food purchases, preparation and operation of the church. No one is paid except, more recently, the bill collectors.

All the foods are bought fresh every day.

Laurie Fisher is the guardian of nutrition and about 8 each morning, she makes a few phone calls around town to their regular sources of fresh fruits and produce. She makes certain all the food is grown organically and on certified farms only, and that it all finds its way to the church by 10.

Jennifer Knighton, Gary Hodges, and Shelly Schroder are guides of the church. They will be waiting to serve you if you happen by for a meal.

David Ericson is the keeper of the building, Milt Cornsweaver is the keeper of the school and Dave Anthony is the church Herald.

All the supporting members work outside jobs and Lance spoke highly of their dedication and many hours of service to the church.

Lance is encouraged also by the enthusiasm of people who come into the church and praise it or even offer help.

A UNLV art professor, Rita Abbey after hearing of the church asked several members of a painting and drawing class she teaches to paint a mural for the church.

Ed Herch, Stephanie Runge, Paul

Tzanetopoulos, and Dave Lucas work several hours a week creating a mountain-lake landscape over the altar.

The completed work will be graded for their course.

The painters like what the church is doing. Dave Lucas said he thought he'd go to some of the lectures to find out more about the church.

All the artists enjoy the meals provided in exchange for their work. Stephanie Runge said none of them were into what the church is doing but "We're bound to be after a while," she laughed.

Lance noted that there doesn't seem to be any typical type of person to come to the church. Show people, businessmen, housewives, students -- anyone who may be interested in healthful eating.

"What we want to do is turn them on to a little more natural way of eating," Lance said.

"There are a lot of people looking for a place to get natural foods cheaply," he added.

The church of nutritional science hopes to soon open a grain-ary in one of their back rooms. They would buy grains, honey, teas, herbs, incense, and books on nutrition in large quantities and sell them at cost so such things would be more easily available for people in Las Vegas.

"We feel all peoples of the world are members of our church. We hope that one day all our members will reach the highest spiritual level of their choice through good nutrition and love," says the poster in the entryway.

I just found out last week that Patti Fox (I hope I spelled Patti right), is the only person I know who has saved all of my recipes, she even went so far as to say that she might try them someday.

Since I requested recipes last week, I got one response, but that was from my brother for shredded cardboard sandwiches, so I'm still waiting for a real recipe.

In the Great Chili Recipe Race Guy Scalise just edged out Lloyd Gangwer. Lloyd must have been too busy with his campaign. I hope Anita Ward is happy now. Guy's recipe is the Mona Lisa of Chili recipes (one of those handed-down-for-generations kind).

So this weekend burn yourself out with a quart of writers vice and:

BUDDHA'S BURNING CHILI

You need:

- 2 lbs. steer neck beef. Tell the butcher to grind it for chili.
- 2 large cloves of garlic, chopped.
- 6 Californian chili peppers. Any brand but they must be "California Chiles".
- 1/4 teaspoon cumin

DO:

Brown garlic in a couple tablespoons of cooking oil. Brown meat. Add cumin and stir. Add 1 cup water, stir and set temperature to low.

Now comes the tricky part: Cut the chiles open and remove all the seeds. (If you don't get them all Montezuman's Revenge will get you.) Slice the Chiles into quarters. Throw them and 1 cup water into a blender and mush the whole mess. Add the mush to the meat and add water to cover the meat by approximately 1/4 inch.

Now, cook the concoction at low heat for 50-60 minutes, uncovered. Stir occasionally add salt and pepper to taste.

Along with some munchie hungry friends and alot of cold beer it won't last very long so maybe you should double the whole recipe.

For a little springtime culture pick up a copy of "Plants are like People", by Jerry Baker.

Hotel "Sales Blitz"

A BLITZ WAS ON and the Hotel Association of UNLV made it happen! March 3rd, ten students from the Rebel campus traveled to North Hollywood, California, to attend the Hotel Association sponsored "Sales Blitz". As part of the practical experience program of the Association, selected junior and senior students were flown to California, compliments of Beverly Garland's Howard Johnson Resort Lodge, and confronted with the "as it actually happens" situation of "selling" interests in the Resort Lodge to local Hollywood businessmen. It was hard work.

