

Student Senate

by bob stoldal

Controversy and a widening of the split between CSUN President Val Buhecker and the student senate marked the latest chapter in the administration of the government of the Consolidated Students of UNLV.

This past week, the student senate held two meetings. The first was the regularly scheduled meeting, and the second, an "emergency" meeting, was called after the second half of the first meeting was termed "illegal" by Buhecker.

The problem developed during the Tuesday night meeting when a break was called at 7pm and several senators left for class.

Joe Karaffa, CSUN Vice President and Presiding Officer of the senate, felt that a quorum had been established and the meeting could continue.

However, Senator Curtis Haggard felt that quorum had been broken, and Buhecker said, "We lost quorum...and only a handful of people were making decisions."

After the meeting, Buhecker informed Karaffa, that he "would have to take the matter to the judicial court."

However, because the time involved in appealing the matter to the courts would jeopardize the signing of a contract for the George Carlin-Kenny Rankin concert, a decision was reached to call an emergency meeting of the senate.

The action taken during the first part of the Tuesday night meeting still stands.

Items on the agenda included two presentations by Dean Black, Director of the Moyer Student Union. The proposals from Black included a million-dollar expansion of the union and a change in the union fees.

During the Tuesday night meeting, the senate sanctioned several organizations including the Association of Music Students, the Chamber Singers, the L.D.S. Sorority Lambda Delta Sigma, a group called Students Concerned with Lawmakers, and the Middle Earth Society, an organization which is interested in J.R.R. Tolkiens.

With the official sanction of the student senate, these groups are now eligible for grants of matching funds from CSUN.

One of the newly approved groups, the Chamber singers, later requested and received $500 in matching funds for a trip to high schools outside of Clark County.

Buhecker said this was one way to counter the "school for jocks" image.

Then, shortly after 5 pm on Thursday night, the "emergency" meeting of the senate began.

Karaffa opened the meeting by saying, "I still believe I was correct" in continuing the Tuesday night meeting. He added, however, "serious questions" were raised so, the "president decided to call an emergency session."

The first action of business was to re-approve the contract for the Carlin-Rankin concert.

A proposal was then submitted to make various presidential committees, ad-hoc committees of the senate. The proposal was approved.

Buhecker then told the meeting, the "senate is illegal in this action," and he indicated that he would be "pursuing this matter in the judicial courts."

University of Nevada, Las Vegas

WCAC Champs

by george staresinic

The University of Nevada, Las Vegas captured their first-ever West Coast Athletic Conference championship last week with two impressive victories over Pepperdine and Loyola Marymount Universities.

The Rebels clinched a tie for the title on Wednesday night by trouncing Pepperdine 123-86 and on Thursday, with the help of St. Mary's 86-83 win over the University of San Francisco, grabbed the crown with a 93-81 victory over the Lions from Loyola.

UNLV, with a 12-1 conference record and 20-4 on the year before the clash with arch-rival UNR, will represent the WCAC in the upcoming NCAA sub-regional tournament in Tempe, Arizona on March 15. The Rebels probable opponent will be the San Diego State Aztecs who are on the verge of clinching the Pacific Coast Athletic Association.

Against Pepperdine, a sell-out crowd of 6,257 saw the Rebels play one of their best first-halves ever. The nationally-ranked hosts jumped out to an early 20-9 lead and never did look back. UNLV led at the half 62-35 and their victory was their largest lead coming on reserve guard, Mike Milke's basket with six second remaining in the contest.

Aside from drowning the Waves with a balanced scoring attack, UNLV thwarted Pepperdine's offense with a tenacious man-to-man defense. The Rebels blocked three shots and had 12 steals for the game with Ricky Sobers coming up with four.

Glen Gondrezek on his way to setting a personal game high of 26 points as the University of Nevada, Las Vegas Rebels captured their first ever WCAC title. (And incidently, their last.)

Not only did Sobers play his usual superb game on defense, he also set a school record in the first half, as well as a new WCAC mark, by unselfishly passing off for 12 assists. Tricky Ricky broke the WCAC mark of assists in a season held by Ed "Buck" O'Brien, who had 66 for Seattle last year. Sobers now has 71 assists and will rewrite the record books every time he assists a teammate for a score in his remaining two games.

Jerry Tarkanian's runnin' Rebels evenly spread out their 123 points with seven players hitting in double figures. Jackie Robinson and Eddie Owens led the barrage with 16 points each followed by Boyd Batts, Lewis Brown and Sobers who each popped in 15 apiece. Glen Gondrezick and Robert Smith added 14 for the victors who played their final home WCAC game ever.

Pepperdine's Brazilian center, Marcus Leite, took the scoring honors with 20 points.

UNLV hit a torris 54 per cent from the field as they connected on 54 of 100 field goals while Pepperdine shot just under 50 per cent by hitting 36 of their 74 attempts. The Rebels were near-perfect from the charity stripe tossing 15 of their 17 attempts in the hoop for 88 per cent.

In clinching the first WCAC title for UNLV in any sport, the Rebels were led by the hot hands of Glen Gondrezick and Eddie Owens. "Gondo" hit most of his 12 of 17 field goal attempts from the 20-25 foot range, arching his shots from the corner high enough to bring rain. He hit both of his free throws to finish with a game-high 26 while collecting eight rebounds and getting six of UNLV's 11 steals.

"Easy Eddie" bucketed 10 of his 14 attempts and added two charity tosses for 22 points.

Ricky Sobers, an All-American candidate, had a cold night from the floor hitting only 2 of 11 shots but assisted on 13 Rebel baskets to add on to his record. Sobers tossed in 4 of his 6 free throws to finish with eight points. But defensively it was another story. Sobers held the Lions' Luther Philyaw to two baskets to put an abrupt stop to Philyaw's offensive punch. In the previous four Loyola games, all of which they had won, Philyaw had been averaging nearly 25 points a contest.

