athletes.

"Road trips and practices are in the afternoons. Each of these students must pack their entire schedule daily between 8 a.m. and 1 p.m."

Sexton said this allows student athletes to miss fewer classes es during the sports season.

However, students needing certain classes to graduate might not agree with Sexton. Elaine Kersey, a senior English and education major, was hoping to graduate this May.

"The class I wanted was full, but I really needed it that semester because of my work schedule," Kersey said. "So I went the first day of class hoping the teacher would let me in.

"There were eight others there trying to do the same thing, all of us seniors. Meanwhile there's this girl in the corner looking very quiet. We asked her if she was a senior and she shook her head and said she was a sophomore, but was on the swim team. I didn't get the class."

Kersey said it took a lot of juggling and changing of her work schedule to save her graduation date but she wonders how many seniors have not been so lucky.

"There are only so many sections of the classes you need to graduate," Kersey said. "Some are only offered during certain semesters. I don't think it's fair that athletes get priority."

THIS YEAR A LOT OF COLLEGE SENIORS WILL BE GRADUATING INTO DEBT.

Under the Army's Loan Repayment program, you could get out from under with a three-year enlistment. Each year you serve on active duty reduces your indebtedness by one-third or $1,500, whichever amount is greater, up to a $55,000 limit. The offer applies to Perkins Loans, Stafford Loans, and certain other federally insured loans, which are not in default. And debt relief is just one of the many benefits you'll earn from the Army. Ask your Army Recruiter.
