Regents decide today status of CSUN funds

by Bob Stoldal

Today, October 19th, the University of Nevada Board of Regents will meet in Reno to take action on a variety of issues, including the control of student funds.

Until this past summer, student funds were handled in a private bank account controlled by CSUN.

After student funds were used to post bond for students busted in a campus drug raid, the regents demanded that some controls be imposed.

Chancellor Neil Humphrey then requested that the UNLV administration take the money from the private account and move it into an "agency account," where the money could not be spent without administration approval.

Acting UNLV President Dr. Donald Baepfer complied with Humphrey's request and the transfer of student funds took place.

Humphrey is expected to recommend today that this action be approved.

At the same time Humphrey will also recommend that "further discussions be undertaken with student body presidents to develop a clear and written understanding of the responsibilities of all parties involved."

The chancellor says he hopes that these discussions will also lead to procedures that will allow the regents authority to "meet their legal requirements" in controlling student funds.

Humphrey's recommendation will include a request that the student funds stay in the agency account until July of next year.

CSUN president Dan Wade is expected to support Humphrey's recommendations in person.

Wade indicated that if the recommendations are approved it will allow time to rewrite the student constitution, which Wade feels will help clear up the controversy surrounding student funds.

UNR newspaper asks regent stepdown, editor disagrees

The resignation of University Regent William Morris has been called for in an editorial in the SAGEBRUSH, the student newspaper at the University of Nevada, Reno.

Morris, of Las Vegas, is currently charged with assisting Las Vegas newsman Alan Jarlson in evading Jarlson's income tax in 1969.

YELL Editor-in-Chief Ken Baxter, however, disagreed with the UNR newspaper's action.

He stated, "It might be to the benefit of the regents if he resigned, but he has a right to stay on the board and prove he is innocent."

Baxter said until charges are proven in court under the law, Morris should receive the same consideration as any other citizen, to be assumed innocent until proven guilty.

Trial for Morris and Jarlson, who have pleaded innocent to the charges, has been set for November 12 in Las Vegas.

Rebels ready for win number 6!

Homecoming football will be played the LAS VEGAS WAY tomorrow night against a powerful University of Wisconsin team at Las Vegas Stadium to decide if the Rebels deserve their national recognition and also end their current 7 game streak at home.

The Rebs in their sixth season as gridgers have attained a 5-1 record and a # 10 rating in the writer's polls. Next week the football team will travel to Hawaii to take on the # three rated team in small college football.

Hot dogs and beer and soda pop will be available before Saturday's game on an all you can eat and drink basis for only a buck according to Fred Albrecht, director of the newly created Alumni Association.

A parade of floats will prelude the game at the stadium and all are invited by the alumni sponsored dog and beer bust to be held at 5 p.m. Saturday.

FOOTBALL ROOTERS show appreciation as UNLV scored another touchdown against Boise State last Saturday.

Footballers head Homecoming

This past week on campus CSUN sponsored daily festivities to help send off the Rebel Football team to a homecoming victory over the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee tomorrow night.

On Monday the annual Arts and Crafts Fair began and continued throughout the week inside the Student Union, featuring products made by both UNLV students and a band of traveling craftsmen.

Vegetarian sandwiches, homemade ice cream, natural sugarless tea, ceramic flutes, candles, sun chimes, pottery, leather goods, jewelry, clothing and a multitude of other homemade crafts displayed in specially constructed booths for view and sale to the public.

CSUN also offered free soda pop and sandwiches at lunchtime to students.

Wednesday, a generous portion of barbecued chicken for 99¢. A local band played inside the Student Union Building during the lunch hour.

On Thursday the Homecoming Queen was voted on and the results will be announced at the football game.

This year's Homecoming Queen candidates are Regina Ameci, Karen Ashmead, Debbie Gutknecht, Nancy Larson, Arlene Lawson, Terrie Lopez, Louise Randall, Elaine Watkins and Kenna Wadsworth.

Dr. S.I. Hayakawa, President of San Francisco State College, was scheduled to speak Thursday in the Ballroom. Today, Homecoming floats will be displayed and judged. Trophies will be awarded and a $50 prize for each of the best ten floats presented. There is also a noonday pep rally with food concessions sponsored by CSUN.

The Hotel Association and CSUN are sponsoring the Homecoming Dance Friday night at 8 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. Tomorrow there will be a parade from UNLV to the Stadium of Homecoming Queen candidates and floats.