Lewis Brown, who (in a quote from the R-J) "displayed a haircut that likened him in appearance to Wilt Chamberlin," scored 10 points and pulled down a game-high 10 rebounds.

Faculty Senate

by dave kelley

The faculty of the University of Nevada, Las Vegas continue their support for the continuation of the mini-semester, held each year in January, between the end of the fall term and the beginning of spring instruction.

The results of a faculty poll were announced at the Faculty Senate meeting February 18. The vote was 126 to 96.

Most of the meeting was devoted to discussions concerning collective bargaining which is scheduled to be on the regents' agenda at this weekend's meeting here in Las Vegas.

Senate President, Dr. Joseph McCullough, expressed concern that Chancellor Humphrey is determined to start from scratch in any arbitrations with the faculty. The meaning, according to McCullough, is that the current university code, which stipulates instructor input or work loads, selections of department deans, and tenure decisions would have to be negotiated anew.

"I don't want to see the code go out the window," said the President.

In other matters, the senate is continuing an investigation to develop a proposal for faculty workloads, in connection with Academic Vice President Gentile and the various college heads.

Chancellor Humphrey has told university leaders that the board of regents will move on the matter in either their March or April meeting.

Charles Levinson, Chairman of the Senate Salary and Benefits Committee, reported to the Senate on committee progress in devising a salary structure for instructors teaching during summer session.

Problems cited by the senate include the competition by Clark County Community College for summer students, and $8 per hour student fees designated for Capital improvements.

The senate directed the committee to report with more data at the next scheduled senate meeting in two weeks.

Dr. Henry A. Scullo was selected by acclamation as the President of the Faculty Senate for the next academic year.

Buhecker moved to adjourn the meeting. The motion died for the lack of a second.

The meeting continued with Senator Rafael Lara, submitting two proposed senate by-laws, one dealing with student elections and the other with CSUN agreements.

Senator Barbara Alford told her fellow senators that if they approved the by-law on agreements, they would be "usurping the power of the president."

Sen. Alford added, the proposed by-law was "unconstitutional...it should only be the president who can approve contracts."

At this point, Buhecker accused Karaffa of firing two senators "illegally."

Karaffa said, they "missed three consecutive meetings with unexcused absences....I do not consider them working members of the senate."

The senate then went back to discussing the proposed by-laws. Sen. Lara responded to Sen. Alford's accusations by saying the by-law on agreements does not "usurp anybody's powers." The by-law was then approved by a 17 to 1 margin, with Sen. Alford the lone "no" vote.

The new by-law says any two CSUN executive officers shall be empowered to make emergency agreements by telegram provided the terms of said agreement have been previously approved by the CSUN Senate.

Then, Sen. Alford, and President Buhecker went into a private discussion concerning a matter of the constitution.

The second by-law concerning student elections came up for a vote and was approved by a 17 to 1 margin, with Sen. Alford again casting the lone "no" vote.

Sen. Alford then raised a question as to whether the "emergency" meeting was constitutional and legal.

Buhecker said "all of the senators were not contacted...and the Constitution says all have to be contacted."

Sen. Alford said, "this meeting is null and void and is not empowered to do anything."

Sen. Haggard along with several other senators after much discussion felt that more than reasonable and adequate notice of the meeting was given.

CSUN President Buhecker responded by saying "I am not bound by any action" taken at this meeting. He then left the meeting to make his rounds, as he is employed as night manager of the student union.

Minutes later, Alford stood up and said, "this meeting is out of order...pass whatever legislation you want...play your little games."

Karaffa ruled her out of order and Sen. Alford stomped out of the meeting.

Several senators then discussed the possible impeachment of Buhecker if he failed to sign the contract for the Carlin-Rankin concert.

After approving $2,000 for the student newspaper, the YELL, $500 for the Chamber Singers, and giving official recognition to two more student organizations, the Collegiate Association for Research and meeting adjourned at 6:35pm.

After the meeting, Buhecker told the YELL, that while he felt several of the senators "railroaded" several items through the "emergency" meeting, he would "honor the meeting as legal."

Buhecker said, "I will sign the concert contract, but I plan to challenge several things in the judicial court."

The CSUN President said, "I will take the matter of Karaffa firing two senators to court, along with the approval of the two by-laws and the matter of presidential committees."

The next student senate meeting, unless another emergency meeting is called, will be held on March 4 at 5pm in the Student Union.

Richard Simons

Dr. Richard "Biff" Simons, an assistant professor of education at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, died a week ago Sunday of kidney failure at the Loma Linda Hospital in California.

Dr. Simons, 31, was described as "one of the finest young professors on the staff at the university."

"Biff" had an excellent rapport with both students and faculty," related Dean Anthony Saville of UNLV's College of Education. "A person of his calibre and his nature will be very difficult to replace."

Before his death, Dr. Simons had been recommended for promotion to associate professor by his colleagues, and Dr. Saville said he will request that the administration grant the promotion posthumously.

A Phi Beta Kappa scholar during his college days, Dr. Simons joined the UNLV faculty in 1972 as a professor with the Teacher Corps, a program designed to improve the educational outlook for the disadvantaged.

A year later, he joined the Department of Educational Foundations and Counseling, becoming one of the college's most popular professors in his courses in counseling techniques, tests and measurements.

He was in demand outside of the classroom, too, as a consultant and workshop leader on the state juvenile justice system, community mental health, drug education, counselor preparation and youth advocacy.

In his brief professional career, Dr. Simons published nearly a dozen research articles on such topics as human relations in education, test anxiety and the motivational and achievement needs of school children. He was the first editor of the journal of the Nevada Personnel and Guidance Association.

He also was active in a number of state, regional and national professional organizations, and served on four UNLV college committees.

Dr. Simons earned his bachelor's degree from the State University of New York at Brockport, and a master's degree and doctorate in guidance and counseling from the University of Miami, at Coral Gables.

Before coming to UNLV, he was for two years an instructor at Illinois Valley Community College.

