Installation Weekend As Seen From Bemah

BY Claire Dase

To say the installation of Rabbi Aaron S. Gold, will go down in the annals of the Jewish history of the Las Vegas Community, would be writing it off very briefly, for if the ancient tradition is lived up to, it will be only through a peculiar twist of fate, that there will be another installation for the Temple or its members for many many years to come, God willing.

I can safely say that I got more than the regular view, for sitting up on the Bemah, one gets an entirely different prospective than one does when in the congregation. The preamble on Friday night proved to be another innovation of the correct way Conservative Judaism, and the United Synagogues unite a Rabbi with his congregation.

To a crowded Temple, Dr. Max Voorspam explained the marriage contract, as he referred it to be, of a Rabbi (the groom) and the congregation (the bride). The traditional "Git", the most ancient of Jewish marriage contracts was mentioned as a parallel with similar responsibilities by both parties. He explained the limits to be expected from all parties involved in the marriage ceremony. He put before the people the fact, that a Rabbi is also human, and has his own problems and therefore should have some time to live with his family, in some personal privacy.

Sunday morning was a time of great surprises for all who had the pleasure of participating, for at this period the Religious school honored Rabbi Gold in its own way. The junior and the newly formed intermediate choir had

Frankfurter Dies, Son of Poor Rabbi

WASHINGTON, (JTA) -- Private funeral services were for Justice Felix Frankfurter at the Frankfurter apartment here as the nation mourned the passing of the immigrant from Vienna who became a great exponent of constitutional law.

President Johnson attended the rites as did Abba Eban, Israel's Deputy Prime Minister. In accordance with a last request of the jurist, Professor Louis Henkin of Columbia University Law School, recited the Kaddish at the service. It was understood that the prayer had been chosen not for religious reasons but to symbolize the traditional ties the Justice felt for his Jewish heritage. No rabbi took part in the rights because of the late Justice's wish not to be formally identified with Judaism as a religious creed. Prof. Paul Freund offered a moving eulogy.

Justice Frankfurter died February 23 of heart illness, the disease which caused his retirement from the Supreme Court in 1962. He was 82.

The President, in paying tribute, said he was "grieved to learn of the passing of my friend, Justice Frankfurter, who did so much to preserve freedom through wise interpretation of the law. He was one of the great figures of legal history, a man who made many contributions to good government and who will be sorely missed."

NO WONDER

BRUSSELS, (JTA) -- Dr. Ewald Bucher, the West German Justice Minister who has been the most obdurate foe of extension of the statute of limitations for the prosecution of Nazi war criminals, was reported to have been a one-time leader of the Hitler Youth. It was also revealed here that he had been suspended from the German bar for six years after the war.

The disclosures were made at a mass meeting convened by a number of Belgian Jewish, Zionist, Resistance and other movements insisting on the extension of the statute of limitations in West Germany. A resolution demanding the continuation of the statute was voted unanimously for transmittal to both the Belgian and West German Governments.