At 5 p.m. a pep rally is planned at the stadium parking lot with all you can eat and drink for $1. Hot dogs, beer, and soda will be served.

Finally, the week will be culminated with the football game at 8 p.m. where the UNLV Rebels will take on the University of Wisconsin at Las Vegas Stadium.

Fred Albrecht, former coach, is alumni director

A former Youngstown resident has been named the first alumni director for the University of Nevada, Las Vegas.

Fred Albrecht, 29, was selected for the administrative post by Dr. Donald Baepler, acting president.

Albrecht is a former assistant basketball coach at UNLV.

His first assignment as alumni director is to establish communication with former university students and to plan a variety of events both on and off campus for the alums.

FRED ALBRECHT

Astate university of about 6,500 students UNLV graduated its first class of 29 students in 1964. Since then, more than 3,000 students have earned bachelor's and masters degrees from the institution.

Albrecht, who will also serve as a tennis coach, earned an undergraduate degree from Kent State University before going on for a master's in education from UNLV.

Hotel group thanks support for senators

It is always nice to have competition. It is even nicer to have friends! On October 11 and 12, our newly elected Senators for the College of Hotel Administration found that they had both-- competition and friends. Senators Collins and Hammel wish to express their thanks to all of their supporters. Senator Hammel stated, "We both want to hear what the Hotel students feel should be brought before the CSUN Senate." Any hotel student wishing to contact their senators may leave a message addressed to them in the Hotel Association mailbox. The mailbox is in the College of Hotel Administration office. President Lafferty feels that both senators will provide a new era in obtaining legislation favorable to the Hotel Association.

The College of Hotel Administration has established a committee to request the Attorney General of the State of Nevada to redefine what will constitute an out-of state student. The committee to Fund Recognition of Residency is the committee name. The Committee seeks the redefinition to make it possible for out-of state students to obtain residency while attending UNLV. All donations to the committee will be appreciated. Donations may be dropped off at the College of Hotel Administration.

Government recruitment drive begins

Norma Cox, Chairman of the Southern Nevada Branch of the Intergovernmental College Association, said today that a new program of recruitment of college students for Government Agencies is now being set up to be initiated in the near future.

After the Intergovernmental Personnel Act was passed a couple of years ago, the Association decided to expand to include State and Local Government agencies in their program.

Current programs being offered by the Association include:

1. Intern Program: Students participating will work on special projects which are agreed on jointly by the agency involved and the faculty...no pay, but the "guest worker" will receive College credit.

2. Collecting information on job study situations for work study students who were not available for outside assignments will begin next month.

Various minority groups will be contacted in regards to this program.

3. A speakers bureau is being set up to maintain a list of speakers who are currently working at various Federal, State, and Local Governmental Agencies to make available knowledgeable people to speak at different functions, classes, and meetings on a wide variety of subjects.

Types of jobs available will be widely varied and include such fields of requirement as Biology, Engineering, Math, Literature, and Research; also some clerical positions will be available. UNLV will pay 71% of the salaries and participating Agencies will pay 29%.

Tours will be provided as needed of the various Government agencies in the area for interested student groups.

Another goal of the Association is to provide summer employment for Faculty members.

Local Agencies involved in the Program include: The Environmental Protection Agency, Nellis Air Force Base, Bureau of Reclamation, Atomic Energy Commission, Federal Aviation Agency, and the Internal Revenue Service.

Mr. Greg Kellogg, who was one of the students involved last year, states that "if you are looking for work after college, this is a great way to get that all-important experience that everyone asks about." He said that "one year in this program is better than two years in school." Greg is now working with the Environmental Protection Agency.

Anyone interested in the program can get further information from Dr. William R. Dakin, Director of Placement at UNLV.

Students hear JP candidate

Ms. Eugenia Pintos Ohrenschall, who is running for Justice of the Peace, spoke recently to Hotel Law students of Dr. John Rudd, Professor of Hotel Administration.

Ms. Ohrenschall, who graduated from college at the age of eighteen and law school at twenty-two, is a member of the District of Columbia and State of Nevada Bar Associations.

She has also been admitted to practice before the United States Supreme Court. Ms. Ohrenschall now has a private practice of law in Las Vegas.

