and improving the quality in dice making.

He is an active member of the St. Viator Catholic Church, having studied for the priesthood, prior to deciding on a business career.

He is one of the biggest boosters of Las Vegas and a grand host to many out of towners who want to visit his dice factory. Every day more than a dozen persons tour his plant, Jim Dietch head of the News Bureau, takes delight in recommending the "must see" Nevada Dice Co.

Jones frequently misplaces objects, such as keys, pocketbook, etc. However, as he puts it, "Thye misplace me."

Bud is neat in his individual manner. His idea of hanging things up at night is laying things very carefully on the floor, so they won't get mussed.

He is both sentimental and intuitive. He believes in what he believes, and will argue his point of view, while showing due respect for yours. He doesn't believe in taking anything for granted. (I've discovered from past experiences that 'pride cometh before a fall.'")

Barnet, Leanetti, Marita at Trop

The tried and triumphant triumverate of bigband, singer and comic again combines in the Blue Room of Hotel Tropicana Friday (Feb. 3) when Charlie Barnet, Tommy Leonetti and Pat Morita team in a two-week engagement.

Barnet, of course, recently returned to the musical wars after a five-year "retirement," inspired by the rising rock-and-rollers and from which he was lured back to action by the resurgence of the big bands.

Backed by an aggregation of musicians in his Blue Room Bow, the veteran bandsman and contemporary of Goodman, Miller, Shaw and the Dorseys will fire up his tenor sax and swinging sounds with such Barnet standards as "Cherokee," "Skyliner," "Pompton Turnpike," and "Smiles." On the vocal side, singing star Leonetti also will be making his Blue Room debut, although his nightclub career has brought him to other Las Vegas stages as well as leading niteries throughout the country.

In addition to his nightclub career, the veteran vocalist's background includes singing duty with the Tony Pastor orchestra, regular Johnny Carson and "Hit Parade" television appearances, his own radio network show, summer stock and records.

Delivering the comedy will be Morita, the flip Nip, whose second Blue Room outing again will deliver the hilarious humor that probes current events and customs, including his own Japanese ancestry and traditions. Rounding out the Blue Room lineup will be Dr. Ron Dante, Mr. Hypnotism, and the Mafalda Duo, while nial continues in the Theatre Restaurant. the Folies Bergere Centen-