Upon arriving at Burbank Airport program enthusiasts Phil Arousou, Surwsh Khanna, Ashok Delawri, Jennifer Swan, Tom Elbe, Howard Tasker, Judy Flaster, Gary DuBois, Larry Letter, and, Sales Blitz leader, Tim Lafferty met with Resort owners Beverly Garland and Fillmore P. Crank. Questions regarding the blitz were resolved at an informal meeting and five sales teams were organized before closing the day's activities with dinner at the beautiful Lodge.

Following a full day of briefing on Sunday and a 7:00 a.m. breakfast on Monday, the learning process of real experience was set into motion.

A "blue Monday" rain came to California on Tuesday, and the sales teams waited out the morning drizzle discussing successes, failures, possibilities, and tactics. Monday had been a "sales" success, and despite a delayed start, the five teams did well on Tuesday. A farewell dinner was held Wednesday night that brought together the Resort owners, Sales staff, and a wearied Sales Blitz group for a final toast.

The trip back to Las Vegas was proceeded by an afternoon at Disneyland where the group brought some welcomed relaxation. As Tim Lafferty, head of the Blitz put it, "Speaking for myself, I can only conclude that the work was hard but productive, (sometimes very enjoyable, sometimes frustrating, but always tiring)..."

The event exemplified the increasing recognition of both the students and the curriculum at UNLV. Speaking of the participants of the Sales Blitz in a letter to Mr. Jerome J. Vallen, Director of the College of Hotel Administration, UNLV, the hosts of the Blitz write, "In short, they put their head knowledge on foot and proved they could make successful practical application of classroom instruction... We are looking forward to acquainting ourselves with your University Hotel Program..."

President Candidates

Vot

Vice-President

LLOYD GANGWER

For those of you that don't know me, I'm Lloyd Gangwer, candidate for CSUN President. I have many qualifications for this position, some of them including; senator for many years, former activities board chairman, leader of this year's University Lobbying Group, and Mike Mason's administration assistant.

Along the line of low cost services to students, the student government has for the past two years subsidized a day care center, which has now grown to the point of being self sufficient. The main problem concerned with the center is the need for an area in which to expand. The LDS Institute will soon be vacated and the next administration would have an excellent case for the use of that building.

Along the same lines, the student government could develop a co-op that would be able to furnish the students who wish to participate in an outdoor activity with low rental skis, back packing equipment, or even canoes and rafts.

All of these are realistic goals some of which could be completed this year, others that can at least be started. What I am seeking is your vote Wed, or Thurs., 28 & 29 of March.

What I will be seeking after that is your ideas, support, and participation in order to execute these goals.

VAL BUHECKER

Unlike most candidates I believe that people are our most important product! The purpose of this University life is to develop the whole individual. This means getting people involved! How?

First, we must realize that people are more important than programs. We must search for ways to meet student's needs! (Like meaningful services).

Second, we need to build campus organizations. This means incorporating the concept of correlation (common on other campuses). Representation on the Activities Board along with matching grants toward Organization sponsored activities should be made available. This would be similar to the system worked out between the Hotelman's Association and "Homecoming."

Third, the installing of new refreshing faces in appointed positions that will do away with apathy and help develop rapport with our community.

As a senator and native of Nevada I am concerned about the future of our campus. I would encourage your support on March 28 and 29. Thank you.

Student government needs a new outlook. Student government should help support campus organizations and departments. With a budget of $99,000 it must be budgeted to aid all students. We should break even on the concerts, there by releasing funds for more and better activities.

I'm Dan Wade. I want to be your next CSUN president. I am presently serving in the senate and have been affiliated with student government all through my high school and college years.

I'm a speech major which I feel is my strongest qualification because communication plays such an important role in student government.

MIKE MALONE

It's that time of year again. The time when unkept promises flourish. Each year right around the end of March is CSUN election time. Each year at this time candidates make promises--Puffs of smoke in the wind. The promises haven't been kept. In past years we have been promised: a beer bar on campus, a radio station, concerts in the convention center, an improved newspaper, etc., etc.. Sounds familiar? They should. They're the same promises candidates are making this March! In the past we have been promised all these things. Where are they?

