

Senior theatre at UNLV

UNLV's Department of Theatre Arts is inaugurating a Senior Adult Theatre Program this fall. Senior Theatre—theatre by, for, and for seniors—is one of the most exciting things to happen to theatre in the last decade.

Starting with the Fall 1990 semester, the University of Nevada, Las Vegas launches into this new field. Ann J. Del Vecchio, an authority on senior theatre with an extensive background in directing, acting and choreography, will head this new program and direct the two productions scheduled for the 1990-91 Theatre Season.

It's new. In fact, this is the first significant effort by any major university in the United States. There will be classes for senior adults where they will not only plan and produce plays but will write, produce, direct and perform in plays.

For further information please call UNLV's Department of Theatre Arts at 739-3666.

Music fit for a king

On Sunday, Sept. 30, at 3 p.m., the music of 16th- and 17th-century composers, along with a description of each composer's patron, will be the subject of a lecture/performance by flutist Richard Soule and harpsichordist John Metz. The program will be held at Reed Whipple Cultural Center, 821 Las Vegas Blvd. N. There is no admission charge.

According to Soule and Metz, listening to the music of these composers in the perspective of their various patronage and political environments seems to bring them back to life, giving each audience member a better understanding of the culture of earlier times. Close inspection of the flute and the harpsichord is an integral part of each presentation.

John Metz is Associate Professor of Music at Arizona State University, founder of the Phoenix Early Music Society, and harpsichordist with Musica Dolce.
