RABBI GOLD HOLDING URN, REPLICA OF THE ONE IN WHICH THE DEAD SEA SCROLLS WERE FOUND, PRESENTED BY THE USY GROUP DURING HIS INSTALLATION SERVICE BY THE RELIGIOUS SCHOOL SUNDAY MORNING. AT LEFT IS NORMAN SHLISKY, LLOYD KATZ, PRESIDENT OF THE TEMPLE BOARD OF EDUCATION, IS AT RIGHT.

voices in the imposing strains of "Su SH'oreem" followed by "Lift up Your Heads", and as a complete surprise to Rabbi Gold, his favourite composition of his father, Rabbi Elazar Elim-elech Gold, "Ayn Ayn Kitz'vo". The dignitaries walked down the center aisle, took their places, and the ceremonies began.

Governor Sawyer's address "The State and Spiritual Leadership", was direct, clear and precise, which has always been his policy, and was received with appreciation and nods of approval. Dr. Leiber's installation address, only went to point out even more that the previous speakers of the past, how much it means to all concerned to work together, and for each other, with the main goal being the betterment of the Temple and its great advantages. He mentioned that as "such, a Temple is not just a place to go in times of trouble, but a place in which to gather strength, joy and understanding for the ways of life and the Jewish faith. He told the congregants of the known qualities of Rabbi Gold, and his lovely wife Rita, and of the pleasure he himself had derived while visiting with their four daughters.

Rabbi Gold's prayer before the Ark, left many with tears, hopes and a better understanding of what we have been so luckily endowed with. A man of high ideals. A man who is willing to give of himself, with just a small prayer, that in return, some of his hopes and aspirations will be fulfilled. A man whose faith in the Almighty is so great, that along with placing his life in His hands, he is willing to place his complete faith in the One on High's helping him with the task before him.

Let us not let him down, for in the comparatively short period he has been among us, he has already made tremendous strides towards bigger and better things for our Temple and our children. Now he is not, as Dr. Max Voorspan said previously, a "common-law" Rabbi. He is truly and definitely part and parcel of the people of Temple Beth Sholom, to guide, to share, to lead spiritually, and to help each and everyone of us whenever and where ever he can. His hand has long been outstretched, and some have held out theirs, for these who have had any doubts, now is the time to cast them aside, and to start to work, hand in hand, with our own Rabbi Gold, for in doing so, they will learn how wonderful it is to be close to their God, to their religion, and to their Temple. They will help sow and nourish the seeds of the future in our children, and with time, will say with pride, our efforts, united, with that of "OUR" Rabbi, has flourished in this wilderness, as did Moses in the desert. Thank God for his generosity to us.

It would at this point of closing be most unfair to forget the joy rendered later in the social hall, by the strains of Morry King and his group.

been practicing for many weeks, renditions of some of the most delightful music, with which to serenade the Honoree and the audience. Nostalgic music and gay tunes filled the social hall, and each member of the intermediate choir had a part-speechwise- in the installation of Rabbi Gold. The grand climax came, when Jan Klein, President of the U.

S.Y. group, presented to Rabbi Gold, an Urn, the exact replica of the one found containing the Dead Sea Scrolls. To complete their program, they sang, (and it is a pity that it is not done more often) the Hatikvah, which left a feeling of inspiration and hope for the future of our faith.

Responsible for this excellent affair were Cantor Joseph Kohn; Abe Schwartz, the religious school principal; the teachers and the education board.

At the Installation, before services were due to commence almost 1000 persons including many dignitaries began arriving. Governor Grant Sawyer, David Leiber, as many of the Past Presidents of the Temple who were able to be there, Rev. Robert B. Brashares, the adult choir, and a very excited crowd gathered.

After the choir had taken its place in the pews, the opening strains of the processional began. The choir members poured forth their