I, Mike Malone, am a candidate for President of CSUN. On March 28 and 29, you have an opportunity to cast your vote. I have only one promise to make. I will use your $100,000 budget to give you the most value for your money. A reasonable fiscal policy attuned to your needs, is all I promise. I feel that you, the student, should have a voice in how your money is being spent. If you want a voice in the fiscal policies of CSUN, Vote Mike Malone for President of CSUN in the primary election on March 28 and 29.

DELLA YEAGER

It has been said that running a campaign aimed at intelligence is politically unfeasible. It is the common opinion of many a politician that the general populace has little or no ability to comprehend "what the political process is all about." But the university setting is a rather uncommon association. It has no "general" populace; it is, instead, a community engaged in learning, per se. To approach such a community on less than intelligent grounds is a slap in the face.

If the student body is apathetic, it is because apathy is the only characteristic consistently descriptive of student government at UNLV. Apathy is not created by the disposition of student government itself. Apathy breeds only apathy. And it is difficult to be anything more than apathetic about a student government that is apathetic toward student needs.

CSUN has been suffering from delusions of adequacy! Student government can no longer justify merely "spending the budget." There must be room for change. The aim of student government - my aim - is to see that student government provides the students with the services they actually need and want!

Della Yeager

DAN WADE

We must go back to the idea of what this University was set up for.....To get the best education possible. We should help ourselves out.

Lectures can serve as an excellent opportunity for advancement in education. The lectures must come from all areas. From the English area bring in a Pulitzer Prize winner. From the science area a Nobel Prize winner. From the world around us, bring in P.O.W.'s, governors, senators, and people in business.

I think I am the only candidate that can make things happen and get us on the path of respectability. Please vote Dan Wade President.

AL FABBI

Qualifications and hard work. My name is Al Fabbi and these are my reasons for seeking the office of CSUN vice president.

I have been in the Student Senate for almost a year now and understand the workings of the campus government well enough to turn ideas and campaign promises into reality. I am a member of the Appropriations, Bylaws, Financial Aids, and Grievance Committees as well as the University Senate.

My platform contains three basic programs which aim to unify the campus. The first is to establish a radio station at UNLV. I am chairman of the FM Radio Station Committee in the Senate and this committee composed of many hard-working people has lined up engineers, equipment, and students interested in staffing the station as well as obtaining $2500 for a feasibility study from the Union Board.

Instead of vague promises in a ten point plan, I can give you figures, names, and dates concerning a radio station which will be in operation sometime next year if not sooner.

I support representation for the University College in the Senate. I have drafted a resolution to grant the largest college at UNLV the representation it is entitled to. Not mere promises but action.

I also guarantee the re-opening of the Kitchen, a student coffeehouse on campus.

I offer qualifications and action. I need your help. Vote Al Fabbi Vice President.

JOHN MOYLAN

I am a Chemistry major and I am running for the office of CSUN Vice President. I believe I am the most qualified candidate for this position. I am currently the President Protempore and a senator from math and science and have also served on various committees.

Some positive programs which I am for and which we should look into are: F.M. radio station, free law service on campus, Girls athletics, coordination of campus and organizational activities (Fraternities, Sororities, clubs, ect.), and coordination and cooperation between the University Administration and student government, just to emunerate a few.

Student leaders have the obligation and duty to communicate with every department and organization on campus. This communication can only serve to benefit campus life on the whole.

If there is any way possible that a new program can be initiated to benefit our campus ---- It will be done. Vote for the best qualified candidate vote John Moylan V.P.

GEORGE BRADDOCK

You have seen the rebel wolf on campus and he sure looks fired up...So am I, the candidate for Vice President, George W. Braddock. I am anxious to begin a term of office that will be characterized by effective communication, student balance and tangible accomplishments. However, I need your vote.

In return I shall work for you by bringing to this campus: FM Radio Station, a beer bar, girls athletics, two super concerts, free legal aid, campus beautification, a better balanced newspaper, a voting student representative on the Board of Regents, student lobby for 18 year old drinking, married student housing, balanced and improved lecture series, Greek recognition and support, establishing lines of communication between departments and student government vital to all students, re-opening "The Kitchen" and posted reporting of CSUN expenditures. If these are your interests on the student government, join the wolf for action.

Enough talking-let's you and I go to work. Cast a vote for George W. Braddock; and then, watch us go!

TROY NEWBERRY

Dan Wade-Presidential Candidate

Treasurer

RICK SCHIOLDAGER

Rick Schioldager is a responsible qualified candidate for the office of CSUN Treasurer. He knows the problems which have developed in our student government, and he wishes to alleviate them.

