Inspiration in troubled times

Dear editor,

Finally with 55 going on 68 credits, I have the status of a junior. Something to smile about in troubled times. As an Air Force brat, my wishes of comfort and peace go out to those with loved ones at war. There is a time and place for everything though, and Saddam Hussein should be put in his place. Fast.

Certainly many UNLV Rebels have deeply reflected upon life and themselves lately. This third crisis in the gulf, that has escalated to America and its allies at war, has made me reflect upon the words of John Fitzgerald Kennedy, "Ask not what your country can do for you, but what you can do for your country."

I decided if I get accepted to law school, that I will give the Army a two-year commitment in exchange for approximately $8000 to apply to Harvard Law School. My other ambition, not related to the military, is to help lead a major corporation.

Some students now know that in two-to-four years UNLV will get a law school. You can write your new, improved Board of Regents to get more information.

A few years from now, at my five or 10 year reunion, I will enjoy speaking of my experience at UNLV. Having started college on a quarter system in Japan, I've come to appreciate home games, a debate team being fifth in the nation, and pledging to meet new people. I even have Rebelbilia from the 1990 NCAA Champion Runnin' Rebels.

Praying for a peaceful resolve. God bless you.
