

Rebels to Meet Nationally Ranked BYU

by Robert Qualey
Sports Editor

UNLV meets BYU in what could be the biggest game for UNLV all season. BYU still remembers how the upstart Rebels came to the Brigham Young campus and ended the longest winning streak in the nation at that time: 17 games—ruining their homecoming game as well. The 45-41 victory was one of the highlights in the history of UNLV sports. BYU at that time was ranked eighth in the nation.

for revenge— we just prepare the best we can and go out and do the job, but this does not mean that there will be no emotion spent on this game. It will be highly emotional.

UNLV new Head Football Coach Harvey Hyde stated that he will try to run the type of ball club he had at Pasadena City College, which during his tenure as head coach compiled a record of 25-7. That being a balanced club, one that runs as much as it passes, in contrast to the usual record passing games that UNLV fans have become accustomed. There will be much more emphasis placed on the running backs setting up the passing game by gaining substantial yardage on the ground.

UNLV will be missing the talents of other offensive stars that helped give UNLV a second place NCAA ranking in both passing and total offense in 1981. Besides Honorable Mention All-American quarterback Sam King, running backs Michael Morton, Ray Crouse and Mel Carver, along with split end Jim Sandusky and tight end Jeff Speck are gone.

return 34 letterman from that team, but only four starters on offense and three from the defensive unit so when the Rebels take the field on September 2nd they will, for the most part, be a new team.

UNLV will also be competing in a new conference leaving their status as a major independent to join the Pacific Coast Athletic Association with teams Cal. St.-Fullerton, Cal. St.-Long Beach, Fresno St., San Jose St., Pacific and Utah St.

holding a 2-1 edge. The Cougars won the first game between the schools held at Yokohama, Japan, in 1978; 28-24. The second meeting was held in Las Vegas during the 1980 season with BYU taking a 54-14 victory. The sole Rebel victory was last year's upset at Provo.

The Rebels will be trying to make it two in a row when they meet the Cougars, but will be at a decided disadvantage. BYU has an offensive line that averages 254 pounds and features All-American candidate Bart Coates at center, while their defensive linemen average 246 pounds.

particularly defensively," said Hyde, "where last year because of injuries we gave up 36.1 points a game." He added, "We will have a young defensive squad, but we hope to play with much enthusiasm and we will have an outstanding defensive coaching staff to tutor our young players."

"We hope to have an explosive offense like UNLV had last year," he said, "I feel we have some very fine players at the skill positions on offense."

Hyde has spent the last week preparing for the Cougars.

Budget Cuts Cause Faculty Layoff

by Jim Jack
Staff Reporter

This fall will see four and possibly five fewer faculty members on the UNLV campus. Vice President for Academic Affairs Dale Nitzschke said.

Losing an estimated $125,000 to $128,000 in federal funding means a layoff for three social science staff members, one special education instructor and possibly the removal of one vocational rehabilitation coordinator, Nitzschke said.

The withdrawal of federal funds leaves the social science department short three positions but, according to Nitzschke, "will not jeopardize students in terms of appropriate progress toward their degrees in that department."

Nitzschke said.

Special Education Chairman Edward Kelly said that the positions can be reinstated only by "getting the legislature to provide soft money."

The loss of the special education instructor will mean a change in the work load for other staff members in that department. Nitzschke said the added responsibilities will be absorbed and will not affect the university adversely.

Should the vocational rehabilitation position be eliminated, there may be a decrease in course offerings, but Nitzschke said services to students will not be diminished in a significant degree.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon to form on Campus

by Lisa Griffith

Beginning Friday, September 3 one of the country's largest social fraternities, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, will be organized on the UNLV campus said national director William Ward.

A recent meeting with local alumnae helped organize members and prepare them for formal rush which takes place September 3 through the 12th.

Sex Survey: UNLV Ranks No. 4

by David Mann
News Editor

Apparently Hotel Administration isn't the only thing UNLV students excel in!

UNLV has finished fourth in a Playboy Magazine survey of campus "sexual temperatures" that was conducted during the 1982 Spring semester.

The survey measured the sexual attitudes of 2000 students, 1012 males and 988 females, from 20 colleges and universities across the nation.

"Playboy picked UNLV because they wanted to cover all parts of the country and wanted responses from all types of schools," Dave Salyers, Director of Public Relations for Playboy Magazine said.

family but is now indifferent to religion.

According to Playboy, "...perhaps the most important thing we're going to do here is refute the generally accepted characterization of today's collegians as a cadre of clean-cut conservatives. The campus is more conservative now..."

"But there's more—not less—sex going on now than in the halcyon days of the Sixties," Playboy continued.

"Just because people are liberal in the area of sex doesn't mean they can't be conservative in other areas," Salyers said. "People can take on a great many colors on this spectrum from liberal to conservative," he continued.

sex survey. For men, the figure was 37.8 percent, as compared with 21.4 percent.