Rick is currently a CSUN senator from the college of Hotel Administration and has worked on the school newspaper. In the senate, he supported proposals on student lobbying in Carson City, a school F.M. radio station, and a campus beer bar. He currently is serving on Senate ad hoc committees for federally subsidized married student housing, and the proposal of a campus beer bar to the Board of Regents. Rick was asked to join this committee so that he could use his knowledge in creating a set of financial and physical controls for the proposed facility. He has worked in the purchasing department of a country club in San Diego, and is familiar with invoices, requisitions, and purchasing controls.

Rick Schioldager is a Hotel Admin. with a strong background in accounting. He has a GPA of 3.67 in accounting course and plans to do post graduate work in this field.

When you go to the polls on Wednesday and Thursday, remember that the job of treasurer must be handled by a responsible person who knows the needs of the students.

Vote Responsibly, Vote
Rick Schioldager, CSUN Treasurer

Senate

GUY SCALISE JR.

My name is Guy Scalise Jr. and I am seeking election as a CSUN Sophomore Senator. I feel qualified in seeking this office due to the experience and insight I have gained from my participation in CSUN activities during the past year. I am presently a member of the CSUN Activities Board, Intercollegiate I'm Troy Newberry and I am running for CSUN Treasurer. This is a job that requires a good background in accounting and even more important, a solid background in Business Management. I am qualified in both these areas.

I am a CSUN senator from the College of Business and Economics, and have also been closely involved with many activities of student government.

I do not believe that the office of CSUN Treasurer is a political position. Management of student monies should be kept as far away from politics as is possible.

As a candidate for this position, I have not made and will not make any political promises other than that I will do the job to the best of my ability, and that I will have an open door policy, open books policy so that students can find out exactly where their money is being spent.

RICK ANIELLO

Do you know where the CSUN budget goes? Not even the student senate knows for sure.

My name is Rick Aniello and I am a candidate for the office of treasurer. I am a business major and wish to incorporate my training with my desire to serve UNLV students in a functional way.

Currently, CSUN's books are a real mess. They should be brought up to date on a monthly basis---this has not been done. The senate is lucky to have a financial statement before them once every 6 months. I guarantee the books will be kept up to date on a monthly basis and every penny will be accounted for.

The senate needs to know where the money is and more importantly, every student should know where their money is spent. So remember on election day--Rick Aniello for treasurer.

Athletic Council, Traffic Violations Committee, and I am Circulation Manager of the "Yell". Rather than make promises, at this point I will simply say that I am confident that I can offer responsive and constructive representation with the Senate. I would appreciate your consideration when you go to the polls Wednesday and Thursday.

MIKE "BO" BROCK

Mike Brock went 4 for 5 at the plate and Herb Pryor allowed only 1 earned run in the Reb victory over Pepperdine at the Wave field. Brock lashed out his sixth triple of the year, a new school mark, and drove in 2 runs to lead the Reb surge.

The Rebels had a total of 9 hits for the afternoon. DiFiore had 1 hit and scored twice. Pryor, in addition to his pitching chores, collected 2 of the Reb hits.

The final for Friday was: UNLV 4--Pepperdine 1

On Saturday the Rebs continued their dominance over the Waves with a sweep of the Doubleheader.

Jim Bonnell picked up his fourth win of the season, lasting the distance. The 3-2 decision was hard fought but Wave errors in the seventh inning allowed 2 unearned runs in for the visitors.

Pat Leary singled home a streaking Dennis Carson for the winning run in the eighth.

In the second game UNLV scored a run in the first and 2 runs in the fifth to win. Again by a score of 3-2, Jim Byrne ran his perfect season mark to 5-0 with a fine effort. The Pepperdine runs were both unearned. Byrne gave up six hits and struck out 2 Waves.

The Rebs were out-hit for the day, 16 to 9, but made the most of every available opportunity.

MORE RECORDS!

Record track and field performances by members of the UNLV track team have been evidenced since the opening of the new track facility this year.

In a quadrangular track meet Saturday, two school records were broken, one tied, and three other athletes recorded personal bests.

