STUDENT GOVERNMENT TRIVIA

What is CSUN?

CSUN is an acronym for the Consolidated Students at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas and functions as a self-governing entity of UNLV. In layman's terms, CSUN is better known as Student Government. Because of the ambiguity of the acronym, CSUN is in the process of officially changing to "Student Government." It is still the same entity, but now there is no more confusion or misunderstanding associated with the name. It's simply Student Government. Students Serving Students.

Who is a member of CSUN/Student Government?

All matriculated undergraduate students of UNLV, upon payment of registration fees, shall be members of Student Government until the following semester.

So What? Student Government. CSUN.

Whatever the name, what does it mean to me?

Paraphrasing the Student Government (SG) Constitution, all SG members have the right to obtain any information regarding all public and financial actions of SG; attend any official meeting of any SG entity; be represented to the Board of Regents through SG; petition SG; and vote in any SG election.

Translated, this means that you, the student, have a voice in what happens in Student Government. You have several avenues that are open to you when interested in any Student Government matter.

In addition, this also means that the Student Government representatives are here to serve you whether that be as a voice on the Senate, providing free scantrons or 'red' books, contracting entertainment for Student Government sponsored events, organizational funding, free or reduced tickets to UNLV athletic events . . . (The list goes on!)

Organizational Spotlight

- Do you think you belong to the best organization on campus?
- Is your organization unique in some particular way or in a class by itself?
- Have you been trying to think of ways to highlight your organization and get more people interested in what it does?

Well, the Office of Student Information thinks that every organization on campus is unique in some way or another and deserves due attention. In an effort to bring about that attention, OSI will be initiating "Organizational Spotlight" which will highlight information about your organization in a special section on the OSI Page. All of those interesting facts that you always wanted other students to know about your organization can now be brought to light!

If interested in getting others interested, stop by MSU 120 and see the OSI Director, Traci Smith.
