Gaming Institute receives donation

The UNLV Gaming Institute received a $25,000 donation from First Interstate Bank of Nevada to assist in the development of a new building. In recognition of the gift the building will feature a First Interstate Bank conference room.

The institute plans to erect a new 22,000 square foot building on the southeast corner of Flaming Road and Swenson Street, across from the Desert Research Institute.

Award to be given at Homecoming

Christina Hixson, trustee of the charitable Lied Foundation Trust, will be honored at UNLV's Homecoming festivities this weekend as the recipient of the UNLV Alumni Association's Silver State Award. "The 18 members of the Alumni Association Board of Directors voted unanimously to present this award to Christina Hixson," said Pamela Hicks, president of the Alumni Association. "Her support of the university is greatly appreciated, and we thought it was time our alumni properly acknowledge her generosity."

Hixson will receive the Silver State Award at the association's Homecoming dinner on Friday, and will be recognized during half-time of the UNLV vs. North Texas football game at Sam Boyd Stadium on Saturday.

Women's health issues seminar

Dr. Laura Culley will continue her series of seminars on women's health issues when she presents "How to organize your routine health check-up" at noon, Wednesday in the Moyer Student Union. The next seminar is slated for Nov. 29, and will address "Health and prevention of disease: your role."

The women's health series is sponsored by the Jean Nidetch Women's Center. For additional information contact the women's center at 895-4475.

Alumni association sponsors Homecoming events

The UNLV Alumni Association will sponsor a Homecoming reception in the Richard Tam Alumni Center at 7 p.m. Friday.

The association will also sponsor a tailgate party at 11 a.m. Saturday in the Sam Boyd Stadium parking lot prior to the UNLV vs. North Texas Homecoming game.
