

CBE three-peats by downing Sigma Phi Epsilon 20-19

"This was probably our best hitting game of the season, but our errors killed us."

So said Sigma Phi Epsilon Coach Mike Condratovich following the Men's Division softball championship game last Thursday.

In fact, the championship game cannot be summarized any better than that as Sig Ep pounded out 29 hits but committed eight errors.

As a result, the College of Business and Economics (8-1) salvaged a thrilling 20-19 victory to earn its third straight Men's Division title while Sig Ep (8-2) had to settle for second best.

"We hit the ball well today," said CBE Coach Jack Schibrowski, who was obviously delighted about his squad's threepeat.

At the same time, the CBE skipper was mutually impressed by the hard-hitting runners-up.

"Give (Sig Ep) a lot of credit," Schibrowski said. "That's as good a team as we've played the last three years."

CBE jumped ahead early, taking a 6-2 lead after one inning of championship game action. The lead was elevated to 15-3 after four innings.

"There were a couple of times where we thought we had them put away," Schibrowski admitted.

However, Sig Ep wouldn't be denied. It scored seven runs in the fifth frame to close the deficit to 15-10 and to sidestep a loss via the 10-run mercy rule. The CBE lead was reduced to four runs after 5 1/2 innings, 16-12.

Sig Ep had one last shot entering the seventh inning, trailing 20-12.

It's the twilight years for the CBE dynasty

Five seasons ago the first College of Business & Economics softball team didn't win a game. They were also shellacked by one team that arrived to the field riding on skate boards.

"They were all wearing tennis shoes and they 10-runned us," CBE player-coach Jack Schibrowski recalled.

To say that times have certainly changed is an understatement.

Last week, CBE—a squad comprised solely of UNLV faculty and staff—three-peated as the UNLV Intramural Men's Division softball champions.

CBE has progressed each season. After failing to win a game in its first season of competition in 1989, the Facing unpleasant odds, Sig Ep instigated a classic comeback, sending 12 batters to the plate, collecting eight hits and scoring seven runs but coming up one run short.

Sig Ep had the tying and go-ahead runs at first and second bases when the third out was recorded.

CBE, which had a first round bye, defeated Alpha Tau Omega, 14-0, in the semifinals to reach the championship game. CBE finishes its title-winning campaign with an 8-1 record, losing only to the Hawaiians in the regular season.

Sig Ep (8-2) beat Hittin' Skynz in the quarterfinals, 7-2, and the Hawaiians in the semifinal, 14-12, to qualify for the title game.
