Golf team set for season

Swingin' Rebels look to improve on No. 7 ranking

The UNLV golf team is set to swing into the 1995 campaign as they try to improve on their No. 7 national ranking of last season.

Led by Walker Cup representative Chris Riley, the Rebels look to be very competitive as they return almost everyone from last season's team. The Rebels have also brought in a strong recruiting class to take the pressure off the veterans.

Head Coach Dwaine Knight is really pleased with this year's lineup. "This year's team is one of the best I've been around. The competition to make the team will be tougher than the opponents we play," Knight said.

Some of the players that should contribute on this year's team include: Chad Campbell, Charlie Hauffman, Ted Oh and Riley.

Oh has had a successful junior career, and comes to the Rebels with many accomplishments. He is a two-time Los Angeles City Champion and a medalist in the U.S. Junior Championship. As well as being the youngest player in history to play in the U.S. Open.

Campbell is a returning golfer from last season's squad. He helped the Rebels finish 15th in the National Finals and 5th in the regionals. Campbell had a solid performance in the U.S. Amateurs last season before being eliminated by Tiger Woods of Stanford in the second round.

Hauffman is two-time California High School Champion. Hauffman is a newcomer to the team, and he is joined by sophomores Chris Berry and Hunter Johnson.

The team has been surrounded by controversy, however, in the off season. Both Knight and assistant coach Jim Higgins have been named in a lawsuit filed by former Rebel David Lee in a lawsuit.

Lee is claiming that discriminatory remarks were made against him by Higgins and were heard by Knight. The remarks caused Lee to withdraw from UNLV and head to another school.

The team will conduct tryouts on Wednesday at the Las Vegas Country Club. They will compete in four rounds, with the top-two finishers earning automatic spots on the team. The remaining positions will be filled by Knight's choice.

Knight hopes to be ranked in the top ten in the country this season. "I'm real excited about the upcoming season, I believe we're in a strong position to be successful," Knight said.

UNLV Golf is all set to drive, putt, and birdie there way to greatness. With a well balanced line-up, the team is ready to shine in 1995.