The Rebels finished second with 58 points, to the Lumberjacks of Arizona with 85. La Verne College of Pomona, and Chapman College of Orange, Calif., scored 20 and 17 respectively.

In dual competition, NAU defeated UNLV 81-56 with the Rebels winning 83-44 over La Verne, and 78-47 over Chapman. UNLV is now showing a 6-5 record in dual meets.

The first record for the day was captured by Dan Copplin in the 220. As a first year sprinter Copplin has proven himself to quite a runner. He sped to a non-winning 21.3 clocking to capture second place behind Sid Bailey of NAU.

The other record went to Joel Porter in the pole vault where he vaulted 15' to win the event. This now stands as a school and stadium record in the event.

Carson Madison, "the track athlete of the week", tied the 1973 record of Kevin Patterson's 47' 7" in the triple jump. This is also a personal best. Madison showed a personal record in the long jump of 22-4. He captured second place in the event behind George Yeager's 23'. Madison also placed third in the high's with a fine time of 15.45. Coach Edwards expects great things to happen to the team because of Madison. The sophomore from Rancho High School hopes to go 50' in the triple jump before the end of the season.

Mel Turner exhibited his speed Saturday also. He tied the 440 record with a 49.1, and ran one of the best anchor legs in the mile relay with a 48.8. Although he was edged at the finish by Herman Segal of NAU, both teams were timed in 3:21.9.

The other winners for UNLV were Lloyd Mitchell in the 440 IH with a 54.6 clocking, Craig Falk in the high jump sported a personal best of 6'4" to top Ron Dale's jump of 6'0". Blair Wilcox vaulted 13 feet for a personal best, and Brad Cruz clocked in at 2:05.2 in the half mile for his P.R.

In the field events, Kelvin Gebbs threw the shotput 46-7 for another personal best.

UNLV, competing with 13 athletes, won three track and three field events for six first place events. Coach Edwards feels that this was UNLV's best showing of the year. Next weekend they go to the Claremont relays where Edwards feels they have a great chance of winning it all.

TARKANIAN WILL SIGN IN APRIL

AP's cage All-America

New head basketball coach Jerry Tarkanian and CSUN President Mike Mason.

When asked if he has given any serious thought to the pro offers that have been presumably made to him he said, "I don't even enjoy watching a pro game, so I don't give them much serious thought."

The question was also raised about Tarkanian's interests in other areas of the University such as the possibility of teaching or being a school or sports administrator. He quickly replied with, "As long as I remain in good health I will stay in coaching."

Apparently the rumors of his wanting former Athletic Directors, Micheal Drakulich's job are unfounded. At least for the next five or ten years.

In the final analysis it was a better deal all around for The Tark to try out his game here in Las Vegas. At least the distance of 300 miles between UCLA's "Wooden's Wizards" and UNLV's "Tark's Sharks" may afford him the edge he needed all along in getting the best players available in the land.

AFTERTHOUGHT:

The football schedule has been announced! Eight home games, and a trip to Hawaii highlight the 73-74 gridiron test. Great ball for the Las Vegas football fan.

Jerry Tarkanian has made the move! And next year the Rebels will make theirs'. Golly Geez--I'm sure glad I'm only a freshman cause basketball is sure enough gonna be exciting in the next few years. Editor Ken Baxter grabbed the fine fotos of the new coach. Already the rumors and their initiators are goin' crazy. Who will and who will not be back next season! Jimmie Baker indicates he will return. Tex Weaver is looking forward to playing for the "shark".

Why! I tell you---AP is already placing the Rebs in the #1 spot.

It's finally starting to warm up here in beautiful "dry" Las Vegas and so hopefully this coming weekend we will all be out to the new baseball park watching Dr. D's boys perform!!! The Reb base-ballers continue to lead the WCAC.

Coach Edward's tracksters continue to break school records on the new Tartan surface. The facility is well laid out for the spectator, with a nice gentle sloping hill to lie on and git right.

I've opened a column to all of the silent sport fans (and the not so silent ones also) who wish to express their views on any sporting topic. I would hope that the response will warrant the continuation of the space.

"SAND BOX"
by Ronald Johns

As the sun sinks quickly into the western Nevada horizon, Milton Bombquest pulls his battered body off of the ground. He then goes about the weary business of righting his bented frame, and brushing himself off before going on to the next game.