Many of Nevada's political leaders have also addressed Dr. Rudd's classes of Hotel Law students.

The Basic Education Opportunity Program (BEOG), aptly named from its inauspicious beginning, will be the "floor" or base of all financial aid in the future. Although the federal funding for the current year reduces the amount of each award, you may be eligible and should apply. When the expected family contribution and eligibility for funds are established, the student will receive the $$$ for each semester of this academic year. There is NO fee required to apply and the forms are available in the Financial Aid Office, Humanities 314. THIS IS A GRANT. It is not too late to apply for fall semester.

THE YELL OPINION

'HOUSEHOLD WORD

City Hall vs City Library

by Sean McVey

The Las Vegas City Library is a small unobtrusive building, all but lost in a little wedge between Interstate 15 and the new City Hall.

The Library is in a bind that too often occurs when the needs of the automobile and government indifference wreak their collective destruction on a city.

Here's the problem in a nutshell: The demands made on available parking space by the employees at City Hall and the loss of usable parking space due to the freeway, has resulted in the Library's parking spaces being reduced from over 100 to just 6.

Now that it is a hassle trying to find a place to park, library sources state that daily circulation has dropped from more than 1,000 to 250 volumes a day.

The City Library faces the prospect of having their funding cut because it appears that no one is interested in using the facilities. A loss of money means fewer books and so on; pretty soon, no more library.

Library officials say the matter is under negotiations; in other words, get off our backs. City spokesmen are quoted as saying "why should we provide free parking spaces?" To answer the last rhetorical question: Check your City Code. The purpose of parking meters is to insure a regular traffic flow, not to raise revenue.

Meanwhile meter mollies patrol the nearby parking lot seeing that available parking spaces are not being usurped by library patrons.

The City Library is one of the few nice things left over from the 1950's, when Las Vegas was a small, quiet, mellow town... let it live.

Spiro Theodore Agnew is not alone. We all have our hand in the cookie jar somehow. And how do we do so? Let me name the ways.

Who amongst us has not pilfered a pencil, purloined some paper, taken a towel, plundered the petty cash, looted somebody's locker, filched a farthing where ever possible, and skimmed a little off the top.

It's the great American way of Rip-Off. A religion where getting caught ranks #1 on the top forty of nefarious no-no's.

We, boast, in the presence of our young, of how we conned a customer, perpetrated perjury on our latest ins-interrogation, or how we are bamboozling the boys at the IRS.

We steal each others husbands and wives. We teach our children to cheat in Little League; and we help them to doctor-up their soap boxes.

And as we are performing these perfidious practices; doing these dastardly deeds, we are saying to our youth, did you vote?

by Frank Bakken

Did you vote ?

I asked this question many times on Thursday and Friday, the 11th and 12th. Following are some of the replies I received:

1. Vote? For what? I thought the Vice President was going to be elected by Congress.

2. Vote for what? (student Senators) No I didn't, what difference would one vote make; anyway I don't have time.

3. No, why should I be troubled by all that BULL?

4. I never vote, it's just a waste of time.

5. All that crap is just a bunch of kid's games.

6. No, I don't want some damn fool getting in and saying things for me that I don't believe in.

7. Why bother?

"don't do as I do, do as I say." We tell them that we are not the examples to follow; we are only their parents. We would LIKE to be better, but, you see, it's the "system".

The "system" won't let us. Everybody else does it. Mommy and Daddy have to "get ahead" and, "Gosh son, if I ran around telling the truth all day, THEY would put me away. I'ts a jungle out there."

And the young say, "It's a stinking, lousy jungle out there, man. Like who wants to fight it?" But you say, what can one man do, we're all guilty. Of course we are. You and I and Spiro T. Agnew.

What can one person do? Well, how about just setting an example?

If I kept me "clean" - and you kept you "clean" - we might have a good thing going.

Let us not forget that other timeless truism: It trickles down from the top. Look at the example we have: Richard Milhouse Nixon. The ignoblest RIPPER-OFFER of them all.

8. NO!!!

9. NOT yet, but I'm going to right now. (he didn't)

10. I haven't got time.

And so it went- on and on until I had to go to the rest room and regurgitate!!!!!!!

APATHY is enthusiasm, compared to the response I got from most of the ONE HUNDRED students I interviewed.