Oral sex has been engaged in by 91.5 percent of the men and 83.5 percent of the women.

Thirty and one-half percent of the men and 14.3 percent of the women have had a homosexual experience.

According to Playboy, "Virginity is not quite dead. While sexual standards at almost all schools are more liberal than those of a decade ago, 21.2 percent of our collegians say they are still virgins. In a survey done by Playboy in 1970....that figure was 33.5 percent."

time while diaphragms and diaphragm-condom combinations come in as the third most popular form of birth control.

"We returned to the women who have sex at least once in a typical month and asked about their use of contraceptives. We found that they took even more risks—more frequently—than their less active classmates. Twenty-one percent of them count on either rhythm or nothing at all to prevent pregnancy. Two of our respondents wrote in 'luck' as their means of birth control," Playboy continued.

Sex between students and faculty members was also an area explored in this survey.

Grads may have Tough Time Getting Jobs

(CPS)—

The job market for this year's college graduates isn't good, and it may even be getting worse.

That's the prognosis offered by placement and employment experts around the country, who add that even the so-called "hot majors"—engineering and computer science students—are getting significantly fewer job offers than their counterparts a year ago.

"The job market is definitely softening for college graduates," observes Jack Shingleton, the placement director at Michigan State University who administers a yearly survey of business college recruiting plans.

lege graduates working in jobs that are trainee positions."

Employers and placement experts blame the recession. Hundreds of top corporations have instituted hiring freezes, cut back on the number of college graduates they employ, and canceled their college recruitment programs.

"We're not hiring at all, and we don't plan to in the near future," said a spokeswoman for Sperry-Univac's Mini-Computer Division, which several years ago was aggressively recruiting college graduates.

MAF Disappears in Fee Restructuring

by Steve Gliddings

The Mandatory Athletic Fee, subject of much controversy last year, has been abolished, but is now part of a restructuring just as controversial.

Before the restructuring, there were seven different fees collected from each student per credit hour. The two dollar MAF was among the mandatory fees.

All programs and activities funds must now be approved by University President Leonard Goodall. In addition, CSUN also received a 20 percent cut in funds.

According to Oshinski, since the President now decides which activities and programs get money it is conceivable that he could have his hand in on everything CSUN does.

Study Shows Need for More Dorms

by Steve Bailey

According to a feasibility survey conducted by Student Services, more on-campus housing is in UNLV's future.

In preparation, Dean of Student Services, O.C. Bobby Daniels, has submitted a request to the U.S. Department of Education for a $5 million loan to finance future on-campus housing.

Transportation problems were cited by 18 percent. Among the other reasons listed were social advantages and low cost.

With regards to the type of housing preferred, 29 percent of the respondents wanted a traditional residence hall arrangement, such as the way Tonopah Hall is now set up.

Computers Donated

by Jan Jack Staff Reporter

UNLV is currently receiving 1.3 million dollars worth of equipment donated by three separate companies.

According to UNLV president, Leonard Goodall, this advancement "moves us up considerably among universities in the west...the whole state of Nevada is one system."

Regent James "Bucky" Buchanan said the university is working on comprising the top computer program in the country.

UNLV plans to appropriate funds to purchase additional equipment at an estimated cost of two to three million dollars, Buchanan said.

The added computer savvy will enable the university to offer a Ph.D. in computer science, as well as enhance the prestige of the campus as a major contributor in computer literacy, Goodall said.

Plans are under way to house the equipment in new facilities which will be completed in two to four years, and will cost an estimated five to ten million dollars.

The equipment was donated by Data Control Corp. ($762,358), the Harris Corporation ($504,545), and Digital Equipment Corporation ($72,800).

Regents up for Reelection

by Ann Druen Staff Reporter

Three university regents are up for re-election in the fall with the possibility of a fourth vacant Chairman of the Board slot.

James Buchanan, a regent since 1972; John Tom Ross; and 1979 appointed June Whitley all seek a six year term.

Buchanan's opposition includes Jack Close, Joan Kenney, Hector Corral, Juan Manzur, and Lonnie Hammargren.

Ross vies for office against Jo Ann Sheerin and Dan Walsh.

June Whitley's sole opposition is Vonne Chowning.

Regents are elected on a staggered basis, with not all regents coming up for reelection every year.

Since the office is non-partisan, the two candidates receiving the most votes in the Sept. 14 primary will meet in the Nov. 9 general election. Chairman of the Board of Regents, Robert Casbell has filed for the office of Lt. Governor for the state of Nevada. If he should win the election his seat would be filled by a governor appointment and the regents would vote for a new chairman.

