Job Fair '91

On Wednesday, March 20, Student Employment Services will sponsor Job Fair '91 from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. in Moyer Student Union lounges 201 and 202.

Students are encouraged to attend this event because employers are interested in hiring students while they are still attending school.

Job Fair '91 was developed to help currently enrolled students find part-time, full-time or summer employment. Employers will include Citibank, Wet-n-Wild, Disneyland, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms and the new Church Street Station. Positions vary with employers, but include special agents, tellers, customer service, food and beverage, casino and housekeeping.

Student Employment Services sponsors two job fairs each year and each one has been successful in finding employment for UNLV students.

For more information, call 739-3939.

Keep your campus clean

Approximately 2600 hours are spent each week by university custodial personnel in cleaning classrooms and offices on this campus. Because the custodial workforce has not been sufficiently supplemented to keep up with the additional space being added to campus, it's estimated that there is a need for almost 400 additional hours each week to perform all the cleaning tasks required.

Each of you can help to overcome our present work force deficiencies by cleaning up in your individual space—refrain from eating and drinking in the classrooms, deposit refuse in a nearby waste receptacle, and pick up someone's discarded trash item on the campus grounds each day.

Our employees want to provide a pleasant learning and working environment. Please help keep our campus clean.

Banned book exhibit at the library

The James R. Dickinson Library is currently showing the American Library Association's Office of Intellectual Freedom's Banned Book Exhibit.

The display is located in the Special Collections Section of the library on the fourth floor of the rectangular building. Display hours are Monday-Thursday, from 8 a.m.-8 p.m., Friday from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. and on Sundays from 1-5 p.m.

The exhibit includes actual copies of banned books along with a binder that lists the reasons for banning them. The exhibit will continue from now through March 28.

The University of Nevada School of Medicine

The University of Nevada School of Medicine is a statewide medical school. They ask that their official title be used when referring to their programs, their institution or their faculty.

National Student-Athlete Day

Congressman Jim Bilbray has co-sponsored legislation that will designate April 6, 1991 as National Student-Athlete Day to promote the role of sports within education and stress the need for a balance between academics and athletics.

"Athletes are role models for many young people," Bilbray said. "This day is an opportunity to highlight the positive role sports can play in the development of personal character and direct students away from the idea that sports can be a substitute for education."

Several states are planning Student-Athlete Day programs that include professional athletes who have returned to college to complete their degrees. Currently, 37 institutions of higher learning nationwide have joined together to assist athletes in continuing their education and to promote opportunities in education to high school students.

Valley Save-a-Pet meeting

Valley Save-a-Pet will hold its general meeting at 7 p.m. on the last Friday of March (29) at Dula Center, 450 E. Bonanza. It is a non-profit organization dedicated to helping animals. Everyone is welcome to attend the meeting with no obligation.

For more information, call Peg at 384-6724.

'Pandora's Box' being shown

On Wednesday, March 20 at 7:30 p.m., Winchester Community Center continues its classic foreign film series with a showing of G.W. Pabst's "Pandora's Box." Admission is $1.

"Pandora's Box" is perhaps Louise Brooks' greatest film. One of Hollywood's most intriguing mysteries, Brooks had made only a few films before being discovered by Pabst and cast in the role to which she seemed born. Subsequently, she offended the Hollywood establishment by going off to Europe for another film. She was blackballed and only years later, in her old age, became a cult figure to film buffs.

The film is recommended for mature audiences. Seating is limited, so early arrival is suggested. For more information, call 455-7340.

A scheduled test of fire protection systems for all campus buildings will be conducted March 25-29. These tests are being performed to ensure proper operation of all fire protection equipment. If there are any questions or concerns regarding test schedules, please contact the Facility Maintenance Department at ext. 3358.

What is UNLV TV?

by W. Morgan Fisher

On April 2 at 7:30 p.m. the Barrick Lecture Series will present the former chief spokesperson for the Soviet Union, Ambassador Gennady Gerasimov. Tickets will be free to all faculty, staff and students beginning March 20 in the Performing Arts Center box office. But don't worry if you can't get a ticket or if you just can't be there at all, because UNLV TV will air the entire lecture on Prime Cable Channel 31 April 8, 15, and 22.

What is UNLV TV? UNLV TV is the campus television station. It started in June as part of the new Greenspun School of Communication. Its main purpose is to provide students with the opportunity to experience television production, while getting paid.

"We are completely manned by student workers," said Producer Laurel Fruth, manager of UNLV TV. "And we're always looking for more student involvement to help in production."

On June 25, 1990 UNLV TV began production. They recruited Emmy Award-winning alumnus Dan Lovil to be production manager. With his expertise, they've been able to produce the city council and county commission meetings, which have become the foundation of their programming so far.

With a grant from Prime Cable totaling $50,000 a year ($25,000 every six months), they are able to produce and air four meetings a month.

"We like to produce the city and county meetings but we're looking to expand our campus programming," Fruth said. All future programming is contingent on donation.

Health Awareness Day

The UNLV student body could use a visit from the doctor. College life is not always healthy. Stress from exams, reports and projects often wear down young bodies. Money and time for proper health care can also be a problem for college students.

April 3 will mark the fifth annual observance of Health Awareness Day. UNLV has designated this day to draw attention to proper health. The event will be held in the Moyer Student Union Ballroom from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. It is open to students and faculty.

According to Director of Student Health Services Ken Tomory, UNLV established HAD to incorporate into the campus the central ideas of community health fairs. "HAD aims to increase health awareness and educate students on proper health by making health care professionals available to answer questions from students and faculty," Tomory said.

The event is sponsored by Student Health Services, CSUN Student Health Advisory Committee and the UNLV Chapter of the Public Relations Student Society of America.

More than 18,200 students are attending UNLV this semester, and many are unaware of the variety of health services offered on campus and in the community. HAD will provide an introduction of these services to students and faculty.

Health Awareness Day is also designed to make students more aware of important health aspects such as blood pressure, weight, height, temperature and body fat, without taking a lot of time and money to see a doctor.

The free information and advice offered on HAD will help students and faculty better understand proper health.

"Without understanding what makes you healthy, health problems are bound to surface later on in life," Tomory said.

According to Tomory, approximately 65 organizations will be participating in HAD this year. All will provide health information. Lectures on topics ranging from daily nutrition to stress management are scheduled throughout the day.