School spirit??? HA!!! What a laugh!! I'm just glad that a majority vote isn't necessary to get into office; in fact, if anyone needed more than one vote to get elected, many offices would probably not be filled!!!

If this general attitude is carried over into Local, State, or National elections, the "voice" of the students of this campus will never be heard.

LETTERS

THE YELL welcomes your comments and participation. Letters must be relevant, timely, brief and signed. Name may be withheld for good reason; fear of social censure will not do. Include with name, class standing and college.

To the Editor:

In the Oct 12 edition of THE YELL, Pat Denley wonders why there is so little interest in the CSUN election. Your answer is on the front page of the same issue of the paper, Pat, CSUN is simply an administrative arm of the university...and under the control of the board of regents.

In other words, students are realizing what Jerry Farber wrote in The Student as Nigger: that student governments govern "in about the same way that a baby's toy steering wheel drives daddy's car.... The faculty and administrators decide what courses will be offered; the Students get to choose their own homecoming queen".

The apathy which you mention, Pat, childishness, escapism, and heavy drinking are all part of the "ghetto syndrome" a reaction to a lack of effective influence in the decisions which significantly shape one's life. UNLV is a refined sort of ghetto, and if you carry a student ID, you're an elite type of Nigger. Your Life on this campus is controlled by people you will never see, and they aren't about to yield you any part of that control.

And notice that the control of any ghetto is economic. Student activity fees are collected by the university, and kept in a university bank account. Any time The Man disagrees with students about how their money should be spent, the university holds the purse strings, and can simply say NO. No money unless you behave!!

What to do ? (1) RECOGNIZE that as a student you live in the same social and economic position as a minority person in a ghetto, and suffer the same social put-downs which they experience. Feel how it is to be a Nigger. (2) Students can take a cue from the Black Muslims, and begin to develop an economic base which is completely independent of the existing system. Economic independence means effective self-determination. For instance, the student newspaper at Berkley no longer receives funds from the university, and so prints what it wants. (3) Refuse to participate in the existing system. Non-participation discredits the legitimacy of any Uncle-Tomish institution Boycott the CSUN.

Children at the CSUN Day Care Center work on craft projects.

Day care at UNLV does more than babysit

The CSUN Day Care Center complete with turtles, chlorox - bottle piggy banks and an assortment of laughing children, is definitely not just a baby sitter. Child care "should not be custodial," says director Sunny Allen and the university day care center proves it by encouraging up to 45 children daily to discover the world around them as well as their own individuality.

Children ranging from two to seven years old are introduced to modern dance, painting, paper mache, and simple scientific experiments in the center's pre-school program.

This week's projects for the children include paper mache pumpkins and monsters for Halloween and banks made from discarded bleach bottles.

play in the Student Union. The philosophy behind the center was explained by pied piper Sunny who wishes she could have 12 children of her own. "In today's world, both mothers and fathers sometimes have to work to make ends meet or go to school to achieve the necessary upward mobility," she said.

Sunny believes that modern day care is necessary and insists that "every child is entitled to adequate day care."

The center sponsored an open house last Sunday for all interested college students, members of the community, and the university regents. Although the turnout was light and no regents were able to attend the affair, Mrs. Allen discarded bleach bottles.

Children at the center located on the first floor of the university dorm are given a chance to observe nature in planned walks around the campus.

According to Sunny Allen, you will be surprised at the things children understand and the staff of the day care center attempts to expose them to many different learning experiences.

The kids at the center view university art shows and have toured the natural history museum in the Desert Research Institute across the street from UNLV. Homecoming week is a special treat for the giggling menagerie of children because they were able to eat at the CSUN barbeque and see the crafts on dis-was satisfied with the effect the tour had on the parents who came.

Sunny feels that pre-school program which operates from 7:30 to 5:00 on weekdays is "moving right along" and has experienced no major problems with the center.

Weekly rates for the day care center which includes 40 hours of care and daily lunches, range from $22.00 for CSUN members to $32.00 dollars for residents of the community not associated with the University.

Inquiries regarding the CSUN Day Care Center can be made by calling 739-3342 or by writing to the CSUN Day Care Center, 1130 University Road, Las Vegas Nevada 89109.

Whats new at the Bijou?