Consumer Advocates in Court Battle

CAMDEN, NJ (CPS)-- "The case is not settled," stresses Evelyn Liebman. Head of the Rutgers-Camden campus Public Interest Research Group (PIRG). Liebman strenuously refuses to concede defeat to what she sees as an organized, national conservative attack on PIRGs, the Ralph Nader founded network of college-based consumer advocate groups.

Liebman and the PIRGs lost the latest battle in August when a federal appeals court said PIRG's fundraising methods-Rutgers students automatically gave $2.50 of their fees to the PIRG unless they specifically asked for a refund-raised serious constitutional questions, and asked a lower court to re-try the case.

A decision against the "checkoff system" of fundraising would have real significance for PIRGs around the country said Ed Lloyd, executive director of New Jersey PIRG.

Rutgers attorney Gregory Reilly agreed other schools would want to be guided by the court's decision if it goes against the checkoff system.

Joseph Marshall, staff attorney for the Mid-Atlantic Legal Foundation, part of a nationwide network of conservative legal groups that frequently challenge liberal causes in court, speculated Rutgers could have to refund as much as $1.5 million to current and past students if it loses.

"I imagine that administrators out in Wisconsin or elsewhere would have to look at that," Marshall noted. "I'd think that would scotch a lot of PIRG organizing."

Such talk convinces Liebman that this is part of an organized conservative assault on PIRGs.

Three Rutgers students sued in September, 1979, soon after the Camden charged the university made contributing to PIRG a virtual requirement for registration even though the group was primarily "ideological," not educational.

A lower court ruled against the students last summer, but the Third Circuit Court of Appeals in August said the lower court failed to establish the facts in the case before ruling. A new trial will be scheduled soon.

Marshall denies any conservative plot against PIRGs in general. While no admirer of the groups, Marshall contends the fundraising mechanism would be just as improper if it were going to a conservative group.

E and P Starts Year With Pryor

The CSUN Entertainment and Programming Board plans a large year this coming fall despite the great budget cut the board received.

"All the cut means," said Larry Hamilton, E and P Board Chairman, "is that we will have to look for more quality type of entertainment at a price we can afford."

Starting off their movie season on September 7, is Richard Pryor Live! Cry, Laugh and sit in awe at Pryor's outrageous brand of comedy as he lashes out a generous array of expletives to accostate his social commentary. Filmed live, unedited, and uncensored.

In addition to the Pryor film, CSUN will include Animal House, National Lampoon's uproarious satire on fraternity life. On the same bill is The Blues Brothers, John Belushi and Dan Aykroyd as Jake and Elwood Blues.

Coming in October is a Clint Eastwood double feature starting with Dirty Harry, hot-tempered and carrying a chip on his shoulder, Harry fights crime by the rules, his rules. And, The Enforcer a sequel to Dirty Harry.

Still in October is an Alfred Hitchcock double feature. Acclaimed as the "master shock film of all times", Psycho stars Anthony Perkins as the mother-obsessed Norman Bates. That same night, get ready for Freud, Hitchcock's tidy little tidbit of organized perversion.

Later in the year, the movies continue with Blazing Saddles a Mel Brooks spoof of the great American tradition, the western movie. Also coming up is Peter Sellers starring as Chief Inspector Clouseau in The Return of the Pink Panther, and The Pink Panther Strikes Again.

Finally, wrapping up the fall semester will be Cheech and Chong's Next Movie. For more than ten years, Cheech and Chong have been turning out a special, unique brand of humor for their army of loyal the mall area of the university. What would school be without the traditional events. Homecoming is scheduled for October, and Octoberfest will be this month.

"Even with the budget cut," said Hamilton, "this year will be one of the best years for entertainment yet."

"I would guess that something like that (munching 'manders) is a very isolated incident," says Jack Anson, executive director of the National Interfraternity Conference. "I've certainly never heard about it at any of the other Penn State fraternities, or among the Phi Delta Thetas on any other campus."

"No, it's certainly not a tradition with the national fraternity," adds a spokesman at the Phi Delta Theta headquarters. "I know the group has been sanctioned, and as far as we concerned the matter is resolved."

"I've eaten one salamander since I joined," Sagda says without noticeable depression, "but that was enough. I think the record is around 40 or something, but the guy who did that spent the night in the hospital getting his stomach pumped."

Salamander Eating Comes to an End

UNIVERSITY PARK, PA (CPS) - A 20-year tradition of eating live salamanders has finally come to an end for a Pennsylvania State University fraternity.

Members of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity have bowed to pressures from their national office, the state fisheries commission, and a local animal rights group to stop their annual spring tradition of swallowing the tadpole-like creatures.

"We used to eat salamanders as part of the annual Bowery Ball each spring," confesses Mike Sagda, a fraternity member. "But we let it get around too much last year and it caused a lot of controversy. Now we'll just have to do without it."

The trouble started last spring when a reporter and photographer from the Penn State Daily Collegian attended the Bowert Ball, an annual campus party, and witnessed the strange event.

