Why not a law school?

Last year, just as many prospective lawyers took the bar exam in the state of Nevada as there are lawyers, the majority of them were out-of-state residents. These law school graduates flock in yearly from around the nation looking for employment in our rapidly growing state. It would have been a lot easier to pass Nevada's bar exam if they had studied law here in the first place.

A recommedation for the establishment of a School of Law at UNLV within the next decade is included in the recently completed Program Review and Reallocation Statement. Written by Vice President for Academic Affairs Dale Nitzschke, the document is currently being reviewed by President Leonard Goodall. It will be forwarded to the Board of Regents in June.

The proposal for a law school at UNLV is not new. A proposal advanced in 1980 resulted in a feasibility study being ordered by the regents which concluded that there were not enough students interested in a law school to justify its establishment. The study projected that the cost for the school would be $4.5 million.

In an article which appeared in the Thursday, May 5 issue of the Las Vegas Sun, President Goodall was reported as aying "the has slways supported a law school on the UNLV campus," but noted that the cost would probably be prohibitory.

The same article notes that Vice President Nitzschke said private donations could permit a law school to open its doors in the fall of 1984.

Associate Professor of Political Science Jerry Simich said, "It would be nice if we had a public law school in Nevada, but it would be expensive, so I can't see us getting one right away."

Though Nevada lacks a public law school, a private law school is located in Reno.

The Old College School of Law opened in 1980 and has grown steadily from a first year enrollment of 32 to a projected 1983 enrollment of over 300. However, the school has yet to secure American Bar Association acceptable.

Want a job pay your fines

With graduation coming up soon, many students will want to send their transcripts to prospective employers, and to graduate schools.

But some will be surprised to learn that if they owe more than $5 in unpaid parking tickets, a hold will be placed on their transcripts.

Students will also be prevented from registering for the next semester if they have unpaid parking fines.

Fines may be paid at the University Police Office located on the south side of the Museum building.

Students may appeal parking tickets within 14 calendar days from the time they receive them. After 14 days the fine is doubled.

MSU expansion

MSU expansion delayed: Teh

delayed: Teh

Construction of the Moyer Student Union expansion project has been delayed and will not begin until after the start of the fall semester, according to MSU Director Burt Teh.
Ground-breaking for the project was expected as early as June, but Teh said it will be "five to six months before we see any construction."

Teh said the change in plans was because of eleventh hour revisions to phase one of the project.

Phase one will include improvements in the food service area currently known as Union Station.
The seating area will be expanded and redecorated; additional food serving facilities such as a bakery, pizza parlor and ice cream parlor will be added and the customer traffic flow of these areas will be redesigned for faster customer service.

"We will try to minimize the inconveniences as much as possible," Teh said. "We don't want to have to cut the building in half."

Teh said the union would try to maintain a corridor for traffic moving through the building and Saga Food Service will set up temporary food service facilities to serve customers during the three-month construction period.

Be fit for month of May

Gov. Richard Bryan has proclaimed the month of May as Physical Fitness and Sports Month in the state of Nevada, according to Charles Bucher, director of the UNLV School of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance.

The proclamation is in response to a request by the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports.

"The council felt that May was a good time to bring national and state recognition to fitness and sports," said Bucher. "Hopefully, sponsored events will inform people of such services available throughout the state, and participation will increase." In the proclamation, Bryan congratulated the many agencies across the United States who have initiated fitness programs designed to improve the quality of life. He also urged Nevada municipal agencies such as recreation, health and education to promote activities in recognition of this month.

No, UNLV has not added these exotics to its fall course offerings, but it has gone the way of many colleges across the nation by adding advertising to its class time schedule.
Publications Specialist Nancy Forni said the move to include advertis-

She said that last year it cost $6,000 to print 25,000 copies of the course schedule. With advertising paying part of the way, the schedule for Fall 1983 cost only $2,700 for 30,000 copies.

"Hands on" valuable for nursing degree

by Susan Keech

Supervised, hands-on experience is vital to nursing education, but there are some problems with the present training program at UNLV.

"Nursing is a practice based on three things," said Mary MacElvain, instructor of psychiatric nursing.
"These things -- the knowledge of nursing theory, the personality of the clinician dealing with patients and the required technical skills -- must all be related to each other.

"Students have to be in the hospital with the patients before they can combine all three things," she continued. "I can't imagine teaching a clinical profession where students weren't allowed to practice clinically."

Dr. Rosemary Witt, chairman and associate professor of Nursing, agreed that clinical experience is crucial.

"There is a big difference between reading about interaction with the crucial.