Survivors include his wife, Betty Ruth; a son, Tod, and daughter, Rochonne, all of Las Vegas; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Simons of Oswego, N. Y.; brothers, Dennis of Syracuse, N. Y., and Kim of Oswego; sisters, Patricia Muldoon and Jill Simons, both of Oswego; a grandmother, Esther Grulich of Oswego; and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Simons of Fulton, N. Y. Burial will be in Dr. Simons' hometown of Oswego, N. Y.

Behavior-modification

"Of Rats and Men: Behavior-Modification" is the subject of a discussion Monday, Mar 3 at 2pm in the West Lounge of the Student Union Building.

Several university departments: Psychology, Political Science, Special Education and Philosophy will be represented on the forum.

Participants include Professors Diane Turnbough, Sheldon Kravitz, Lynn Ruegamer and Craig Walton.

The panel will be moderated by Dave Penrod and John Tofano.

The YELL talked with Mr. Tofano and asked him to explain the issues involved in the discussion.

"The issue simply stated is one of free-will versus determinism as preached and practiced in these different disciplines. But the problem of whether man is a being of higher intelligence who freely chooses and initiates desired actions (with desired ends in mine); or whether man is a mindless animal being helplessly manipulated and at the mercy of his social, political, and economic environment, isn't all there is to the problem. Just as important an issue, although more subtle in nature, is the question of man's ethical well-being and happiness. Most behaviorists would give little credible thought to this realm of man's being, but hopefully the panel will address themselves to this question.

"Where is Behavior Modification today? Well, during the turbulent, late 60's the Justice Department (the highest federal law enforcement agency in the land) created a new internal security division, the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. In response to fears of national security threats as posed by the anti-war movement. Reacting quickly to its urgent callings, the LEAA awarded to Dr. Frank Ervin of the UCLA Neuropsychiatric Institute a grant for $109,000 to develop a technique by which 'violence prone' individuals could be easily identified. What do 'violence prone' individuals look like? More than likely they are persons who exhibit 'inappropriate behavior', like that displayed by those at the Washington Moratorium in 1970, or that aggressive behavior of the Detroit rioters in 1967.

The Behavioral Engineers (as they are called) see more than just protests against social and political deprivations, they see subtle brain disfunctions. And those persons who are most likely to exhibit 'inappropriate behavior' are those sectors of our social, political, and economic system which are repressed. So, if you are a black, a poor person, a gay, or a woman, you are more likely to be deviant from the 'norm' than the white, wealthy, heterosexual man. Hence, a greater potential for violence."

Mr. Tofano expressed concern at the results of experimentation paid for by government agencies:

"The problem of federal funding for the purpose of these inhuman experimentations should be obvious. As Americans in a free and open society we should be outraged. But what about this new priestly caste of technicians. What does the future hold for them? I suppose that we must hope that those who do employ these behavior modification techniques are men of sound ethical and moral character (remembering that true behaviorists like Skinner don't give ethical value a second thought) with the good intentions of solving our social ills they claim to have. But how can we be so sure that such good intentions will be the motive for all 'Engineers?' And what of the human, ethical, and democratic questions that beg to be asked? Can we be so positive and have so much faith in the scientific method that we don't suspect big brother coming in through the back door? The panel hopefully address themselves to these problems and questions as well."

Obilisk

What cost $13,000, is half-hidden by street lights, telephone poles and fire hydrants; and even if it were seen would serve a doubtful function?

The object under discussion is the obilisk or trunkated prism, a sign erected between Grant Hall and the Judy Bayley Theater.

If you do not know what it is, you are not alone. Apparently no one else really does, least of all its creator, architect James B. McDaniel.

According to McDaniel it has no name other than "a trunkated prism."

When asked what it represented, he mumbled and hedged and finally came up with, "It points up, and up is sort of representative of education--I guess."

When asked why it was built and why it was placed in its present location, he said that it was built to identify the university and was placed there because that's where they wanted it.

"They," stated McDaniel, was "the university."

It does not stop there. Plans for the near future call for a whole system of lighting fixtures, identifying such hard to distinguish items as parking lots and buildings.

Anyway, since this is a sign of things to come, the YELL feels that the first "trunkated prism" should have a better name than trunkated prism.

With that in mind we are asking everyone with an idea for a name to simply jot it down on a piece of paper and drop it off at the YELL office on the third floor of the Student Union Building or in the YELL's mailbox in the CSUN offices on the first floor.

If you can think of a purpose for the obilisk, that's fine too.

Prizes will be determined by the quality and quantity of the responses. (This simply means we'll probably give something away, but if only one entry comes in, we'll drink an 8-pack and moan about the apathy at UNLV.)

Biofeedback and you

On March 5, Dr. George Eversaul will deliver a talk at the Psychology Colloquium on the topic of "Clinical Applications of Biofeedback." He will describe how he uses biofeedback procedures in his private practice to treat individuals with such problems as hypertension, migraine headaches, anxiety, chronic arthritic or lower back pain as well as other problems. He will also review the biofeedback research and discuss the research he is currently conducting himself. Dr. Eversaul is a psychologist affiliated with a group of medical persons here in Las Vegas.

Biofeedback is becoming a very active area of interest for many people, and Dr. Eversaul has been an invited speaker at numerous medical and psychological meetings across the country over the past few months. Anyone interested in learning biofeedback is invited to attend the talk on Wednesday, March 5 on the UNLV campus. It will be held in the Social Science Bldg in the Gold Room from 12-1:00 pm.

Regent Report

The University of Nevada Board of Regents, meeting in Las Vegas this past week discussed the question of collective bargaining for the faculty.

Regent Lily Fong also tried to get a "no smoking" ban introduced at the regents' meetings, but her motion was referred to the boards counsel for a legal opinion.

Opponents to Fong's plan expressed concern that those being called to testify at regent meetings were under great emotional stress.