In the meantime, the state fisheries commission charged the fraternity with violating state laws by breeding its own salamanders in a basement pool.

"We used to have around 400-500 (salamanders) in a pool in the basement," Sagda recalls. "But we've stopped that, too."

The national fraternity has also made it clear that the practice of "munching 'manders" must come to an end.

"If the undergraduates attempt this kind of activity next year," warns Robert A. Briggs, director of charter services for the Phi Delta Theta national headquarters, "not only will they face possible suspension from their charter, but expulsion from membership in Phi Delta

Fire Orders Now in Effect

by Michael Wright Staff Reporter

There are several prohibition orders concerning fires in effect at Toiyabe National Forest. Anyone planning to visit the forest should check with the District Rangers Office (365-6235) or Kyle Canyon Ranger Station (362-4271).

"The last four major fires were caused by man do to negligence," said Forester Reed Gardner. "The Cold Creek fire for instance cost over a million dollars due to an abandoned camp fire."

Due to the summer fire restriction, campfires at Mount Charleston will be allowed only on the grills and stoves provided in campgrounds and picnic grounds. Smoking will be limited to buildings, enclosed vehicles and closed areas.

A person causing a Forest Fire through carelessness is legally liable for damages. This could result in a fine of $500, six months in jail or both.

Anyone who wishes to build a campfire in the Mount Charleston area may obtain a fire permit at the Kyle Canyon Station or the Forest Service office in Las Vegas.

Angels Train for Serious Duty

by David Mann
News Editor

Every night except Sunday a group of people spend two hours running, exercising, practicing karate and learning how to take orders in preparation for a battle. But this group isn't the Army preparing for war in some faraway land. This group consists of people who want fight crime in Las Vegas as members of the Guardian Angels.

Currently 60 people are in the training program which requires them to attend three meetings per week. The training sessions are held every night for two hours except on Sunday.

I recently attended one to find out what it was really like. I walked in wearing shorts and a t-shirt thinking I would blend right in and not be noticed. I knew I had failed when an instructor asked me if I was disguised for any special reason. Maybe it was the pencil and pad that gave me away.

The volunteers were stretching, talking and wandering around aimlessly until Las Vegas coordinator Mary Beth Nitzsche walked in. Then they snapped into formation. Maybe not as perfectly as the Marines would do it but it was still a good try.

For the next half hour Nitzsche led the group through twists, sit-ups and other grueling exercises. She could easily rival Richard Simmons for energy output as she counted out loud while leading the group through a set of jumping-jacks.

After everyone was well stretched they left UNLV's Moyer Student Union where they train and ran for several minutes on the sidewalks of UNLV.

After a small break the group was instructed in the martial arts by brown-belt Ed Longtime and black-belt Albert Ludwig.

After being taught how to kick, punch and block they practiced executing these moves properly for the next 45 minutes.

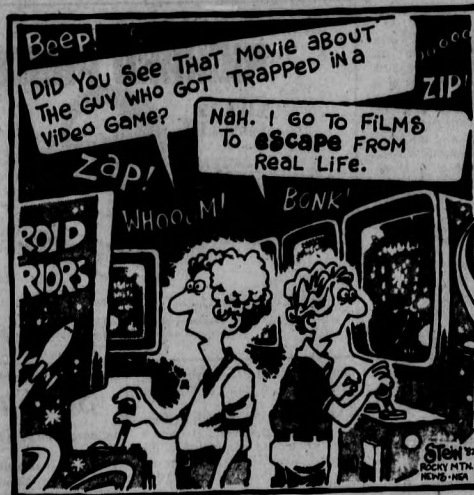

Also taught were moves designed to seriously hurt an attacker. Nitzsche then explained that these moves were only to be used in life or death situations.

The group seemed to be a cross section of America. There were young and old people present. Some were obviously in shape while others could not do a proper push-up.

Although most had several different reasons for joining such as being bored and wanting something to do, it was, for most, the desire to help people that brought them to the Guardian Angels.

"I want to be able to help people," 16-year-old Catherine Lockett said. "Friends have told me that I was stupid, that I would get hurt seriously. I told them that it's worth risking my life just to help one person."

Letters to the Editor...

Greek Coverage

Dear Editor:

I have been reading the UNLV Yell for the past two years and have noticed the insufficient coverage of Greek affairs.

Although last spring a Greek column was printed, major events involving sororities and fraternities were ignored. Greek Week, for example, had two photos in the Yell to tell an eight day story.

When I called the Yell to get information concerning Greek organizations in the newspaper, I was told if I wanted to see it print I had better write it myself. Or, I was informed that students do not enjoy reading anything concerning sororities or fraternities.

This may be true, but how many people enjoy reading stories about nuclear war? Yet, by eliminating such topics, a great injustice is done.

