Paradise Alley dances to a different beat

by Angela Ramsey
Staff Reporter

The nightclub Paradise Alley has recently changed its "hard rock" image to satisfy a demand for "Top 40" music.

The club, which previously featured a mixture of heavy metal and pop rock, is now devoted to playing contemporary music. "A drop off in business and a resurgence of 'Top 40' over rock" initiated the change in format, said club president John Galane.

Many hard rock connoisseurs, who frequented Paradise Alley because of its unique rock/dance atmosphere, are now being replaced by a different crowd.

When asked about the loss of original customers, Galane said, "There has been a change in customers and there are new faces."

According to Galane, the club hasn't completely abandoned the hard rock theme.

Four rock bands will perform live on Tuesday nights and on occasional Monday nights. In fact, heavy metal bands Hurricane Alice and Lizzy Borden will appear within the next two months.

To check out the new atmosphere, Paradise Alley is located at 6390 W. Sahara.