The faculty protested vehemently the regents proposals for collective bargaining since it has no provision for binding arbitration. Since the professors are public employees it is illegal for them to strike.

Without binding arbitration, they will simply be, according to a union spokesman, be powerless to enforce their suggested changes in pay, working conditions, and scheduling regulations.

Regent Fong pointed out that some of the textbooks used at UNLV do not give proper recognition of the contribution of the minorities. Fong cited a 500 page Nevada history text which did not mention the Basques, and summed up the Chinese contribution in one line.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

("Oink, oink!" Mr. Green)

Now we have it straight. Athletically-speaking only men's football and basketball are worthy of continuation since they "...can make our school money." Following this line of thinking to its logical conclusion, the UNLV library should close its doors after holding a gigantic book sale.

Throughout a colorful maze of prose, Mr. Green maintains that UNLV women have little interest and/or ability to pursue intercollegiate athletics. Leaving women's volleyball, basketball, and tennis to be defended by others concerned with the state of female athletic inclination and endowment (?), this letter relates only to women's swimming.

First, there is the matter of "not enough female athletes to fill out the rosters" and having to advertise (via signs and the YELL) for tryouts. How would anyone have known there was to be a swim team this year without advertisement? Certainly not by the availability of a university pool since it still "needs final preparation before the Rebels can move in." Actually, the UNLV Aquatic Club has used FIVE different pools for workouts this year. (If it's February, it has to be the MGM.)

Under the circumstances it's somewhat amazing that six female swimmers managed to find the UNLV Aquatic Club. Of course six swimmers would not meet Mr. Green's "full roster" criteria; however, the UNLV women's team has an interesting habit of winning swim meets against such teams as UC San Diego, Redlands and Colorado Springs.

Mr. Green is concerned about expense. Each female swimmer has been issued equipment costing approximately $75 (less than $5 worth of this equipment is consumable.) The three road trips have all been made by station wagon--even the 1600-plus mile round trip to Colorado Springs. (Maybe "dedicated" would be a better descriptor than "interested.")

Coach Hecker, one of the most outstanding swimming coaches in the country (he coached Tim Shaw and Shirley Babeshoff) has a double duty assignment at UNLV. Besides coaching Aquatics, he is scheduled to teach four activity courses for PED this semester. Even a superior teacher like Vic Hecker finds it a bit difficult to teach swimming in the library. (Incidentally, 57 of the 101 students enrolled in the swimming class are women.)

Which brings us to interest--or lack of same. Here I'll have to agree with Mr. Green at least to some extent. Las Vegas is unique in terms of the magnitude of its apathy toward swimming. Since UNLV appears to reflect the idiosyncrasies of the community, a viable swimming program at UNLV may be a hopeless dream. Contrary to Mr. Green, however, I'm at least willing to withhold judgement until the UNLV pool is available. Since the opening date of the P.E. Complex may well be dependent upon pressure from the "profits-at-the-gate" groups, I'd like to wager that the pool will not open until spring football starts. Any takers? Dr. Judith H. Dettre, Lecturer Dept. of Special Education

Calley in Reno

SOMETIMES THE choice between morality and freedom of speech is a difficult one.

Such a difficult choice now faces American universities as convicted Watergate figures grow wealthy from campus speaking engagements.

The choice also faces the University of Nevada-Reno, where Lt. William Calley of the My Lai massacre might earn $2,000, above and beyond expenses, for a speech.

Calley's stolid tread on the horizon has spurred anew the old debate over the Vietnam war, and who was responsible, and why. It is impossible to avoid the old questions, the old griefs, the old polarizations.

Some are enraged that a man convicted of mass murder should be paid to address the community. Others, including some veterans, have rushed to his defense, reminding us of the supreme pressures of guerrilla warfare, and recalling that many were responsible for My Lai while only one "scapegoat" went to jail.

The moral question nags the conscience. Should Calley, or Dean, or Hunt, or the others earn small fortunes by lecturing about crimes for which they were convicted? For some, the question even comes to mind whether they should be allowed to speak at all.

Let it be said emphatically that -- yes, they have a right to speak. Each has paid whatever penalties were decreed by our judicial system, whether or not we agree with the severity of those penalties. Calley and Dean and the rest are now free men. As such, they have a right to speak wherever anyone will hear them.

Let it also be said that it might be good for the nation, even now, to hear what these men have to say about My Lai and Watergate. Their words might contribute to the cleansing process, might help us understand what went wrong, give us insight into the character of men involved in these activities and offer us a better guide for the future.

Yes, they should speak, if they wish.

But should they be paid? Here the conscience says no. It says "no" not out of vindictiveness, or hatred, or shock, but in the belief that real justice is thwarted when honest men go bankrupt for being honest, while convicted men thrive because of the wrongs they have done.

The proper course is to let these men speak, but not enrich them. Preserve them their podium, even pay their expenses if they wish, but give them no monetary profit.

This is the solution offered by the university student newspaper "Sagebrush," and by the Asian-American Alliance, a university organization.

It is a course consistent with democracy and justice.

A Night at the Opera

There are only two more chances to see the two operas the Judy Bayley Theatre.

"The Old Maid and the Thief" and "Trouble in Tahiti" will be presented at 8 p.m. Saturday and at 2:30 p.m. Sunday. People keep saying that these are operas for people who don't like opera.

That means that these musicals are fun pieces. The sets are great the music is good and it's free to CSUN members.

"Trouble in Tahiti" is more like "Westside Story" that the traditional opera. Directed by Carol

Harlem Heyday

The good old days keep coming back. And this time it's the Roaring 20's and the Swinging 30's revived in a musical revue of black nostalgia.

Harlem Heyday is a musical revue presented by VOICES, INC., a black repertory theatre group from New York. They will present a singing-dancing-joking trip down memory lane at 8 pm March 3 in the Judy Bayley Theatre.

Admission is 35 cents for students, $1.50 for part-time students, faculty and staff, and $2.50 for the general public.

