the Alpine Village.

A few feet before one enters the Danube is a large sign reading: "Come As You Are". Reminds you of the real West.

Gene is a member of the Executive Club and keeps in exceptionally good physical condition ("I have to watch myself, if I eat as much as I like to").

The seating capacity of the Danube is only 50 but its lounge has room for 30. They plan to expand someday.

He admires women who are both intelligent and beautiful. ("That's the magic combination.")

He is a bachelor.

Most of the Strip headliners (even though it's out of their way) eat at the Danube. That also goes for some of the bosses on the Strip.

Whenever they play Vegas stars like Frank Sinatra, Eddie Fisher, Tony & Cyd Martin, Dean Martin, Debbie Reynolds, Jerry Lewis, Bobby Darin and many others make the Danube their favorite eating place.

Joe May has lived in Las Vegas 15 years and while he claims to know of all kinds of foods he's still learning always, trying to improve his cooking to perfection.

The Sahara Hotel purchases the seasonings from the Danube, 20 different kinds.

The only jewelry Gene wears is a wrist-watch.

Both Gene and Joe are gourmets yet they eat almost anything. The Danube is well-stocked in the wine department. They have an excellent selection of rare wines.

Next time when looking for a place to dine out remember the Danube, at 1700 East Charleston Blvd, and remember both Joe and Gene-Swell people.

PARADISE SPA OFFERS A VARIETY OF COMFORTS

Condominium resorts too often sacrifice home spaciousness for recreational facilities, but this is not the case at Paradise Spa, the 300-acre Las Vegas community complex, reports general manager Richard E. Eckenweiler.

A Paradise Spa home ranges up to 1,200 sq. ft. in one, two and three-bedroom plans. Featured are large living rooms, smartly decorated bedrooms with cathedral ceilings, colorful kitchens with ranges, ovens and refrigerators, cheerful patios with landscaped grounds and stylish exteriors.

"While our residents spend a great deal of leisure time on the Spa tennis court, in the health clubs, horseback riding, swimming and socializing, they also like to entertain at home," explains Eckenweiler.

"That is why we have provided so much 'entertaining' room in even the smaller models. This spaciousness is particularly useful for those residents who maintain in second home here.

"They are able to bring guests in for a few days' visit and not feel cramped," he declares.

Adding to the comfort of the homes are such bonus features as carpeting, drapes and refrigerated air conditioning. With such important purchases already included in the $13,750 to $25,000 price, moving in at the close-in development is expedited, adds Eckenweiler.

Paradise Spa is located at 9457 Las Vegas Blvd., South, only a five-minute drive from the Strip.

It embraces a man-made ISRAELITE ADS PAY lake, lighted at night by picturesque rings of fire, wide expanses of green grass, a golf complex and outdoor mineral whirlpools in addition to the private whirlpools and steam baths which provide relaxation in the health clubs.

Also on the grounds are convention and theatre facilities, color TV room, community barbecues, volley ball courts, stables and two giant swimming pools.

Tours of the elaborate project are held daily. Overnight accommodations are also available as well as a carte programs in the health clubs.
