LUNCHEON

Success," and Mrs. Joseph Mitchell, women's President of Jewish Federation Council of Los Angeles, will give details of the aims and goals of this year's drive.

By attending the luncheon and making a pledge to the community campaign, you can help build the future for thousands of immigrant children starting new lives in Israel this year. There are many more thousands of Jewish children in Europe and Moslem lands, who must be provided with food, clothing, medical care and schooling.

With the minimum requirements for each child throughout the world calculated at merely 10 cents per day, it was a simple matter of arithmetic for the women of the luncheon committee to arrive at minimum donation for the gala affair -- $36.50. This means that every distaff member who shows up at the CJA luncheon will be supporting a child in need for an entire year. What a thrill of satisfaction!

Not only will you attend a social, high-light function in a gay, happy atmosphere of the swank Sands Hotel, but you will be in the company of the most sophisticated women of Las Vegas. Think, during the first hour of the luncheon -- 60 minutes -- every second that ticks off on the clock, you will be supporting a child somewhere in the world for an entire day.

It is suggested you contact CJA Office, 734-1203, to secure reservations. Then prepare that frock you've been saving for a special occasion, make your appointment with the beauty parlor and plan to be with Miss Head next Wednesday, May 10, at noon. The Las Vegas Women's Divison will appreciate your attendance, the CJA will appreciate it, but most of all "A Child Needs You."

Jordan U.S. Envoy Slams Israel

FROM THE COLORADO DAILY

The Jordanian ambassador to the United States delivered a severe indictment of the state of Israel at a World Affairs Week plenary session Tuesday night.

Farhan Shubeilat said that Israel as a political state is a threat to Arabs. "We have nothing against the Jews as far as race or religion. We have nothing against Jews who do not support the Zionist movement.

"IT IS clearly a political movement and we are against it," he said.

Mr. Shubeilat said that the Arabs object to the great influx of foreigners who have settled in Palestine since World War L. The problem does not lie in the fact that Jews were already there, he said.

"There were more than 60,000 Jews in Palestine in 1917, out of a population of 800,000. In 1947, there were more than 700,000 Jews. Now there are more than two million and they are still seeking more, without looking at what the capacity might be."

The ambassador decried the fact that the Arabs are being forced to deal with a problem created by other nations.

Mr. Shubeilat said that the persecutions in Europe and Russia created problems for the Arabs by increasing the flow of Jews to Palestine. "We were the people to pay the price for all these problems," he said.

"It was like not being able to vote on an issue when you are absent from class.

"WE HAVE the right to be against people who are not of our race; people who have no relation to our area; people who take ten times their share. What did we do?"

To the misfortune of the Arabs, Mr. Shubeilat said, early in the century the numbers of Jews in the United States grew because of an exodus from Russia. They eventually made themselves felt in the form of a pressure group.

They exerted pressure on the President, he said, to allow 100,000 refugees to enter Palestine and to favor partition of the country. "Truman confessed he was under gerat pressure to take the side of the Zionists," Mr. Shubeilat said.

The decision was made to divide Palestine. The two parts were to be linked economically. "The Zionists were preparing long ago for the fight," he said. "They took more than they were given. Israel was established by the division of Arabs and by the support of those who came to fight because they were paid very highly."

"WE SEEK security. We want peace. How to do it? "We are not interested in fighting. We don't want to kill. But we don't want to be killed," Mr. Shubeilat said.

SPEECH CAUSES REACTION
by Bob Knight

A World Affairs Conference speech made Wednesday by the Jordanian ambassador to the United States produced a strong reaction from at least one other participant in the conference.

Sam Rosenberg, a free lance journalist, film producer and documentary director, said Ambassador Farhan Shubeilat should not be allowed to make blatant anti-Semitic statements and then fly back to Washington before anyone has a chance to answer him.

"THE STATEMENT of the ambassador as reported in the Colorado Daily," Mr. Rosenberg said, "implies that Russian Communist Jews pressured the U.S. government to allow 100,000 Jewish refugees into Palestine.

"This is a Hitlerian ploy designed to camouflage the real historical facts."

Mr. Rosenberg covered the 1948 Arab-Israeli war and was in Israel when they gained nationhood that year.

"I'm not speaking as a journalist," he said, "But as a participant in this conference who is also a Jew."

He said he was not trying to debate the facts with Ambassador Shubeilat -- that wasn't the point. He was merely objecting to a process that would allow the Jordanian Ambassador to go unanswered.