Bang the Drum Slowly

When I walked into one of the eleven theaters, I was convinced they were giving special rates to Boy Scout Troops and constitution workers. Such a tuff crowd. There was a lot of beer bellies and burping. There were only two girls in the whole joint. Both of them had ratted hair and still had their waitress uniforms on. Don't get me wrong. It was obvious the audience was there for one thing - some base ball footage, lots of spitting by the pitcher and down to earth American slang. (you know the kind, ha shitface!! you dirty mother....., etc.)

That part of their expectations were fulfilled, but there was one thing they got that they weren't exactly pleased with. BANG THE DRUM SLOWLY is a tragic comedy. That's a punch in the gut that some of you great base ball fans better keep in mind when you pay your $2.50 - $3.00.

BANG THE DRUM SLOWLY deals with the old human emotion keep your chin up even if you are gonna die. There is some really great baseball action in the film, some of it is captured in slow-motion. But the bulk of the film is what is known as, professional. Most of the leads in the film have taken their roles and made real people out of them. So don't get the idea it's "movie about baseball." Seems people are so content catagorize everything very generally. Then they get all pissed-off because the movie wasn't what they expected.

But if you're in the mood for a tragic comedy, slow motion baseball action and really good character development, you can't possibly feel cheated. Besides Vincent Gardenia, (alias ARCHIE BUNKER'S new next door neighbor) is so great as the team's coach, no doubt you'll get your money's worth. (and I ain't lyin' 'cause that old man just keeps on keeping on.)

Management interns

The Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW) will be on our campus Friday, November 9, 1973 to interview for several positions as MANAGEMENT INTERN with a beginning salary of $9,053 to $11,046. To receive complete information, sign up for an interview appointment in the Placement Office in HU-361 before November 1st.

What is the HEW Management Intern Program? To help meet its responsibilities in a variety of social program areas, HEW annually selects a number of young people to participate in a three-year program designed to provide an over-all managerial perspective of the Department's missions and goals.

The program consists of four 9-month job assignments, supplemented by formal training courses. Assignments are designed to provide on-the-job training in four managerial fields: general administration, personnel management, financial management, and program administration, personnel management financial management and program administration. Interns gain experience in each of these four areas while working in at least three different operating agencies and the Office of the Secretary. Although the largest percentage of assignments are located in the Washington, D.C. area, a few are available in other regional offices throughout the country.

After the first assignment, Management Interns (MI) are assisted in seeking program and staff assignments that will provide the training most suited to their individual interests. There is no "Typical" assignment. The field is limited only by Departmental needs and the training guideline mentioned above. MI's work in programs ranging from consumer protection to family assistance, from Head Start to Medicare. Their duties range from developing personnel appraisal models to assisting in work experience which is supplemented by periodic seminars within HEW, Civil Service Commission lectures, and occasional university courses.

REBEL SPORTS

Rebels enter first era of excellence!

By DOYLE E. SMITH
SUN Sports Writer

University of Nevada, Las Vegas' climb from football obscurity to gridiron glory took a dramatic step Tuesday.

Coach Ron Meyer's Rebels vaulted from 16th to 10th place in the ratings of the nation's small college teams by United Press International.

It was only the second time in as many weeks that a UNLV pigskin squad has ever landed a berth in the rankings.

The surging Rebs gained the 10th place slot on the strength of a tremendous 24-19 triumph over previously unbeaten and fourth-ranked Boise State College last Saturday. That loss dropped the Broncos to eighth.

UNLV, now 5-1 for the autumn campaign and only four points away from an undefeated record having fallen prey to Utah State 7-3 in an ever-so-close struggle three weeks ago, still has a great opportunity to forge ahead of Boise State, now boasting a 4-1 season mark.

Hawaii, ranked third, entertains UNLV on Oct. 27. The Rebels are host to University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee Saturday, a club with a 4-1-1 slate this year.

UNLV's 1973 effort is a complete turn-around from a year ago when the Rebels finished with a disastrous 1-10 record.

"We, of course, are delighted and proud to be rated, but can't forget that it's harder to stay there than it was to get there," declared an obviously happy Meyer Tuesday afternoon when the ratings were released.

The flamboyant grid boss noted: "We can't afford to become fat cats at this point and we're just going to play them one at a time." Conceding the Rebs could finish the greatest season ever with a 10-1 record, Meyer offered: "Hell, we're shooting for the No. 1 spot."

Delaware's Blue Hens, on the verge of the "make it or break it" part of their schedule, increased their lead as the top club in the ratings of the UPI board of coaches.