I am not suggesting that Greek organizations are as important as nuclear war, nor do I believe a regular Greek column should be printed. I do think, however, that major events (philanthropies, student services, benefits, and achievements) should be of concern to the student newspaper. A fair percentage of UNLV students are involved with Greek organizations and recognition of accomplishments is a responsibility of the Yell.

I realize some students find Greek organizations undigestible and frustrating, but the Yell should live according to its motto: If the press isn't making people angry, it's not doing its job.

The Greek organizations, though, are not the only campus organizations which receive minimal news coverage. Often CSUN recognized groups present lectures and performances that are known to only that particular organization eventhough the entire university was welcome to attend.

Perhaps a little less coverage of CSUN should be traded for a little more coverage of student organizations.

Sincerely,
Kendall Kelly

Documentation Requested

WONDERS NEVER CEASE!

Over this past summer Dr. Robert D. Tarte of the Psychology Department was forced to resign due to flagrant violations of the University of Nevada System Code. It seems that Dr. Tarte intentionally falsified information in documents submitted to the University of Nevada System. The Dr. claimed publication credit for scholarly articles and books that were never published.

By his own admission Tarte misrepresented the number of scholarly publications through "Careless record keeping, insufficient concern with documentation, etc."

However, the purpose of this letter is not to chastise Dr. Tarte for plagiarism, the most severe academic violation conceivable, but instead it is written because I am concerned that over the past 13 years, since Tarte has been at the University, no effort by any member of the faculty until recently was made to confirm the Doctor's documentation.

Objectively speaking could other members of our illustrious faculty be guilty of the same violations? What committee has been established to tackle this most serious problem or is our University going to blanket this injustice? How could all this material go falsified for so long?

What I would most like to see is that the members of any committees which met to consider any Awards, Sabbatical Leaves, or other merit increases, explain their rubber stamps. If someone checks on this investigation, would it be targeted that they will find sabbaticals are approved by the almighty regents with Jack McBride the chairman and the others led by UNLV administrators Goodall, Nitzsche, and Dixon.

Congratulations gentlemen for putting UNLV once again on top in the west for academic related disasters, internal cover-ups and reinforcing the belief that dedication, perseverance and overall concern for the principles which the faculty are supposed to preach are merely classroom rhetoric. Now I know how the Spiderman Burns incident blossomed!

Translator Signed for 'Welcome Back' Party

by Roby Turner
Staff Reporter

Much of today's new music can be placed into two categories: hammerin', hardcore, I'm-mad-as-hell-and-I'm-not-going-to-take-it-anymore punk rock; and bland, blasé, Betty Boop, bubble-gum pop. In the midst of this musical smorgasbord, a band is emerging that doesn't fit into the mainstream of mush. This burgeoning bay area band has created its own category...title it TRANSLATOR.

The music of Translator is a magical mesh of music and lyric. They address a wide variety of subjects ranging from biting political commentary to simple love songs. Their clean style of playing goes from melodic quiet ballads to blistering rock and roll.

Within this wide spectrum of musical style and taste there is one unifying message: in an increasingly disjoint world, human contact is more important than ever.

The original composition entitled "My Heart, Your Heart" perfectly expresses Translator's perspective: "I know the world's on fire We feel the flames again and again. But there's also tender feelings. I won't ignore them."

The group: Steven Barton - guitar and vocal, Robert Darlington - guitar and vocal, David Scheff - drums, Larry Dekker - bass.

The group was formed in L.A. in 1979 and moved to Frisco a year later to get away from the smog and the trappings of the L.A. music scene said Darlington. "In Frisco, we found artistic freedom and greater acceptance."

The band was signed earlier this year by 415 Records, now a part of mega-company Columbia Records. Just recently, they released an excellent debut album entitled "Heartbeats and Triggers."

Certainly their story is just beginning.

Translator is a band in the truest sense of the word. All four members contribute equally to the creative process.

The band members said their music evolved as they rehearsed in a basement for eight hours a day for six months before playing their first club date.

"Conceptually, there are no formulas," Dekker said. "There is only magic."

"We're not trying to cater to anyone. We're not bubble-gum and we're not an ivory-tower case pondering the great crises of mankind," Darlington said. "Nobody in this band wants to cram anything down people's throats. All we want to do is stimulate people to think."

This month begins an extensive national tour for Translator. This is an excellent opportunity for Las Vegas to catch a rising star.

Translator will be appearing with local heavyweights Little Sister at UNLV Friday Sept. 10th in the MSU Ballroom at 9:15 p.m. The event is a "Welcome Back" party sponsored by Sigma Nu and KUNV Radio. Admission is $3 for students with ID and $4 general admission.

Friday's festivities begin with an afternoon TGIF Party featuring the music of the Generics beginning at 10:30 in the MSU courtyard.

Incidentally, 415 Records is headed by Howie Klein, a gentleman who at one time was a writer for this very publication. Congratulations and continued success to you Howie!

