

Psi Chi

reconvened the meeting, the Senate voted to reconsider their first vote. But the second motion to waive the bylaw also failed to win the necessary two-thirds majority.

Almost an hour into the meeting, the agenda was completed. Evenson then called for open discussion and allowed Colletto to speak before the senators for the first time.

This was her second appearance before the Senate. Two weeks earlier, she said she made a similar request of the Senators and they had refused to waive the bylaw that would have allowed them to consider Psi Chi's request.

At the end of that meeting on March 10, Vice President Pro Tem Tristram Harrington recommended that Colletto see President Maxson and attend the next Executive Board meeting.

After Colletto met with Maxson, $500 was approved for Psi Chi from the Academic Affairs Office.

The Executive Board arranged a meeting of the Organization's Board to consider recommending approval to the Senate of Psi Chi's request for another $500. The Organization's Board made that recommendation on March 17.

Colletto said she believed the board's recommendation assured Senate approval of the request.

"That was a big misunderstanding," Senator Christine Mangual said. "We never told Kim that if she got a recommendation from the Org.[sic] board, that the Senate would give Psi Chi the money."

Denise Gentile, CSUN Vice President, also advised Colletto to bring as many of the 16 students planning to attend the convention as possible. Only Dr. Donald Diener, the faculty advisor and one other member of the group attended with Colletto.

During her comments to the Senate, Colletto said she was sorry she had attended the meeting, and that the previous hour in the meeting had been a confusing and humiliating experience. She then asked how it was possible that the Senators could approve over $1,000 for the Springfest party and not $500 for Psi Chi to promote academics at UNLV.

Several of the senators in their comments assured her that the Psi Chi trip was a valuable program. Such a comparison was "like comparing apples and oranges," Spicer said.

"There is a definite possibility we will get all of our money back from Springfest," Mangual said. "A lot of students will be buying T-shirts, mugs and hats which the CSUN money will buy."

Evenson later said he would have liked to see the bylaw waived and let the organization have had their case heard.

Senator Dan Richmond said he would try and made amends to Psi Chi and find out whether their request for $500 was a "need or a want."

Three days after the Senate meeting, Evenson said that "I hope I can talk with Kim later and work with her in whatever way possible to iron things out."

None of this would have happened, Spicer said, "If Kim had called her senators and said, 'Here's what's going on: this is how much we'd like to have, can we work something out?'"

"It's always best to contact senators beforehand to find out what's going on. I'll always help anyone who comes into CSUN and needs help."

Colletto estimated at least $2500 was needed to send 16 psychology majors to participate in and present three research papers at two conventions to be held in San Francisco in late April.

Work out while doing everyday things

The next time you pass a mirror, stop and take a look at yourself. If you leave the mirror with a bad impression, do something about that impression. A person doesn't have to spend two hours a day in the sun to feel comfortable with his or her looks. Making healthy use of time is very important.

Take doing the dishes for example, change this dreary chore into a healthy dreary chore. While standing at the sink, maintain a conscious effort to keep your abdomen (that's your belly) tight. This seemingly simple exercise can indeed be difficult. Stand up straight, throw your shoulders back (which for some people is a new experience in itself) take in a deep breath and exhale.

When exhaling keep your stomach tense and flat. It really works on tightening those flabby muscles. Of course nothing compares to going to the gym and really working out, but it's a start. Never, under any circumstances push your stomach out to its fullest extent, not even for short periods of time. This stretches the muscular tissue in your abdomen, often beyond repair.

Little things can often mean a lot.

When jumping into the car for a trek across town, add an old tennis ball to the trip. Squeeze the ball, alternating hands, while driving. You will find that this exercise not only relieves frustration while stuck in traffic but it also forces blood through and stimulates the forearm as well as the bicep and tricep.

Try these two recommendations. I'm sure you'll feel a difference

Remember these are for people who can't go to health clubs for one reason or another. Naturally I recommend a good hard workout if indeed you can take the time. Remember, your muscles are there for a reason, work them!

Next time you're at the library, take the stairs. Three floors never killed anyone.
