20 students per team. Members of the first 20 teams registered received free World AIDS Day T-shirts.

The top three teams were awarded tickets to one major show on the Las Vegas strip, including Starlight Express at the Hilton, Catch a Rising Star at Bally's or Boylesque at the Debbie Reynolds Hotel.

According to David Turner, director of student affairs, prizes were used as an incentive to get optimal participation in the food drive.

"AIDS isn't going to go away," Turner said. "People on our campus need to know it's not going to up and disappear."

UNLV students weren't the only Nevadans who helped in the AFAN food drive. Turner solicited participation from high school students in the Las Vegas area, who rose to the occasion.

"The high school students showed proportionally more support than the students from our campus," Turner said.

The Ethnic Student Council involved young students from two local elementary schools by holding a contest in which the class that collected the most food was given a pizza party, Turner said.

Turner was pleased with the overall outcome of the food drive, though he believes student participation would have increased had former basketball star Earvin "Magic" Johnson attended UNLV's World AIDS Day events, as scheduled. Johnson's sudden cancellation resulted from a previous engagement with the Lakers. "That's a sad message, but it's true," Turner said.

Turner expressed dismay that more Greek organizations didn't participate in the food drive. "People claim that Student Government is overrun with Greeks, yet there was very little Greek involvement in the food drive and in the AIDS program on campus," Turner said.

"People's priorities in life are different."

A memorial service will be held at 5 p.m. today in the Artemus W. Ham Hall lobby to pay tribute to long-time UNLV communication professor Allan Padderud. Padderud, 49, died Nov. 22 after a three-year struggle with cancer.

The greeting and prayer will be officiated by Fr Tom von Behren, president of Bishop Gorman High School, followed by personal remembrances from family and friends.

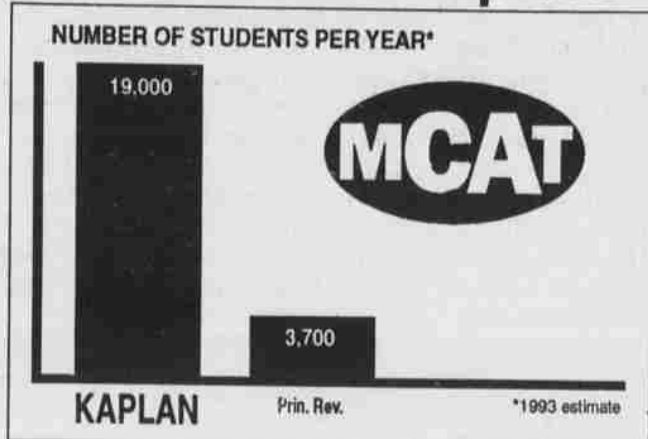

Music that Padderud recorded with his group "Alter Ego" will be included in the memorial service. Padderud's wife, Joanne, will read the poem "Desiderata," and his brothers, Dave and Eric, will also speak at the service.

Fellow bandmates Marcus Erling, M.D. and Anthony Ferri, associate professor of communications, will also say a few words in Padderud's honor, as will vice president and provost, John Unrue.

There will be special parking in the North End parking lot for visitors. A special permit will not be required.

us and get us back there."

Either way, Chambers believes this will be a long process and has no timetable set for the review. As of right now plans are still in a very early stage.

"No one thinks they will wake up tomorrow and find a new Hey Reb," Chambers said.

The CLC is planning to use a firm based in New York for any design changes. Sean Michael Edwards Design is the firm being considered and is a brand identity consultant firm that has redesigned many sports team's logos.

SME is the same firm that redesigned logos and mascots for professional teams such as the Seattle SuperSonics, New York Mets and the Jacksonville Jaguars. They are the only company in the world that holds the distinction of designing expansion team identities in all four major sports: Major League Baseball, NBA, NFL and the NHL.

"UNLV will not be parting from tradition but enhancing it," Chambers said. "And after everything is all said and done, nothing may change."