Auditions Slated for 'Bent'

Opening auditions for the controversial drama Bent will be held Sept. 2 from 8-10 p.m. and Sept. 4 from 10-12 p.m. in the Clark County Community College theater.

Bent confronts an event long suppressed in the footnotes of history: the brutal, inhuman persecution of homosexuals in Nazi Germany.

The reactions of New York audiences and critics to Martin Sherman's unusual, original play were extraordinary: "shattering, hypnotic, gripping!" exclaimed Rex Reed. Arthur Bell, critic for the Village Voice, called Bent "The most controversial and powerful play since Albee stunned us with Virginia Wolf."

Bent has castings for 11 males 17-50 years of age.

Auditions are open to the entire community.

Six-Pack Offers More Than Just a 'Good Time'

Kenny Rogers, one of America's most popular recording, television and concert performers, makes his motion picture debut as the star of 20th Century-Fox's high-speed adventure, comedy Six Pack.

Rogers stars as Brewster Baker, an itinerant stock car racer who gets taken for a ride by six irrepressible young urchins with a unique talent for crime.

During a stopover in a sleepy Texas town, Brewster Baker's stock racing car, just about the only thing of value he has, is stripped clean by six kids who make a living dealing in stolen parts. But as the five brothers and their older sister shrewdly point out when Brewster apprehends them, it takes real automotive expertise to strip a car's engine, transmission, fenders and steering wheel in sixty seconds flat—and they offer their services as his pit crew to help him reverse his long losing streak.

As Brewster whips around the Southern stock car circuit with his pint-sized mechanics in tow, Six Pack winningly combines the high-speed excitement of racing and the warm-hearted humor of Brewster's relationship with the unpredictable, enterprising youngsters who have decided to make him their adoptive father—whether he likes it or not.

Co-starring with Rogers are Dianne Lane as Beverly, a precocious sixteen-year-old who is chief protector of her five younger brothers, and Erin Gray as Lilah, Baker's neglected sweetheart and owner of a popular Shreveport, Louisiana saloon frequented by the stock car brotherhood.

Terry Kiser is featured as a villainous rival race driver who will stop at nothing to beat Baker. Barry Corbin and Bob Hannah are a pair of finister Texas sheriffs who involve the children in a stolen auto parts ring.

The Six Pack kids (along with Lane) are: Robbie Fleming, age seven; Benji Wilhoite, 12; Tommy Abernathy, 13; Anthony Michael Hall and Robby Still, both 14.

"The idea of myself and six kids ranging in age from 17 to seven appealed to me," Rogers said regarding his acceptance of the part. "In the story, I teach the kids a lot about simple down home ethics, and they teach me a lot about sharing myself with others. And we do it with fun and excitement."

"It will touch audiences, I'm sure. There's a tear or two mixed among the laughs and action."

The gradual affection that develops between Roger's character and the Six Pack finds its primary catalyst in Lilah, the saloon keeper and sometime girlfriend of Brewster Baker. Gray, who previously starred in both the film and television version of Buck Rogers in the 25th Century, found acceptance growing between herself and the young actors she shares the screen with.

"If you manage to gain acceptance from six kids, you're on the right track," comments the gregarious actress-model. "Kenny had it made the moment they laid eyes on him—it's all part of that natural charisma he has. It took me much longer. It's a wonderful feeling when you know that kids finally dig you."

Quarterback Steve White

Turner's Network to cover game

"I have the utmost of respect for him, as I'm sure he has for me," he added.

"Coach Edwards has been at Brigham Young longer than UNLV has had football. He is starting his eleventh season as head coach and before that, he was an assistant for 10 years," said Hyde.

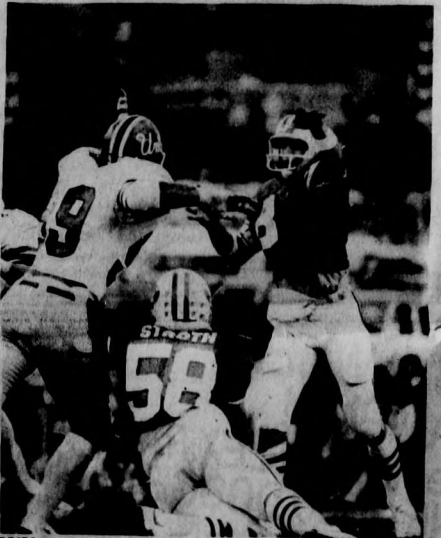

Brigham Young University has been ranked by many preseason polls among the top twenty teams in the nation.

Besides being the first NCAA football game of the new season, the game is going to be carried throughout the nation by SuperStation WTBS, Ted Turner's cable network.

Coach Hyde has said that there will be a little pressure from national television exposure, but that it will be more than compensated through promotions for UNLV and the help it will have on recruiting next year.