One can only ask, what is this game which causes a massive man of Milton's character to be whittled down to size? Could it be the continuous clash of bodies banging out the sweet music of football? Or the helter skelter movement of a person stealing second base?

Milton Bombquest can testify that it is neither football, baseball, nor superman taking his afternoon siesta from passing speeding bullets, which caused him bodily harm. It was simply the effortless game of tennis being played on the new UNLV complex.

Why was Milton's debut marred? In the discreet words of the battle scarred warrior, "it was all that I could do to avoid the sand dunes."

It is not unusual for the running tennis player to come to a colorful, flailing stop via the dust on the courts. A player finding himself sprawling in one of the open gutters can only harken to the tune of "Lawrence of Arabia" as His Excellency padded through the desert. A comedian might show insight into the matter by taking the situation "with a grain of salt."

The author noticed that the courts lack proper drinking facilities. There is only one fountain placed at an inconvenient spot at the end of the courts. To quench one's thirst, a player needs a desert survival course.

Also, little thought went into the court cleaning system. At the present time there are garden hose outlets built into the courts. It is simply naive to believe that there will be enough pressure to wash the sand off of the surface. As a veteran of the court cleaning wars, I've found that the only device that does the job quickly and well are fire hoses. Two outlets, one at opposite ends of the court would be sufficient. This idea and others were thrown out of the plans because of the so-called lack of funds. This is not to say that two fire hose outlets would have cost more to install, it merely wasn't as fancy as the present system.

What this conclusively amounts to is the establishment of a potentially harmful nuisance to the people who attempt to play tennis. The lack of maintenance not only spoils the fun of the game, but also creates an obstacle course of terror out of the facility. A fall or a bad spill on the courts changes the term nuisance into negligence on the part of the university. For, once one puts up a publicly used complex, it is the governing body's obligation to take responsibility for it. To shirk their duty might lead to well deserved law suit. Another blemish for UNLV's record.

By Gregory Kellogg

Presently the University is spending large sums of money on the various athletic endeavors on campus. The newest folly, a very expensive competitive track for occasional meets, will serve the ten or twenty individuals who participate in that sport.

It is my contention that the money appropriated to athletics would be better spent in the area of academics. Also to my way of thinking, the major function these programs have fulfilled is that of providing Professional Sports with a free training ground. Why should colleges across the nation have to foot the bill for this service. Logically, every time one of these individuals is drafted he should have to forfeit 10 per cent of his net contract in order to compensate the school for their losses.

TENNIS:

The way the Rebel tennis team made "luv" Saturday, it's a good thing they didn't stay in bed. The Rebs made it all the way through the singles without winning a match, and then finally Pat Bolster and Mike O'Grady broke the losing streak by splitting in their doubles.

The usually weak Idaho team must have eaten quite a few potatoes this past week, because they played like they had spuds in their arms. They aced the Rebs a few times and made them look pretty bad in the beautiful Las Vegas weather.

The UNLV boys put on a good show for the spectators, and in the normal Vegas style--kept them laughing. In their doubles match, Bob Berg and Ron Johns provided a bit of entertainment for the tourists. From the beginning the crowd knew that it was going to be a serious match, when Bob, hoping that it would make him twice as good, attempted to play with two rackets.

The UNLV team will go against Northern Arizona University next week here in Las Vegas.

Athletics in the Greek sense is a moving, ascetic experience. It used to be considered a process that served to improve mental functions. After America was through with sports, they became little more than economic exercise.

Perhaps the rationale administrators are using is that once UNLV attains the reputation of a great sports power all other academic benefits will ensue. If indeed this is their thinking then I suggest that a rearrangement of priorities is in order.

Giant Art Sculpture Planned for UNLV

A massive work of creative sculpture--one of the most distinctive in the country--will provide the centerpiece for the developing complex for the performing arts at UNLV.

Funding for the monumental piece of artwork has been assured by a $45,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts and a matching gift from Nevada bank executive Robert Z. Hawkins.

It will be the first sculpture of such proportion in the state and one of only about a dozen created through federal subsidiation over the past decade.

"Undoubtedly, this project will help bring national prominence to the UNLV campus," said President Roman Zorn, after receiving word from the endowment council. "It should add to the already-maturing cultural atmosphere of the campus and to the artistic environment of the community."