"There is a big difference between reading about interaction with the patients and actually working with them," she said.

Students also feel clinical studies are a necessary part of their education.

"You can't beat the hands-on," said Marvin Daugherty, a second-semester Associate of Nursing Degree student. "You can hear about it in theory classes and talk about it until you're blue, but until you've seen it and done it — it doesn't mean a thing."

Nelida MacFarland, who will graduate this spring with an Associate's Degree in Nursing, said the hospital training is valuable because nursing students need to have experience in practical application.

hereause nursing students need to have experience in practical application.

Although the students and faculty agree on the importance of the training, they also said there are some problems with the training program at present.

"Students in their first semester of nursing need more time in the skills lab here before going to the hospital," MacFarland said.

"A lot of our students are LPNs or nursing aids," she explained, "but the typical student has had no exposure to illness, no experience in dealing with patients.

"In the clinic they are suddenly faced with a big responsibility," she continued, "and some of them just aren't ready for it."

Carol Fredal, an associate degree student in her second semester, said some of the material students should know before going to the hospitals isn't even presented in theory classes until after they've had the clinical portion.

isn't even presented in theory classes until after they've had the clinical portion.

The nursing department has considered spending half a semester in the skills lab and theory classes before taking students to the hospitals, according to Witt.

"That would ensure they were familiar with the contents of the lab and the skills they would be required to use in the clinics," she said.

"Maybe we shouldn't take students to the hospitals as early as we do," she continued, "but when students decide to become nurses, they want patient contact right away—they want the real thing."

The clinical situations are supervised by nursing faculty on about a 10 to one basis, Witt explained.

"The instructors are there to say 'You handled this well,' or 'You could have done things a little differently on this procedure,'" she continued.

"That kind of instruction is invaluable."

"That kind of instruction is invaluable."

"The instructors are in the area all the time," Daugherty agreed. "If you need them, they're there."

'They'll show you how to do something, observe as you do it and then let you do it alone.

"If you're not comfortable approaching something on your own, they'll review it with you, walk you through it again," he continued. "They don't push you into anything, ever."

Manners 101: To much yap from brats

To UNLV students:

It's the last week of school and I an honestly say that I took some reat classes I really could have enoyed. Could have, if I could have eard the professors. At first the espect was there, classes were tame at the beginning of the semester. As he weeks wore on, people were less onsiderate and more blatant about alking out loud, making snide emarks, and even zoo noises. My rofs had to compete with frat brats, giggling vals, and loudmouthed comedians. I realize that one's attention can wander, but is it necessary to force one's boredom on those who are interested in what they are paying to learn? I'm not putting down free expression or discussion based classes, but having to listen to people talk (not whisper) about their adventures while trying to listen to a boring lecture is too much. Especially when the prof calls on these people to add to class discussion and all of a sudden they're at a loss for words. Nobody is forcing anyone to go to class, so if you're going to talk for 75 minutes nonstop, why not go to the Union? I once brought a guest to class and he said it was like a glorified high school. There were people who just couldn't shut up, or even worse, would giggle every time sex or drugs was mentioned. In an "institution of higher learning" that turns out these same people for professional careers maybe we should have a required class called "Manners 101."

As the letter progresses, (deteriorates) the real problem surfaces. The poor, dumb wimp of a writer is unable to qualify for any type of student financial aid so he resents the student who has both athletic ability and the high school grades that predict success in college.

"Critic" is apparently ignorant of the fact that student athletes as a group have a higher scholastic achievement rate than their non-participating fellow students. Indeed, it is easy to cite the non-achieving student who represents only a small percentage of student athletes at UNLV, as he is highly visible to the myopic eye of the detractor.

Ironically, if it were not for the fact that the students, whom "Critic" castigated so unjustly, were on scholarship, he or she wouldn't have gotten paid for his or her tutor in the students of the control of t

Prof Prufrock's piscatorial pleasures probably portend prison

UNLV English professor J. Alfred Prufrock was arrested earlier this week following an altercation in a local sea food restaurant when the eccentric prof threw handfuls of sawdust and oyster shells at metro police officers.

Price-gouging book pushers booked for grand larceny

In a surprise raid yesterday, the combined forces of the university police, Metro and the Clark County library stormed the UNLV bookstore and arrested the entire staff on charges of extortion and price-gouging.

The arrests stemmed from allegations students were being charged outrageous prices for txtbooks and other materials.

"It really disgusts me to see people who need every cent so blatantly abused," said Sgt. Bob Foster, who headed the six month investigation. Foster cited several books the store had received from the library at no cost, yet were sold for over $50.