The UNLV, BYU game will be quarterback Steve White's first major college game, but he will be ably backed up by Genet Wallace who Coach Hyde says is equally as talented as White.

"It was a hard decision," said Hyde, "deciding who would be my starting quarterback, but after talking with my assistant coaches we decided that on overall performance we would go with Steve."

UNLV takes UCLA in alumni basketball

It was billed as the "Long Awaited Rematch" and as "Return to Glory" depending on which side of the fence you were sitting. The event was Community Roundball Classic V, an alumni basketball game featuring former stars from UNLV against former greats from UCLA.

The Runnin' Rebels had hammered the Bruins 155-134 in Community Roundball Classic II in 1979 and UNLV had been trying to get their hands on the Bruins every year since.

For basketball fans around the country, this year's game was the return of the legendary redhead from Westwood, three-time All-American Bill Walton. Walton began his comeback trail in the alumni game against UNLV, having been on the sidelines for two years because of his foot and ankle problems.

Put those ingredients in to the kettle and add to it the spice of being the first basketball game ever played at Caesar's Palace and all the fixings were there for a truly royal evening.

As could be anticipated, the pride and the glory were both very evident as UNLV surged ahead, fell behind, and made a final minute push that ended in a 142-135 Runnin' Rebel victory.

Appropriately enough for two schools steeped in basketball tradition, the score was tied, 32-32 at the end of the first quarter and 135-135 with but 48 seconds left in the game.

As in most UNLV victories in the glory years from 1974-77, it was indeed a team effort which resulted in the exciting victory over UCLA, a school that has never played UNLV in a regular collegiate game.

It was co-MVP's Glen Gondrezick and Jackie Robinson throughout the game, explosive Reggie Theus in the second half, and Robert Smith and Eddie McLeod just when the home team needed it.

Jackie Robinson, a talented and dedicated leaper, led the Rebels with 33 points and contributed 11 rebounds. Gondo, who may just be the hardest working player in the universe, hurred his 6-6 frame around the court enough to score 23 points, rip down a game-high 23 rebounds.

Dr. T, as Reggie is known in these parts, shook off the first half blues caused by a lack of sleep in his return to Las Vegas, by scoring 20 points in the second half for 32 points in the game and also added nine assists and five steals to his operating kit.

Little Robert, who played the end of last season with the Milwaukee Bucks, led the famous Rebels fast break once again with eight assists and 15 points.

Barto named soccer coach

by Steve Giddings
Staff Reporter

Not only did the UNLV Soccer team get a new lease on life this summer, they also got a new coach, Barry Barto.

Coach Barto brings needed experience to the UNLV Soccer program. In his six years coaching at Philadelphia Textile, his teams had a combined 85-15 record, and made the final four of the national championships in 1978 and 1981.

Barto began his coaching career at Philadelphia Textile as assistant coach shortly after graduating in 1972. During his years as an assistant he also played for Montreal, Philadelphia, and Ft. Lauderdale, of the North American Soccer League, and captained the U.S. National team.

When asked why he left an established national power like Philadelphia Textile to come to UNLV, Barto said, "I did it for the challenge. I wanted to build UNLV into a very competitive Division 1 team," he adds, "It is also a fulltime position, something I didn't have at Philadelphia Textile."

REBEL SPORTS

UNLV soccer to prove winners

by Steve Giddings
Staff Reporter

After being dropped and then reinstated, the UNLV Soccer program has something to prove.

Last year, after Athletic Director Brad Rothermal dropped the program their was much public outcry, so much infact, that Rothermal reinstated it.

Currently, newly arrived Coach Barry Barto will try to make them winners. The former Philadelphia Textile coach has seven players off of last year's 8-8 team to work with.

"We have a good blend of players. We have fourteen players from Las Vegas, five from the east, and the rest from all over the country," said Barto.

There are a couple of problems facing the Rebels this year. One is the relatively short period of time that Barto has had to prepare the team for the season. He arrived in Las Vegas August 20, and team plays their first game September 4. "I've had so much work to do, I've been sleeping on a cot in my office," Barto said.

Another problem is the team's lack of experience. The team is made up predomantly of juniors and freshmen. Due to the small amount of time to prepare, Barto does not know which players will be playing where. "It's going to take the first couple of games to decide who our best eleven players are," said the coach.

Returning starters from last year's team include, Dale Taylor, a junior striker, who was the second leading scorer last year, Mohammad Ali Heidarani, and Steve Jacobson, who are defenders.

New additions to the Rebels, who should help the team are, Michael Sheparovich, a prep all-american goalkeeper, John Lucas, a junior college all-american midfielder, and Robert Ryerson, a prep all-state midfielder.

According to Barto one of the biggest assets to being successful is public support.

"We were assured of public support and this is the key to us becoming successful."