The Hens, now 6-0 after vanquishing Connecticut 35-7 last week, picked up 27 of the 35 possible first place votes from the coaches to easily out-point second-rated Tennessee State, 339-272.

Hawaii, idle last week, remained in the No. 3 spot but by only a point as Cal Poly moved up to fourth in the wake of the week's biggest upset — Boise State's loss to UNLV.

The Rebels garnered 61 points in the voting, compared to Boise State's 68 and ninth-ranked South Dakota's 66. Hawaii collected 229.

Last week, when UNLV landed the 16th place slot, it was the first time a Rebel football team had ever been mentioned in the top 20.

Prior to the Saturday bash here Boise State was averaging 43 points per game, but a potent Rebel defense held the invaders to 19.

Attendance at home games, too, has surpassed that of a year ago. In seven tilts at Las Vegas Stadium in 1972 crowds totaled 40,813. Already, in just six games this year, 57,814 grid buffs have paid to watch the Rebs, and there are still two games remaining on the home schedule.

Last week's gate of 12,642 was the biggest ever to watch a football game in the state of Nevada.

Jesse Roberts, former All-America competitor for Pasadena, is no longer a member of the UNLV squad. The flanker and wide receiver did not suit up for Saturday's contest because of "personal problems," and it was decided late Monday that he would check in his suit.

Mike Thomas, flashy UNLV tailback who has made breaking records habit forming, suffered bruises in Saturday's triumph and was missing from Monday practice, but will be ready by this weekend.

Sonny Brockman, however, will not be able to play for at least another week. "We fear he has nerve damage in his neck," Meyer states.

