SENATE DEBATES QUOTA PROBLEM

WASHINGTON (JTA) -- An assertion by a North Carolina Senator that immigrants from Anglo-Saxon nations deserved preference caused a heated eruption at a hearing of a Senate Immigration Subcommittee.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, Jr., North Carolina Democrat, said he opposed President Johnson's bill to end the discriminatory national origin quota system. He told the Committee the bill "discriminates against the people who have made the greatest contribution to building up our country." He said persons from nations like Germany, England, Holland, Sweden and Norway deserved preferential treatment. This infuriated Sen. Jacob K. Javits, New York Republican, who took exception to these views, speaking "as the son of immigrant parents." He defended immigrants from Eastern Europe, Italy, and other areas, stating they had contributed as much as those from the "Nordic" nations.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, the Massachusetts Democrat who served as acting chairman of the Subcommittee, ruled Sen. Javits out of order. He said Sen. Javits was only entitled to ask a question pertaining to testimony given by Secretary of State Dean Rusk. Mr. Rusk, in reply to Sen. Javits' question, said he would agree that "we should not attempt to judge the value of contributions to our society based on race and national origin." He said valuable contributions were made by individuals from all parts of the world.

Mr. Rusk stressed that the Administration bill provided for termination of the biased national origins quota system. He urged the Senate to approve the measure, stating that the prejudiced immigration policy now in effect damages American prestige abroad. Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz said the Administration's proposals for changes in the immigration law "would promote the admission of individuals with qualifications and occupations needed in the United States." He stressed that such immigration law changes would not disturb the domestic employment situation and appealed to Congress to end the "anachronistic" national origins quota system.

REDS STILL HALT MATZOS

NEW YORK, (JTA) -- While matzoh is being baked in Moscow by permission of the Soviet Government, private Jewish sources expressed concern in the Soviet capital that the situation in Moscow "may not be typical" of other Jewish communities in the USSR, the New York Times reported from Moscow. The news about permission to bake matzoh in Moscow was carried by the Jewish Telegraphic Agency in a dispatch from Moscow on February 8.

The Times report stated that communal matzoh bakeries have also been established also in Leningrad and "perhaps" in Kiev. But the private sources told the Times correspondent in Moscow that Jews in other parts of the Soviet Union have not received permission to bake matzoh. They urged that Jews in the United States and Western Europe should not give up their efforts to ship matzoh to Jewish communities in the Soviet Union.