The Rebels will be competing for the PCAA crown and play their games at Eldorado High School.

Cross Country Coach has high hope for team

Head Running Coach Al McDaniels is a man with a lot of enthusiasm for his running programs and their chances in the upcoming season.

His runners will open their Cross Country season by competing in the 12th Annual UNLV Cross Country Meet, on Saturday, September 18th at Sunset Park, which is located at the corner of Eastern Avenue and Sunset Road.

The meet will feature races in both men's and women's categories, including both open and intercollegiate divisions. The race will have different starting times as well as distances for the men and women; the men will commence at 8:00 a.m. and run a 4 mile course, while the women start at 8:30 a.m. and will run 5,000 meters (3.1 miles).

There will be fifteen colleges competing plus the various open runners, all are invited to compete. A $2.00 fee will be assessed for runners in the open and women divisions.

"We have the talent to win a championship in our new division, the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, which the men will be competing for the first time," says Coach McDaniels.

McDaniels has been at UNLV in some coaching capacity since 1970 and he feels that this team is the strongest that the Rebels have had.

"We have many world class people," said Daniels, "and we defeated University of California, at Irvine last year which finished second in the PCAA, this year we're much stronger, so we should be able to make a run at the title."

"Our women will run unattached again this season, they will run in all the big invitationals, in preparation for the District 7 Championships, which feature the Big Sky Conference, and the Western Athletic Conference. The top three teams going on to the NCAA Championships. Therefore we want to be one of those top three," Daniels added.

"It will take some hard work but our goals are realistic ones, we were hurt a little by the decision of one of our lady runners not to stay here in Las Vegas, but Myrna Nearing will continue to be the mainstay of our women's team—she has the second best time here at UNLV," continuing.

The men and the women will have the benefit of a new coach hired this year, Margarie Kaput an All-America from the University of Arizona, a top distance runner will provide much help for a team that has many freshmen.

Providing strength for the men's cross country this year will be returning junior Melvin Thompson from Las Vegas, Henry Isiah also of Las Vegas, a sophomore. Two students from other countries give added strength; German Aranda from Bogota, Columbia a junior, and Ron Castonguay a freshman from Thunder Bay, Ontario, Canada.

Both teams recently returned from a running camp in Yosemite National Park, "It provided our runners with an opportunity to train in high altitudes, they ran for over 70 miles during the week.

"Each day we started at 6:00 a.m. and ran at various times throughout the day these runs were interspersed with seminars and clinics, which were very beneficial," said McDaniels.

For the men the road to the NCAA Finals is going to be difficult as they will compete in the same competitions as the PAC-10, but will still do well as optimism runs high on the Runnin' Rebels cross country teams.

Top cross country team runner, Myrna Nearing

Varsity team needs recruits

The UNLV Women's Varsity Swimming and Diving team will be selecting tryouts for new members at the UNLV pool on September 2, 7, and 10, at 2 p.m. each day.

After the graduation of five swimmers from last year's squad, the team is seeking to fill the void.

"There are actually eight spots available on the 82-83 traveling team," said Jim Reitz, Coach of the team. "The other ten positions are filled by returning squad members and new recruits who have already been added." This year's squad list currently includes incoming freshman Kathy Chung from San Jose, California, who is a world ranked 1500 meter swimmer. Also joining the team is Washington State High School diving champion, Jill Jeffery.

The women's team is scheduled to open its dual meet season against Fresno State on November 6, at UNLV.

"We have enough time to get even the most out-of-shape recruit ready for the opening date," said Assistant Coach Teresa Sheppard.

Any interested students may call Coach Sheppard for more information at 739-3636.

'Rebel Day' proclaimed

Las Vegas Mayor Bill Briare, along with four other area mayors and Clark County Commissioner Manny Cortez, will declare September 2 as

'Rebel Day', at a press conference held Tuesday, August 31, at 3 p.m.

The conference will be in the UNLV president's conference room on the seventh floor of the Flora Duncan Humanities Building on the UNLV campus. Along with Briare and Cortez, guests at the conference will include UNLV President Leonard Goodall, Rebel Athletic Director Brad Rothermel, and UNLV Head Football Coach Harvey Hyde.

Womens soccer to double in size

The Las Vegas Women's Soccer Association plans to double the number of teams in 1982 according to Becky Werner, coordinator of the league.

Formed in 1975 with five teams, the league reached a total of 11 teams last year.

"The men's league has 20 teams," Werner said, "We want to grow to the same size," she added.

The teams are comprised of experienced and inexperienced players, each playing every women's team in the league at least once throughout the season.

The women play a 90 minute game, comprised of two 45 minute halves.

"It's tough," said Werner, "but we need players, and coaches."

To play for the fields and Nevada State referees, a team sponsorship costs $85. Membership is open to all women 18 years or older.

For more information, contact Becky Werner at 736-1642.