The sculpture will stand in the center of a colonnaded plaza that will join the Bayley Theatre with the proposed 2,200-seat Artemus Ham Music Hall. The combined value of the commissioned artwork and the expanded plaza with its widened stairways and series of columns will exceed $120,000.

President Zorn said a panel of judges will be named this month to define guidelines for the project, invite participants and make the final selection of an artist.

Three of the judges will be chosen by the national council in Washington, D.C., while another three panelists will be named by UNLV.

The commissioning should take place early this summer, Dr. Zorn said. The artist would need about a year to sculpt and install the work. Two years are allowed for completion of the project under the terms of the national grant.

"We happen to be one of the few universities to receive such an award from the arts council," Dr. Zorn noted. "Usually, the sculptures are installed in downtown areas or public parks."

UNLV Dean of Administration Brock Dixon handled the original application and will continue to coordinate the project through to its completion.

The plaza will be named in honor of Hawkins, an officer of the Security National Bank in Reno, for his generosity to the cultural development of the campus and community. His gift amounted to $55,000.

Concert Express has successfully presented two concerts in Las Vegas and on April 6 (DON'T FORGET JACK ABELL'S BIRTHDAY!) they're bringing Yes and Poco!

Those of you who have seen Yes in concert already know the power of their performance. It's something to tell your children about. It's like meeting your first martian. Listening to their albums is like taking a trip to Mars. What can I call their music? Classical rock? Psychedelic classic? I don't have a label for it.

Yes has released five albums in the U.S. They are YES, TIME AND A WORD, THE YES ALBUM, FRAGILE, and CLOSE TO THE EDGE.

YES was recorded in 1969. The liner notes pick Yes as the group to make it in 1970. They weren't commercialized in the States until THE YES ALBUM was released. It was a slow start. Already 1971 and the Yankee public had no knowledge of the dynamic group from England. YOUR MOVE was released as a single and the ball started rolling, seemingly uphill.

Here in Las Vegas, the release of the FRAGILE album coincided with their performance at the Convention Center. A standing ovation established the group's acceptance in this town. ROUNDABOUT became a hit single and in late '72 CLOSE TO

THE EDGE pushed the group into super-stardom. Yes' innovation and talent marks them as separate in any current musical category.

Yes has a habit of changing time signatures before anyone knows what's going on. They don't play songs; they play pieces. Jon Anderson's vocals are unique and they fit like a glove with the instruments. For, as I have read, Jon's voice is as unique an instrument as a moog or mellotron. Harmonies are tight, solos are expertise.

The lyrics will set your ears on fire. I mean geez: "A seasoned witch could call you from the depths of your disgrace/ And rearrange your liver to the solid mental grace/ And achieve it all with music that came quickly from afar/ Then taste the fruit of man recorded losing all against the hour..."

I hate to say so, but I don't understand. Am I dumb or are the lyrics personal or what? And all of Anderson's lyrics are just as wierd. He's either some sort of genius or a freak.

I must apologize, Yes is too intricate for this journalist to review. I have no right to criticize or acclaim them. I don't know much about Yes, but I know what I like. If you haven't seen them, don't miss them April 6th. And take my word for it. They're gooooooood.

SPARTAN SINGERS -- Avocal and instrumental group from Miracosta College at Oceanside, Cal., will present a music show at 4 p.m. March 29 in the Student Union Ballroom. Students are invited to attend free of charge.

DANCE WORKSHOP BEGINS THIS WEEK

An adult workshop in modern dance instructed by Mrs. Ronnie Greenblatt will be open for registration this week at UNLV.

Weekly classes during the 8 week course begins March 26 and will include instruction in technique, barre, space patterns and composition.

The Office of Conferences and Institutes and the UNLV department of health, physical education and recreation are sponsoring the course.

The evening section from 7 to 8:30 p.m. begins March 26 and the morning section from 10 to 11:30 a.m. begins March 28, both conducted at the Reformation Lutheran Church at 550 E. St. Louis Ave.

Creative expression through dance movement is one of the objectives of the class.

Mrs. Greenblatt is the founder and director of the Center of Modern Dance and has been a UNLV continuing education instructor in modern dance.

She studied at the Martha Graham School of Dance and for several years owned a studio in New York City. She also directed a dance program for Hofstra University.

Early registration is suggested due to a limited enrollment. For additional information, call the Office of Conferences and Institutes.