Based on a book by Jo Jackson, the musical revue tells the story of Rufus Go-Nightly, an old-time star who once basked in the spotlight of 100 different shows when Harlem was the king of Jazz and Swing.

The soul of ragtime, the improvisations of jazz and the ribald comedy of vaudeville and even a little of the blues are included in this show which features the music of such greats as Fats Waller, Andy Razaf, Duke Ellington, Sheldon Brooks, Maceo Pinkhard and many others.

You will hear tunes like "I'm Just Wild About Harry," "Way Down Yonder in New Orleans," "Back Water Blues," "Darktown Strutters Ball" and others.

You will see the toe-tapping dance steps of the Charleston, the Blackbottom, the Cakewalk, and Ballin' the Jack.

It's worth the price of admission to see three or four of the old vaudeville acts that are included.

Kimball, these "musicals" are presented by the UNLV opera workshop.

If you miss these you'll have to wait until next year to see an opera.

Batik Art

Sharmalee Chinta Edirisinghe, an accomplished ballerina, sitar expert and Batik fashion designer from San Francisco, will visit Las Vegas this week for lecture-demonstrations of Batik Art.

Batik is the ancient and intricate process of handprinting textiles by a waxing and dyeing method. Two workshop-fashion shows will be held in the west lounge of the Student Union at the University of Nevada. The first will be 9:30am to 3pm, Friday Feb. 28 and the second will be 9:30 am to 3pm March 1. A minimal fee will be charged. (Includes lunch.)

Ms. Edirisinghe is from the Kandyan Highlands (Ceylon), home of the great Kandyan dance art and belongs to an aristocratic Kandyan family that has traditionally fostered the dance and music of Ceylon.

She is presently an artist-in-residence at the Artist's Embassy, a non-profit educational corporation that hosts visiting artists in this country.

For more information concerning the workshop-fashion shows, contact the Division of Continuing Education, Frazier Hall 109, at UNLV.

Tom Greer, another MGM musician, will be featured on french horn. Greer was with the Long Beach Municipal Band and the San Diego Symphony.

The program will include "Quintet for Flute, Oboe, Clarinet and Horn" by August Klughardt; "Blaserquartet Es-Dur" by Karl Stamitz; the premiere of "Rondo" for woodwind quartet by Nicholas Caiazza; "La Chemince du Roi Rene" by Darius Milhaud and another piece to be announced.

The saxophone quartet will perform "Andante et Scherzo" by Eugene Bozza and "Quartet for Four Saxophones" by Alexander Glasunow.

The concert is sponsored by the Music Performance Trust Funds (Kenneth E. Raine, trustee) a public service organization created and financed by the recording industries under an agreement with the American Federation of Musicians, Local 369, Jack Foy, President.

The concert is free and open to the public.

Ars Antiqua de Paris

The Ars Antiqua de Paris ensemble, which was one of the more popular musical attractions at UNLV last year, is returning for a one-night performance Feb. 28.

This unique group will be in concert at the Judy Bayley Theatre at 8pm. Tickets are available through the music department at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas. The concert is part of the Special Artists series.

This group, composed of a singer and four instrumentalists, performs music pre-dating the 18th century. With a counter-tenor voice and ancient instruments, the Ars Antiqua de Paris is reviving numerous early works composed for such an ensemble.

With more than 15,00 performances, this ensemble has toured the world participating in many music festivals.

The instruments used in their concert include a lute, vihuela, regal, krummhorns, bagpipes, bombardes, viol, set of bells, percussions and psaltry, all made during the time this music was first performed.

Frat Wrap by Don Barry

A task force has been approved by the University Senate to study the feasibility of building a fraternity row on the UNLV campus. The task force is made up of representatives from each of the five fraternities and the two sororities. The representatives are Dan Russell, Alpha Tau Omega, Sherry Newmann, Alpha Delta Pi, Jodi Tenuta, Delta Zeta, Ric Truesdell, Kappa Sigma, Rod Daye, Delta Sigma Phi, Guy Pence, Sigma Nu, and Jeff Baird, Sigma Chi.

According to statistics, supplied to me by this task force, a fraternity row is long overdue for a school short on activities and tradition. A Harvard study shows that 87% of all universities have a fraternity row. Time magazine reports fraternities have seen a 250% leap in membership since 1972, the biggest increase ever. On the UNLV campus the Greek system has seen both good and bad times. They first organized in the late sixties and at one time there were six fraternities and three sororities. By 1973 two fraternities and a sorority had gone defunct, and where there had been five fraternity houses, now there was only three. The Greek system almost did not survive.

The next year things started to change, large numbers of men and women pledged to join and a new fraternity was formed. Following another good fall there is even talk of adding still another fraternity and another sorority. The Greek system has established itself at UNLV.

While membership is up, the problem of houses is the major one facing all seven organizations. Grads at other older universities have huge Alumni Organizations to help them finance large mansions, here it takes all the money the current members can raise just to maintain a single family type dwelling.

If fraternities are to ever prosper here, in a way that would rival other schools, some way must be found to obtain the kind of house necessary to house 30 or 40 people. The need will become more apparent if the university goes through with its plan to shut down the dorm, there will be no inexpensive housing on campus.

There is no end to the atmosphere and prestige a fraternity row would add to this school. A tour of any major university is never complete without a trip through fraternity row. A trip to any of the current fraternity houses

There is big news if you are an Alpha Delta Pi, they are the early leaders in the race to sign new members with over 17 prospects. Their President is Sue Newman, Vice President Nita Kreuzer, Secretary Linda Darling, their treasurer is Andrea Giles.

President Rod Daye reports that Delta Sigma Phi wants to buy a house, but they are waiting to see about a fraternity row. They also have a couple of hearty souls entered in the Muscular Dystrophy Dance Marathon. Ray Riecke is the Vice President, Jeff Smith is the Secretary, and the treasurer is Thomas Cole.