The metro spokesman said rip-offs action could be taken due to insufficient evidense.

But a break in the case came last month, Foster said, when the bookstore started to sell Penthouse and Playboy for $10 an issue. "We had 'em nailed," he said. "We all know what those magazines are

Although few of the arrested employees would comment, one said he was shocked at the charges. "We give the students a lot of free services which havn't been considered," he said. "Real nice yellow bags which they can use to carry stuff around in or throw struff away in. We also give away free bookmarks and let student look at magazines for awhile before they buy them... we did at least till we stopped selling them."

Senator Robert Eglet is trying to set up a test taking service for students who just don't have time to take their exams. "For a small tendollar fee, any CSUN member will be able to get a qualified test taker to sit in for them."

Eglet says he has test takers ready for Communication Studies, Hotel and Biology. The special test taking service, Eglet says, will be a first for a college university in the U.S.

Mushrooming post-nuclear communication needs serviced by After the Holocaust Newsletter

by Loren DiGonzo

April 1, 1985 - At a recent national press conference, former Nazi and crazed backpacker, Dark Hashish, announced that the first volume and issue of the After the Holocaust News will be distributed from his cave dwelling in the Red Rock Mountain area.

"The paper is on stone tablets," said Hashish. "Since the holocaust in 1984, I've been chiseling news with an old exacto blade."

Hashish is the only known survivor, eft with a vast storage of tequilaligh levels of radiation have caused the world population to rely on tejuila as their main drinking source, and Hashish is known to have at least 2,000 cases of a special brand he calls

Taking huge gulps of the brew from an old blender glass, Hashish creamed "Inca, Inca, Inca."

"Have a sapa inca," he added, it's the cactus juice of life."

The cynical journalist claimed that without his stockpile of alcohol (not to mention drugs), he would have never produced The After the Holocaust News. "I'm a firm believer in blatant diaregards of social rules," said Hashish. "My plans are to get bilized as often as possible so I may set a good example to future editors of this publication. The only problem is that my exacto blade is on its last leg, and I'm afraid that revolutionaries might come and steal my secret recipe.

"However, I have a full supply of explosives which I inherited from the late Bernard Mickey Wrangler," Hashish admitted. "If any sapa ince stealers come around these parts, I'll everyday kind of problems faced by post-nuke dwellers, Hashish said. "This week, for instance, we have a feature on raising giant mutant insects as housepets. Other articles include 'Cooking on rocks - the Earth's natural maicrowave' and 'Luckemia can be fun."

Sharing Hashish's cave dwelling is Rona Redhead, a noted Argonian activist who once spent an entire summer meditating on a photo of T.S. Eliot. "Dark is a real man," said Redhead. "He's a B.M. Wrangler kind of guy. His philosophy deals with outlawing and how to be structured."

WACKA WACKA WACKA - Despite stiff competition from E&P chairman Larry Hamilton, CSUN gadfly Greg Goussak remains winner of the Pac Man Look-Alike Contest for the second year in a row. "I don't eat yellow dots, I eat student's dollars in my job as appropriation's board chairman," the portly little bureaucrat said. "I also enjoy the twisted mazes of university policy." The judges said this attitude had as much to do with the award as did Goussack's uncanny resemblance to the little yellow cursor so popular with the arcade set. Other awards this year included Whimp of the Year -- Gormer CSUN Sen. Bill DiBennidetto; Oreo of the Year -- Clarence Lee; Mind-Numbing Redundancy in the Name of a Good Cause Award -- Prof. Craig Walton; Been Down So Long It Looks Like Up to Me Award -- Jack McBride; Entertainer of the Year -- Robert Eglet; Martyr of the Year -- the entire staff of the Rebel Yell. The Official Yell Drunk award was handed over to the new winner, John Southland, by the winner for the last three years running, Marc Charisse. "I guess it's time to move on to bigger and better things," Charisse said, fighting back tequila-reeking tears. Southland was too inebriated for comment.

WHOOPS! -- Fred Dallimore's Hustlin' Rebels have been playing much better than this picture indicates. The Reb's are hoping to end their season on a positive note, justifying their selection of a post season berth in the NCAA's. They need at least 35 victories for a chance.

Hustlin' Rebs making NCAA?

The Hustlin' Rebels, struggling to gain entry into the NCAA's at season's end, travel to San Diego, California to take on the San Diego State Aztecs in a three game series beginning with a single game on Friday and continuing with a twinbill on Saturday. UNLV defeated SD St. 17-6 and 6-5 in their previous matchup at the Fresno St. Invitational earlier in the sesson.

