Campus information

School of Medicine is recruiting on campus for summer program

Representatives from the University of Nevada School of Medicine will be at UNLV Thursday, Jan. 31, White Hall 104, 9 a.m. to noon, to talk with students interested in participating in a six-week summer program for minority students interested in going to medical school.

The Minority Medical Education Program offers students the chance to spend three weeks at the Reno campus of the School of Medicine and three weeks at the University of California-Davis in science courses, labs, sessions in writing and communication skills, preparation for the medical school entrance exam as well as opportunities for personal and social support. Stipends are provided for students.

For more information about the program and the application process, stop by White Hall 104.

Nuclear expert to speak on campus

Arjun Makhijani, director of energy programs at the International Institute for Energy and Environmental Research will be speaking at UNLV on Jan. 31.

Dr. Makhijani is recognized worldwide for his work on nuclear waste. His report entitled, REDUCING THE RISKS; Policies for the Management of Highly Radioactive Nuclear Waste was submitted to the Dept. of Energy in Las Vegas during the public comment period on the Yucca Mountain Site Characterization Project.

The public is invited and time will be available for audience questions.

Corporate Challenge
In March and April 125 teams representing different companies will compete city-wide, Olympic-style. Students who work at the university 20 hours or more can be on a state team. For more information, contact Ray Belak at 388-3194.

National Honor Society fellowships

The UNLV chapter of the National Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi invites applications for the Phi Kappa Graduate Fellowship program. These fellowships award $7,000 for first-year graduate or professional study in any field. The UNLV nominee will be awarded $500 by the local chapter. The deadline for completed applications is Feb. 11. Information and application forms may be obtained from Boyd Earl, Chemistry Department, 3753 or 3510.

Financial aid awareness night

UNLV's Office of Student Financial Services will offer its annual Financial Aid Awareness Night Jan. 24, 7 p.m., in the Flora Dungan Humanities Auditorium, Room 109.

The program will offer students an overview of student financial aid and a workshop on completing the ACT, CSS and USAF financial aid application.

The workshop will be helpful to all students who are interested in securing financial aid.

Students are urged to fill out financial aid applications as completely as possible before they attend the workshop. Help will be available to finish the forms at the workshop.