Delta Zeta recently kidnapped fraternity presidents, and sold them back in order to raise money for the Heart Fund. Now they are looking for Big Brother Candidates. They have two Vice-Presidents, (Lynn Ryckman and Cindy Vannucci) but only one President is as memorable as lunch at MacDonalds.

In other fraternity-sorority news all the clubs are now out looking for new members, as they are at the start of every semester. Most are also involved in Charity work.

Dan Russell is in his fourth semester as President of Alpha Tau Omega, with Jack Brumfield as the Vice President, Mike Pickett, Treasurer, and Don Barry Secretary. The ATO's have a week end party planned at the UCLA House and a calendar coming out at some strange time this year.

...more Frat

(Debbie Hoffard). The Treasurer is Pat Dougherty and the Secretary is Robin Bowerman.

Kappa Sigma's President is Steve Jenkins, while Ric Truesdell, Jeff Deluca, and Mike Moore are the Vice President, Treasurer, and Secretary. Kappa Sigma has a fifth Officer, Carson Madison who is the GMC.

Sigma Chi is donating to the Blood Drive, has entries in the dance marathon, and has donated to the heart fund. The fraternity may soon be known as Blood, Sweat, and Tears if they keep that up. The officers are: Jeff Baird, President, Harry Keyes, V.P. Mike Vlaovich, Treasurer Randy Lopez, Secretary.

Last, but not least is Marilyn Chambers and Co. Sigma Nu raised over $3,000 for M.S. The President is Foe King, with Terry Hubbard, Vice, Curtis Cummings Secretary, Ken Stone, Treasurer, Marilyn Chambers is the Little Sister.

Sigma Chi by "Scoop" Ayers

Elections were held for officers to represent the Sigma Chi Fraternity Sunday, Feb. 2. This was the outcome:

The Main Man (President) is Jeff "Bugsy" Baird, and he will be at the helm with his great knowledge of the fraternity and is expected to do a fantastic job. His accomplishments in the fraternity are positions of Social Chairman and House Manager last semester (you all remember the football parties...well, this is the man responsible).

At his right hand (Vice President) will be Harry "The Eagle" Keays. A dedicated brother to the fraternity, he has the spunk that will make him one of the best Pro Consuls in years.

This semester the man at the typewriter will be Randy "Indian Red" Lopez. Although this is Indian Red's first position as a secretary, he will do a fine job, (if he only learns how to cross his legs).

Treasurer is Mike Vlaovich who last semester did an outstanding job and has definitely proved to be an Ebenezer Scrooge. With the tremendous amount of work set on his shoulders, it was decided to give him some assistance. The positions of Co-Treasurer were filled by J.L.'s Bob Tower and Mike Guetnecht. Being new to Sigma Chi, they should gain much from this experience.

As Pledge Trainer this semester is a man that has been around Sigma Chi for a long time (You rushees of Sigma Chi look forward to some wild times.) This Sig is Steve Bushey, with his vast experience he is to be in Zeta Chi Chapter's Hall of Fame.

Other positions are: John Jackson as Rush Chairman. (Students interested in Sigma Chi contact him) Social Chairman this semester will be Bill Velardo. He will be assisted by Rollie Riemer. So all you students get ready for some wild and wooly parties. The Tribune Scholarship Chairman will be Al Goodman, and this semester's Housemanager will be J.C. Connery.

(ZNS)--The days of heroes and heroines are gone. A survey of 1205 entering freshmen at Brown University this year found that only 23 percent of them have heroes or heroines.

The only people named as heroes more than once were John F. Kennedy; Henry Kissinger; Thomas Jefferson; Evel Knievel; Jesus Christ; Jimi Hendrix; Alexander Solzhenitsyn; Beethoven; James Joyce; Albert Einstein; Henry Thoreau; and Mohammad Ali.

The Physics Department of UNLV will present a popular lecture this Friday evening on "The Origins of the Solar System."

The guest speaker will be Dr. R. Chambers from Pomona College.

The lecture, free to the public, is 7:30 pm, Feb. 28, in the Education Auditorium.

For further details, call 739-3563.

Black lights ...hazardous

(ZNS)--Those psychedelic black light posters might be hazardous to your health.

The Journal of Environmental Health is out with a report that black lights are apparently harmful to the eyes. The journal states that several hours of continuous exposure to black light causes eye irritations similar to the feelings of having sand in your eyes.

If you use those lights on posters, the magazine says, you should position the light so that its rays do not shine directly into your eyes.

Nursing Department welcomes men

Men seem to be taking a page and chapter from the women's lib guidebook at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas.

While women are entering career fields formerly thought of as male strongholds, male students are increasing in the Nursing Department here at UNLV.

"We've got about 30 men enrolled as nursing majors this semester, and the number is increasing all the time," said Dr. Mary Ann Michel, dean of UNLV's College of Allied Health Professions.

And the men, once rare in the nursing field, are starting to give the women some pretty good competition for choice nursing jobs in the community, she said.

Dr. Michel said that perhaps the largest explanation for the growth in the number of male nurses is society's changing concepts on sex roles generally.

She cites as another reason the hundreds of medically-trained soldiers who have entered nursing schools following their tours of duty in Southeast Asia and elsewhere around the world.

Also, she said, the American Nursing Association has been conducting a heavy recruitment program for men that is apparently succeeding.

Actually, the nursing program is expanding in all directions, according to the dean, and in just a few years the university has been able to build one of the strongest nursing departments anywhere.

Enrollment in the program has more than doubled to its present 350 students in the past five years. Just last month, the National League for Nursing gave the associate degree program an eight year maximum accreditation, an approval only a small percentage of nursing schools enjoy, Dean Michel said.

"Our curriculum is quite progressive, perhaps because it's so new," she explained. "Students are able to finish coursework at their own rates of speed, and we've been able to establish an excellent relationship with the local hospitals and clinics."