After the Aztec series, Dallimore's diamond demons will have to wait and be patient to see if this up and down team will see any post season action.

In last week's competition, the Rebels swept a three game seriet from Southern Utah St., 7-3 on Friday and 16-6 and 18-5 on Saturday. Going into the UNR series, UNLY had won nine of it's last 12 games, including wins over nationally ranked Brigham Young University 8-5 Hawaii 14-3 and 12-6 and Arizona St., 8-7 in extra innings.

The Hustlin' Rebels have six players batting over. 300, including sophomore catcher Tim Arnold and junior first baseman Mike Naranjo. Naranjo, from Syosset, New York, is hitting .346, with eight doubles, two homers and 34 runs batted in, while Arnold, from Custer, S.D., is batting .366, with three homers and 32 RBI's. Infielder Jim Pace is hitting at a .332 clip, while sophomore Chris Arnold is hitting at a .307 pace. Outfielders Jack Curtis at .305 and Jim Angus at .302 are the only other hitters at .300 or above

by Randy Hockfeld

Has anyone wondered about the situation concerning the UNLV football team and the location of their home games during the upcoming 1983 campaign?

Well, although it's not a controversial matter at the moment. there is still a question as to whether or not Harvey Hyde's Rebel footbal team will be able to call the Lat Vezas Silver Bowl. home.

According to Dr. Brad Rothermel, Athletic Director of the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, "There is indecision at this point with the financial details as to whether or not something can be worked out between the LVCVA, the Legislature and UNLV." Dr. Rothermel added that everything should be settled by UNLV's lease on the Silver Bowl expired at the end of the '82 season and they have been having financial talks between the Las Vegas Convention and Visitors Authority since seasons end.

Rothermel said "The LVCVA is offering to let UNLV pay $1 a year for the next 3 years and lease it from them and they would provide us $125,000 a year to manange and maintenance the Silver Bowl." He added "The LVCVA will request $100,000 per year from the legislature that is in session to give to the University of Newada,"

The Silver Bowl is presently operated on a budget of $375,000 members. If UNLV and the LVCVA were to agree on the above terms, and UNLV was given the power to manage and maintain the Silver Bowl, then Rothermel feels that the Silver Bowl can be operated on a budget of $225,000, or $150,000 less than last very Rothermel sees concessions and lights as a start on the way to reducing the budget, followed by a reducer part-time staff. There are already plans to play some of the Rebel home games during the afternoon instead of the usual Saturday evening 7:30 p.m. starting time.

In his third year as director of in tercollegiate athletics, Rotherme fered. He did say, however, "But, if not - we'd have to explore other options." He said that the first option would be to ask for additional funding from the LVCVA and the second would be to negotiate the multitude of funds between the $125,000 - $225,000 from the LVCVA.

But Rothermel did add that "The Silver Bowl is the only place to play Division I football in this community."

Rothermel sees other options for the Silver Bowl's use.

"We want to create a profit center as opposed to a liability. We need to look at it as an opportunity to create revenue."

Lady Rebels running toward Nationals

UNLV track is alive and well on it's way to completing it's best season to date. None of it could have been done without the tutelage of the teams devoted coach extoidinare, Al McDaniel.

McDaniels and Co. are on a roll The team is coming off another excellent meet and just tuning up for the NCAA Outdoor Nationals at the University of Houston from June 1-4.

This past weekend at the University of California, Irvine, senior Myrna Nearing paced the Lady Rebels in an outstanding effort during the Southern California Invitational by setting a new UNLV school record with a time of 10:15.9 in the 3,000 meter run.

Freshman Patty Williams set a freshman record in the javelin event with a toss of 131'8". Williams was aptly named as co-recipient of this week's Fidelity Union Life Insurance Athless of the Work.

UNLV placed third in the 400 meter relay, while Lisa Thompson finished third in the 200 meter with a time of 23.9. Vernicia Smith placed third in the 400 meter event with a time of 53.9.

Never before has a UNLV track team had so many people at a season ending event such as the NCAA Nationals. But this season, all that will change.

UNLV people at the Nationals have been spectators or UNLV track members wishing to be out on the tartan surface raising their knees, gasping for that last bit of energy, motivation and determination. That is not to be the case this year, as four individual girls and two relay teams have already qualified under Coach McDaniels. McDaniels will use the two final meets of the season to both mentally and physically prepare for

The Lady Rebels will compete in the Modesto California Relays on Saturday and the Pepsi Invitational at UCLA on Sunday. For McDaniels and Co., senior sprinters Lisa Thompson, Michelle Stewart, Inger Peterson and Vernecia Smith will all participate, as well as Sonja Wortham in the long jump, Sonya Briscoe in the 400 meter hurdles, Patty Williams in the jawelin and Myrma Nearing in several long distance

It might not be the NCAA's but it's better than nothing. One can ask Lady Rebel coach Sheila Strike about that one.

