nanced and strenuously contro- versial Review resigned.

"By warding off the Jews, I am fighting for the Lord's work," read the Hitler quote, which the Review printed within its usual masthead credo, a Theodore Roosevelt nostrum.

An opinion column by former student Vivek Golikeri in the Sept. 17 edition of The Campus similarly charged that City College is dominated by a "Jewish clique" made up of "powerful, arrogant people who often control everything."

"I was appalled by the blatant anti-Semitism expressed" in the column, said City College President Bernard W. Harleston in a letter to the paper.

"I urge the editors of The Campus and the other student media to reject such blatant prejudice both in their news stories and on their opinion pages," he added.

Dartmouth President James O. Freedman, who the Review once charged was himself behaving like Hitler, reacted with almost the exact same sentiments.

"Appalling bigotry of this kind has no place at the college or in the country," he said.

"For 10 years the Dartmouth Review has consistently attacked blacks because they are black, women because they are women and Jews because they are Jews," Freedman's statement said.

Freedman and two professors from Dartmouth spoke at a student rally against the Review on Oct. 3, which was attended by more than 2,500 students.

Review editors could not be reached for comment.

In a statement released to the press, they said the quote got into the newspaper "through an act of sabotage, a subterfuge, a dirty trick that we are determined to track down and expose."

However, the statement also lashed out against the school for its protests. It called the situation "Dartmouth's Tawana Brawly case," in reference to the black New York teenager who said she had been raped by white men, a claim that was later discredited.

"A sabotage and hoax is cynically exploited by demagogues to stir up hatred and polarization," the statement said.

The paper has indeed attracted the enmity of many Dartmouth administrators and students.

In years past, it sponsored a lobster and champagne dinner during a campus fast to raise money for homeless people, published a list of Gay Student Association members, ran a "Black English" column alleging the school's black students are generally illiterate and had staff members suspended for wrecking an anti-apartheid shanty and getting in a shoving match with a black professor.

In August, William Cole, the professor who fought with Review staffers, resigned, citing two years of harassment from the Review as one of his reasons for leaving.

Alex Huppe, Dartmouth's news service director, said the Review's stereotyping and criticism of whole group of people has hurt the school's recruiting of minority students and faculty members.

Moreover, he doubted the Review's contention that publishing the Hitler quote was a mistake, recalling Reviewers previously claimed the "Black English," shanty wrecking and Cole incidents were all works of individual staffers and not the Review itself.

While Review Editor-in-chief Kevin Pritchett has apologized repeatedly for the incident, the editors at The Campus have not done so.

In an editorial printed two weeks after the first opinion piece, the editors defended their right to print such an article.

"A range of views tend to get people to act... hopefully towards justice and peace," the editorial said.

The Campus editors were not available for comment.
