

Obscure Imagery

by Robert Sundin III

MISERY LOVES GASTROINTESTINAL DISTRESS COMEDY by IVAN BRUNETTI

Roommate Type Dudes

by Rick

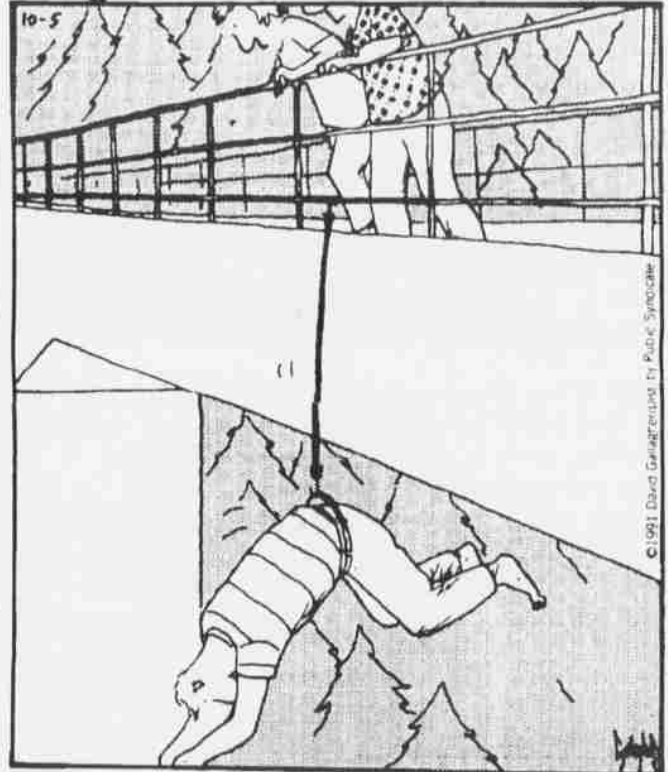

Global Village

by Jason Bermingham

Larger Than Life by Gallagher

No Exit

by Erik Andreson

SHOULD YOU DATE DAN QUAYLE?

PROS

- HE WON'T MAKE YOU THINK OR ANYTHING.
- HAS LOTS OF SPARE TIME
- PIERCING BLUE EYES (2).
- NICE BREATH, SINCE HEAD IS EMPTY.
- HE'S NO TED KENNEDY, EITHER.
- RARELY WEARS WOMEN'S CLOTHING.
- HE CAN DISCUSS SCOOBY DOO INTELLIGENTLY, WITHOUT BORING TECHNICAL JARGON.
- IT'S LIKE BEING WITH PAT SAJAK, EXCEPT YOU DON'T HAVE TO SPELL ANYTHING TO GET A FABULOUS PRIZE.

CONS

- HE NEVER BLINKS.
- MAY FORGET YOUR NAME (AND HIS).
- HE'LL PROBABLY GET GUM IN YOUR HAIR.
- THE PRESS WILL DUB YOU "QUAYLE'S PIGEON"
- SECRET X-RAY GOGGLES CAN SEE THRU CLOTHES.
- DATE CONSISTS OF WATCHING BRADY BUNCH.
- SUGARY JUNK FOOD MAKES HIM HYPER.
- YOU'LL END UP ON GERALDO.
- HIS WIFE MAY OBJECT.
- YOU COULD WAKE UP WITH AMNESIA AND A TATTOO OF BARRY GOLDWATER.

ERIK ANDRESON

Groove Garden

by Stephen Hirjak

Amateur bungee-jumping, while less expensive than professionally-equipped jumping, is considerably less exhilarating.

Ron Smithers, night janitor at the Acme Packing-Bubble Co. warehouse for 11 years, is discovered one Thursday morning having popped virtually all of the company's stock.