Nursing majors gain college credit for working directly with patients at Sunrise, Memorial, Rose de Lima, Women's and Valley hospitals and at the Southern Nevada Comprehensive Mental Health Center and the District Health Department under the guidance of hospital staff and university instructors.

The department is also making a conscientious effort to serve minority students, and at present there are some 50 Black, Chicano, American Indian and Oriental nursing majors.

A Minority Advisory Committee will be appointed next month to counsel such students in their UNLV programs and to inform local elementary and high school students about the opportunities available to them in health careers.

"When we started our four-year program in 1972, there was a desperate need for more nurses, particularly at the supervisory level," Dr. Michel explained. "In fact, the Nevada Hospital Association was flying in nurses from out of state in the hope that they would relocate in Nevada. Now, the association has closed its recruitment program altogether, and our program pretty much takes care of the needs of the local community."

The university graduated its first class of bachelor's degree nurses last May and all of them have found jobs in local hospitals and schools. Two are serving as clinical instructors at UNLV. The dean said many students have been able to attend school on scholarships provided by the Sunrise Hospital Women's Auxiliary. The group raises the funds through proceeds of the hospital gift shop.

Much of the modern equipment used in the nursing program, Dr. Michel said, has been contributed to UNLV by the Women's Auxiliary of the Clark County Medical Society. The audio-visual equipment particularly has allowed UNLV to develop a very progressive program which uses a TV taping system in its instruction.

Another major thrust was provided by the Nevada Lung Association, which has donated $50,000 to the department's operation over the past five years.

The case of Waynette James

Waynette James was a member of the UNLV Women's basketball team. WHY she is no longer a member of the team is an interesting and complicated story. Here are the facts as I have gotten them.

Head Women's Basketball Coach Barbara Quinn asked Ms. James for a report of a recent medical examination, which was confidential. Ms. James declined to reveal the details. Ms. Quinn told Ms. James that she could not return to the team unless the information was given to her.

Ms. James' physician informed her that she did not have to give the report to her coach.

When this reporter tried to question Ms. Quinn about the incident, she immediately asked me what this was for, and told me "this is not a sports matter." Ms. Quinn also threatened me with "repercussions from the Athletic Department" if I print anything about the matter in the YELL. Ms. Quinn directed me to Dr.

Donald Baepler, the university's President.

I managed to briefly speak to Dr. Baepler just before he was going to lunch between sessions of the Board of Regents meeting here at UNLV. Dr. Baepler informed me that he had been in and out of town for the past two weeks and did not know the state of affairs of the matter at this time. He did, however, tell me that Ms. James had had a hearing.

Since this was the first time I had known that there was such a hearing, I asked Dr. Baepler who presided over it. He replied, "I am not at liberty to say at the moment."

I then asked Ms. James about the hearing. Ms. James informed me that she was charged with Rule I in the disciplinary book. I asked Ms. James what had occurred to warrant such a hearing. She informed me she had not practiced for two weeks. When she was ready to return to action, Ms. Quinn told her that since she had not returned her equipment bag into Floyd Browning, the equipment manager, she would be billed for the items. Ms. James said she had turned the bag into "Brownie." Unfortunately, I was not able to contact Mr. Browning at press time.

The rule Ms. James is referring to as "Rule One" is, in the Administrative Manual, University of Nevada, Las Vegas, Section 5.1.1.

Section 5.1 is Rules, stating "the following forms of conduct, being incompatible with the purposes of an academic community are prohibited for all members of that community and lead to sanctions and procedures as hereafter described.

Section 5.1.1: The use of, or threat to use, force or violence against any member or guest of the University community, except when lawfully permissible.

The incident that precipitated such a change are as follows, according to Ms. James, as mentioned before Ms. Quinn would not comment on the entire matter.

Ms. James and Ms. Quinn were speaking in Ms. Quinn's office in the physical education building. Then, Ms. Quinn began pushing Ms. James out the door. Ms. James then grabbed Ms. Quinn and saying in effect, that the two of them have had differences in the past but she (Ms. James) wanted to know what was going on. Ms. Quinn asked Ms. James to leave and she did.

Since she would not comment upon the situation directly, I assume Ms. Quinn followed the procedures as explained to me by Lorne Seidman, Chairman of the finance department, and the one that handles cases of disciplinary actions. A complaint is made. Mr. Seidman listens to people on both sides of the argument. If he can resolve the situation in his office, he does. If he believes that a hearing is necessary, he then recommends one.

The man who presides over the hearing is Mr. Brock Dixon, Administrative Dean. In such a hearing, Mr. Seidman presents the case against the one accused. The accused is also there and can be represented if desired. Ms. James was represented by Tim McRoberts, who is associated with KFM radio.

Recommendations from such a hearing are presented by Mr. Dixon to Dr. Baepler. According to Dr. Seidman, there have not been any official actions taken in the matter yet.

What started out to be the third instalment of my "Sociology of Sports" series became a "live" story.

This week's installment was going to be on player coach-relationships, the roles and responsibilities of the coach, and, according to Harry Edwards of UC Berkeley, the "institutionalized powerlessness" of the athlete.

How far can a coach go into the private lives of an athlete? Where is that line of demarcation. The implications and events of the Waynette James incident will be explored in coming issues of the YELL.

for all you athletic supporters...

Two-timing

Besides being the Number one and two scorers on the women's basketball team, Emma Jean Major and Jackie Alford were running sprints for the women's track team on Saturday afternoon. That may not seem too incredible except for the fact they had a basketball game the night before and another one that night.

In the 220 Saturday, Emma Jean Major took a third place, just barely taking second. The victoress in that race was Beatrice Emodi who is the class of any women's sprint race anywhere.

As for the basketball games, The women's team managed to level off their season with a 7-7 record. Unfortunately it was 7-5 before going into last week's contests.

UNLV was defeated Friday night by Long Beach State, 80-70. Long Beach State defeated UCLA by 5 points earlier in the year while UCLA edged UNLV by 66 points.