For the second year in a row, Fred Albrecht's UNLV tennis team will be competed in the National Independent Tennis Tournament. This year's tourney will be held at Northeast Louisiana in Monroe, La. from May 12-15.

In last year's NIT, the Rebels came in fifth place, beating Northwestern St. 6-3, Austin Peay 5-4, Murray St. 5-4, and finally lost to Minnesota, 7-2. Phil Agassi was named to the All Tournament team with a 5-0 singles mark as he led the '82 Rebels.

The Rebels came in third place in last week's PCAA Championships in California, as Cal St. - Irvine won the championship, with second place being captured by Cal. St. - Long Beach. The Rebels advanced three teams or players into the finals, Phil Agassi, UNLV's No. 1 player was defeated by defending champ Jim Synder, of Cal-Irvine, 1-6, 7-5, 6-4 in the No. 1 singles division. Agassi lost a match point in the second set, then lost that set and the bird set also.

UNLV's No. 3 singles player, senior Matt McDougall, lost in the finals to Eric Quade, Cal-Irvine, 6-4, 6-3. McDougall has been named as one of the two recipients of this week's Fidelity Union Life Insurance

Albrecht's No. 1 doubles team of seniors Tim Giller and Mike Morga, lost in the finals to Synder-Quade, 4-6, 6-3, 6-1

At least Albrecht's team will be able to compete in post season action, unlike some of UNLV's other deserving teams.

WAIT A MINUTE -- How can this person get in the paper? He doesn't even play for Fubar II? Everyone knows that if you're not on Fubar II or a friend of one of the players, then there's no way you or you're team can possibly get any publicity. Season ends, Fubar and Runners on top

by Randy Hockfeld

The Intramural Softball season has come to a close, but the long awaited playoffs are beginning on Saturday. The quarterfinals, semifinals and finals will be palyed on Sunday with the quarterfinals beginning at 10 a.m. and the finals at 4 p.m.

As a side note, much publicized Fubar II team finished their triumphant campaign at 10-0, after season ending victories versus the Ameritone Frochniks, Geoscience (it must be time for studying and finals) and the Wig Revolvers (with a name like that they deserve to lose). By the way, Fubar's tremendous publicity campaign throughout the Intramural season enabled them to walk away with their last three victories over the weekend, because of forfeits from the above mentioned competition, if they can be called as such.

These teams couldn't have feared well if they would have played in the women's division versus such teams as the ATO Lil' Sis. led by Sally (strike out king) Horn, ADPi with Kathy Kaleza, Ludy Lynn Best, and Pam (City League) Levins. Those men's team's would have been destroyed by such phenomenal competition as Hotel's Chosen Few, led by Deanna Maccaluso (we can't protest, she's the Intramural Director!) and Pat's Pounding Campers, who definitely have some good looking women - just look at Cheryl Cohen, Ali Ames, Michelle McDonald, and

The ATO Lil' Sis. might not have the best softball team, but they do put up a fight with the Pounding Campers for having some of the finest looking ladies on the field. uch as Jenny Stewart.

The following jibberish has been submitted to the sports desk by the mystery TEKE. It's all jibberish, except of course, for the part where he mentions the talented Rum Runners and Fubar II, and the not so talented Jim DiPetrio.

After hearing all there is to hee about Fubar II and the mysteriou and good looking Pat's Poundin Campers, it is time to hear about a entire division. And what division that? The awesome greek division ocourse!

I have heard talk that there is a lot of good teams in Intramural softball. This is a gross misconception, because there are only two quality teams outside of the greek division. They are Fubar II and the Rum Runners.

All of the greek teams are good, but the two best are TKE and ATO. TKE, (the magnificent seven) has played all of it's games with only seven players and it still has compiled a respectable record (watch out for

Then there is ATO who showed a lot of character when they came from 14 down (17-3) in the last inning to beat AEII. (And believe me, this the only time you will hear ATO and to be a few drawbacks and the biggest (maybe only) drawback in the greek division is Jim "Even my parents hate me" DiPetrio, DiPetrio spends the entire game telling the umps and his own players how to do their jobs when he knows how to do neither (how can they even think of playing on the same team as him)?
