Rebel Grill Treats Diners to '60s Delights

Hotel School offers superior dining alternative to routine campus fare ited The Rebel Grill Tuesday and Wednesday enjoyed more for their dollar than first-class meals.

They were taken back to the 1960s, as the restaurant was transformed to resemble a diner from a generation ago.

Food servers wore tie dyed shirts, a peace banner was displayed prominently upon a wall, and music of a generation ago was playing tunes by the Grass Roots and Blood Sweat and Tears.

chedelic Fajitas, Flower Child Salad and Communal Veggies.

Is this a new restaurant on campus, you ask? No, this was just another day of class for HOA 467 students.

Located on the second floor of Beam Hall, The Rebel Grill is a training ground for up and coming chefs, restaurant managers and food and beverage directors. While students work for free, most of those in the class call the class an invaluable part of their