In losing the women may have played one of their finest games, ever! The Long Beach game was really not decided until the very end. It takes a lot of pride and determination to come back after that ego shattering contest against the Bruins. Then come right back and play a team that beat UCLA.

In the defeat, Jackie Alford contributed 20 points, Emma Jean Major and Jill Adamson 15 apiece and Tona Lytle had 11.

Saturday night was another story, losing to USC 87-57. After running in the track meet, both women, Major and Alford, seemed with good reason to be tired. Ms. Major tried 21 shots from the field but connected on only 4. However, she did make 8 of 11 free throw attempts and had 16 rebounds. Ms. Alford had only 2 shots drop in 10 attempts to finish with 4 points.

Renee Brown had a fine game Saturday night with 16 points and 13 rebounds, while Jill Adamson contributed 11 points and 11 rebounds.

Rebs win title

With a 1:08 remaining in the game and the Rebels holding a 91-79 lead, the announcement that St. Mary's edged San Francisco finally came. Play was stopped for nearly two minutes as the Rebels congratulated one another while the crowd of almost 5,500 gave UNLV a thunderous standing ovation.

Following Tarkanian's post-game shower, given by his team, he spoke to the first-time champions. "I just want to say to you guys that I'm prouder of this championship than any other because I really feel this team came as close to reaching its potential than any I've had. And you achieved this for one reason--a lot of unselfish players doing just that, playing unselfish ball for most of the season."

The Rebels will close out the regular season with a non-conference battle with Portland State on March 3 before heading for Tempe. Students can pick up their tickets Thursday and Friday for the Monday night game.

Although the Rebels have clinched a berth in the NCAA tournament, assistant coach, Ralph Readout feels that the team must vastly improve. "In order for us to compete and compare with the best, we must improve both mentally and fundamentally. But," he also warned, "we have yet to have our finest hour."

CAGE NOTES: Only one disappointment in clinching the WCAC title, there were only 6,218 tickets sold and numerous no-shows. Congratulations go out to "sixth man" Robert Smith and his wife Gloria who celebrated the championship by giving birth to a 7lb 4oz boy at Sunrise only six hours after the game.

Take me out to the old ball game

The baseball team opened up its season with a 9-0 victory over the UNLV alumni. The Rebels displayed fine pitching, utilizing 7 hurlers in the 9-inning contest. Those used were, in order of appearance, Mike McClellan, Monte Mendenhall, Mike Whitmain, Joe Vargas, Tom Tellmann, Dennis Deck and Glen Willard.

The baseballers begin pre-WCAC action this weekend with a Friday game at 3:00, then a double header on Saturday beginning at noon against Northern Arizona University.

Next Tuesday, March 4, the Rebels take on the Division II champions of last year from the University of California, Irvine. Game time is again at noon for a twin bill.

Emodi takes off

The University of Nevada, Las Vegas women's track and field star Beatrice Emodi will compete this Friday night in the National AAU Indoor men's and women's track and field meet to be held in New York City's Madison Square Garden.

Emodi came to the limelight in international athletics in 1973 when she first competed in the Nigerian National Sports Festival and won a silver medal in the long jump with the best distance of 19.3 feet. During the same year, she increased the distance to 20 feet in the Commonwealth Games Trials in New Zealand and at the same meet she had a personal best of 21 feet in the long jump event.

The UNLV coed is currently rated the second best long jumper in Nigeria, but she has outstanding marks in the 100 meters as well.

Emodi ran 100 meters in 12 seconds last year in the Ghana-Nigeria Sports Festival and also during the festival she clocked her best time ever with 11.9 seconds in the sprinting event.

The AAU National Indoor Championship will serve as the selection meet for the USA team which will compete against the Russians in Richmond, Virginia on Monday, Mar. 3. Those athletes will be selected for the USA-Russia meet immediately following the AAU meet late Friday night.

Need a job?

If you need a part-time or full-time job or are about to graduate and are seeking a full-time career position, your Placement Office can help!

PART-TIME JOBS

All part-time job descriptions are posted on the bulletin board inside HU-362. Notices also are posted on the bulletin board in the Campus Union and printed each week in the Yell. Mr. George Lund (HU-362) will be glad to help you any weekday from 8-11:30 a.m. or 12:30-5p.m.

CAREER PLACEMENT

If you are getting ready to graduate, undoubtedly you are giving serious thought to job opportunities and how to find the best job for you based on your qualifications and interests. This is where your Career Placement Office (HU-361) can assist you.

The Career Placement Office receives, daily, notices of job openings and career opportunities in industry, business, the hotel and food industry, and in education. In addition, arrangements are made for many employers to conduct hiring interviews on our campus during the school year. As a future alumnus of UNLV and a registrant of the Career Placement Office, you are entitled to interview with these recruiters and receive notices sent to us during the year of many career openings locally and throughout the United States.

However, before you leave UNLV it is important that you establish a permanent, life-time personal Placement File which gathers together in one convenient file your personal data, educational background, summary of work experience, career objectives, and letters of recommendation. Every potential employer will want a copy of your Placement File. Even if you do not plan to seek a position immediately due to further graduate study or for some other reason, you should register with the Placement Office and complete your Placement File before you leave UNLV. You will never have this opportunity again to gather together in one permanent file all the vital information and references you need when applying for a job now or in the future. Following are the many services provided for you through your Career Placement Office:

1. Your personal Placement File
As explained, this file gathers together important information about you and your background. A copy of your Placement File is furnished to each recruiter you interview as well as mailed to potential employers in whom you are interested. Your file will be kept in our office indefinitely for use in the future as you need it.

2. Monthly Placement Bulletin.
You will be placed on the mailing list to receive a monthly bulletin listing campus recruiters for the month; notices of teaching hotel, and commercial job-openings we have received; and other important announcements of interest to graduates preparing to enter the job market.

3. Campus Interviews.

Your Career Placement Office schedules personal, on-campus
