FRIDAY NIGHT TEMPLE SERVICES DEDICATED TO

BROTHERHOOD WEEK

A portion of Friday evening Services at Temple Beth Sholom, tonight, Feb. 25, will be dedicated to Brotherhood Week. Many members of the clergy of all denominations will attend, along with civic dignitaries, who will participate in the Services.

The public is invited to both the religious Services, commencing at 8:30 p.m. and the Oneg Shabbat (social session) following the Services, which will be sponsored by the two B'nai B'rith groups along with the National Conference of Christians and Jews. Refreshments will be served.

At the Oneg Shabbat, the public will see on display for the first time the various posters created by the youth of many communities in Nevada, including the prize-winners named at the Brotherhood Dinner earlier this week, in the Mint Hotel.

The posters are a statewide competition of high school students over a period of many months, representing the true spirit of Brotherhood.

Again, all members of all Faiths are invited, and the Israelite urges all readers to make every effort to attend.

See you there.

Fashion Lunch Wed.

KAY

Kay Wallerstein, chairman of the 10th Annual Fashion show and luncheon to benefit Temple Beth Sholom, is rounding out a complete program of entertainment for the afternoon of Wednesday, March 2 in the Versailles Room of the Riviera Hotel, commencing at noon.

Professional models from the better women's shops on the Strip will display the latest Spring and Summer gowns. Commentary will be delivered by Kay, in her own inimitable style which we all know so well and which we have learned to appreciate.

In addition, top entertainers are being contacted and the show is expected to be one of the best since the fashion event began.

The Temple's religious school and youth activities will benefit from the