MUSIC COURSE OFFERED

The materials of music--sound, rhythm, melody and harmony--will be introduced in a music appreciation course sponsored next week at UNLV.

Listening techniques and the major periods of music literature are part of the noncredit course, which opens from 1 to 2:30 p.m. March 27 and continues every Tuesday through May 1.

The course is jointly sponsored by the Office of Conferences and Institutes and the department of music at UNLV.

For additional information about registration in the course, the Conferences and Institutes Office is located in Frazier Hall on campus and may be reached at 739-3394.

AIM Supply Train is Stopped

FBI Makes Arrest

An Indian caravan was apprehended at the Nevada stateline for transporting supplies to Wounded Knee S.D. on March 17.

The 16 persons - 11 Indians, two women and two juveniles - were arrested by FBI agents near the Nevada - California border and charged with violating a federal anti-riot law.

FBI agents and sheriff's deputies stopped a truck, a van and a station wagon on Interstate 15 as they crossed the state line from California to Nevada.

The government charged they were traveling to participate and assist in a riot in progress at Wounded Knee by transporting clothing, medical supplies, food and other items into the area

Three of those arrested were of University High School of West Los Angeles. They reportedly were making the trip as a class assignment.

The caravan to Wounded Knee had been televised by two television stations Friday night when the group left Los Angeles.

The caravan reportedly had been followed from Riverside, Calif., until it passed the Nevada state line, where the caravan was stopped and the group arrested.

Indians on Trial in Las Vegas

BY TOBY BENNETT CSUN SECRETARY

Stan's a truck driver who had a couple of weeks off. Lawry is a Business Administration major at a junior college in San Diego. Johnny Thundersheld had been working in Social Welfare in Oregon. Larry is from North Carolina, plays the guitar, sings country and western and kept trying to tell me he sounded like Charlie Pride. Wallace Davis has relatives at Pine Ridge.

They are all part of the original group of 16 American Indian Movement charged with violating the Rap Brown Act (crossing a state line to aid or abet a riot) while en route to the Pine Ridge Reservation in South Dakota.

I had been following the news about the incident as it was presented in the local paper and found in talking with the group that a lot of the significant information had been left out.

The group was taking food, medical supplies, clothing and blankets which had been donated by sympathizers in California, not to Wounded Knee (which would mean 16 people crashing through a ring of Federal troops and tanks) but to the Episcopal Church at Pine Ridge which is part of the National Council of Churches.

As it had been the widely publicized mission of this group, they thought that the two squad cars traveling behind them were a special escort which each state provide.

As they neared the state line, the "escort" began to grow until it finally consisted of over 20 squad cars and a helicopter.

Accounts vary as to how far across the state line the AIM vehicles were or if they ever were quite over. They were busted by a force of combined F.B.I. and Clark County Sheriff officers who plainly expected more sinister cargo than antibiotics, insulin, food, and clothing.

There were 11 arrests -- two of the group were minors -- and of the remaining 14, three were released on their own recognizance. These three were white. The 11 arrested were Indian.

Total bails, according to the local news, were $59,000 which ranged from $1,000 to $10,000 per person. Some bails were at first set at $15,000 until it was pointed out that in the only other case of violation of the same law (the Chicago Seven) maximum bail set was $10,000.

The food and medical supplies were confiscated, including over $1,000 worth of insulin which has by now spoiled.

AIM is an intertribal movement whose goal is sovereign status for all Indians within the United States, and an end to the paternalism, broken promises and maltreatment to which the Indians have been subjected to since the arrival of white men.

This incident typifies the injustices suffered by minority groups in this country. Legal procedures not been properly followed. A preliminary hearing which would have evaluated evidence was skipped (or it would have been clear that there was in fact no evidence).

The group was forced to cross the state line and it is debatable if they had actually crossed it, it is frightening that this country goes to such lengths to secure political prisoners. This is a point that pertains to us all. When laws which are supposed to be protective can be so blatantly ignored, everyone is subject to oppression.

If you are interested in doing something to support the group and to protest the action taken, a night letter to Washington D.C. can be sent for about a dollar and a half by calling 1-800-9992-5700 (Western Union's toll-free line) to Senators Kennedy, Tunney, Bible, Cannon and Rep. Towell.
