

Temptations and Rascals team up at the Hilton

The soulful sounds of the Temptations and the pop music of the Rascals can be heard at the Las Vegas Hilton September 6-11.

There have been many Temptations over the years. In fact, ever since the group's inception back in 1961, some of the greatest voices in popular music have found a home in the Temptations. The early Temps gathered up the influences of numerous do-wop groups before them, synthesized and updated them in hits like "My Girl," "Get Ready," and "I Wish It Would Rain." In the process, Ron Tyson, Richard Street, Dennis Edwards, Melvin Franklin and Otis Williams not only helped to define the Motown sound, but they also proved inspiration and role models for many number of singers and groups.

The Temptations have delivered one of their strongest albums of the decade in Together Again. It's a new LP full of lush, romantic harmonies, combined with that tough, soulful edge that has always signified the soulful group at their best.

Joining the Temptations in the Hilton Showroom are the Rascals. Legends come and go with the popularity of "classic rock," the Rascals' time has come again. Felix Cavaliere, Gene Cornish, and Dino Danelli formed the Young Rascals in 1965. By the end of that year, they became the first white act signed to Atlantic Records and scored their first hit with the single "I Ain't Gonna Eat Out My Heart Anymore."

They dominated the charts in the following years with smash hits that include "Good Lovin'," "How Can I Be Sure," and the number one "Groovin." Their music is once again topping the charts via movie soundtracks like "The Big Chill," "Legal Eagles," and "Platoon" proving their blue-eyed soul is as timely today as it was twenty years ago.

Open season on UNLV pedestrians

by mike schneweis

staff writer

Now that the fall session has started, it's time to talk about the most dangerous part of your college career, crossing the streets around campus.

As the pedestrian you will have to deal with drivers who use the S.T.O.P. method of going through a crossing, Slightly Tap On Pedal. A personal favorite of mine is the driver that refuses to even use the brake.

In an effort to overcome these obstacles, college pedestrians have developed several techniques to cross the campus streets. There are those that never stop looking at their feet when crossing the road. This type of person is hoping that the driver will play fair and not hit someone who isn't looking. This technique is risky, and can lead to a few months in a body cast.

Darting is another popular technique that is used. This person darts across the road one lane at a time, and usually finds themselves trapped between lanes of traffic. The best part of this technique is that darters scare drivers, because the drivers have no idea when the darters will dart again. The drawback is obvious, if you are slow on your feet you could find yourself looking at the undercarriage of the car.

My favorite technique is called the buddy system. It operates on the simple idea of using your buddy to stop the normal flow of traffic.

You push your buddy into traffic, if the cars stop- you can cross. If the cars don't stop, you can cross behind the body of your buddy. This technique has some problems associated with it, such as declining numbers of friends and a long prison sentence.

Pedestrians, I wish you good luck, and for you drivers - happy hunting.
