

Are you the loving type?

by Joseph S. Garcia

Falling in love and taking steps toward marriage are matters that are sometimes difficult to deal with. It is logical to assume that because these matters are of a personal nature, no one could provide serious advice. Nevertheless, a great amount of information is available on this subject.

Very few people feel comfortable with what they know about falling in love. Whether you are a man or a woman, there are certain aspects of personality attraction to think about. Consider one of the four following scenarios, and see if one of them seems like something you've already experienced.

1. If you are outgoing, cheerful, talkative, usually optimistic, good-natured and basically friendly, this is what usually happens to you: The person you really like and may fall in love with is moody, sensitive, introspective, often pessimistic, sober, down-to-earth and sometimes clumsy in speech. The person who usually likes you and may fall in love with you is that opposite of that. This person is usually bold, strong-minded, restless, domineering, often smooth and coherent in speech and, generally truly youthful in nature.

2. If you are usually serious-minded, sensitive, a good innovator, somewhat creative and tending to be emotional in order to exhibit good speech, then the following usually happens: The type of personality who is attracted to you is likely to be the above-mentioned extrovert. However, the person you are usually attracted to and may fall deeply in love with is also just the opposite. This person appears introverted, is usually reserved, very logical, a good listener, generally quiet, graceful in nature and usually meticulous with mathematical detail.

3. If you yourself are the quiet, careful, logical person admired by No. 2, you tend to like and fall in love with someone who is strong-minded, bold, outgoing and somewhat domineering. By contrast, the person who tends to fall in love with you is sensitive, often moody and reason-conscious.

4. Should you be musically inclined, outgoing, strong-minded and tending to like football and hockey, you are likely to fall in love with the person described in No. 1. However, the person who likes you is also just the opposite, and is described in No. 3.

For more information on this subject the author of How Human Beings Fall In Love is available for one-to-one personal case analysis. If you are willing to fill out a brief, multiple-choice type personality analysis, he will subsequently tell what type of work or profession would be best suited to you.