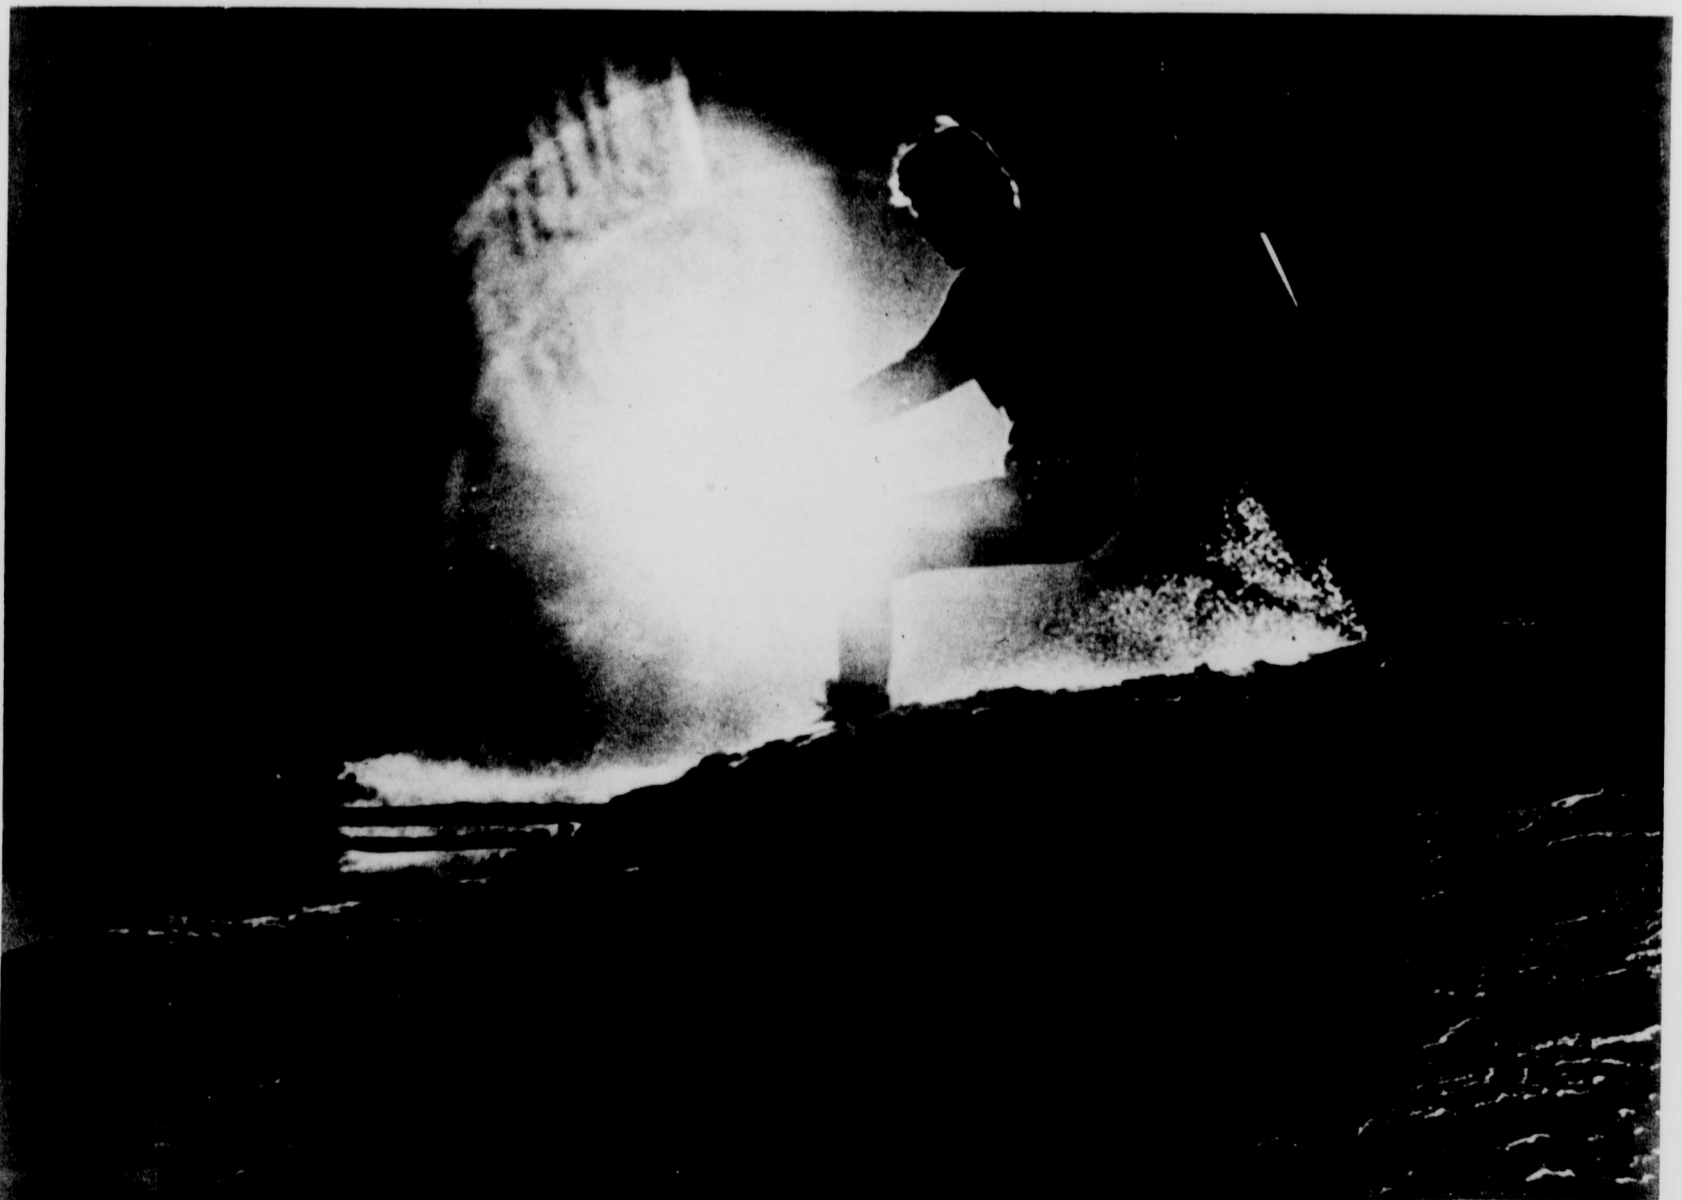

Meyer insists his squad has "out-conditioned" every opponent this fall. "Believe me," the colorful coach comments, "we've punished the other teams just as much, if not more, than we've been hurt."

Wednesday's session of the Southern Nevada Sports Association will be held at noon at the Sahara-Nevada Country Club in conjunction with the 1973 Sahara Invitational Press Luncheon.

Meyer will be one of the special speakers.
