

Barney Glazer's "HOLLYWOOD HOTLINE"

The University of Colorado has established a Gene Fowler Room in its library to store his manuscripts and to hold seminar meetings. This was the late brilliant writer's fondest wish. He attended the Boulder, Colo., University where he waltzed through an entire four-year psychology course in one year and earned an A. Comparing the stars: Doris Day is so completely relaxed during shooting, cast members insist she doesn't have a nerve in her body. At the other extreme, Greer Garson confessed, "Every take I do is an opening night. I die."

Motion picture theatres will accept color commercials from a leading appliance manufacturer who is anxious to reach young marrieds. Cost of theatre screen advertising is based on average separations.

Asked about any political aspirations, Glen Ford firmly replied, "No." He'd like to see more big names entertain in Viet Nam...Maureen O'Hara, for many years who has owned "The Morgan Story" by Phillip Charlot and "Born in Paradise," by Armini von Tempski, has sent out feelers to produce the two stories for the screen.

George Maharis dislikes restaurant managements who refuse service to men without ties. He doesn't want a restaurant telling him how to dress.... Romina Power, 15, continues to fascinate Hollywood with her remarkable resemblance to her late father, Tyrone Power.

In spite of their happy appearance, Sonny and Cher convince new acquaintances after a few minutes conversation that they are really a couple of sweet kids.... Asked is she will remarry, Barbara Stanwyck replied, "I guess not."

Brian Aherne and Eleanor de Liagre, sister of play producer Alfred, celebrated their 21st wedding anniversary...Mary Tyler Moore doesn't like miniskirts and thinks mod dancing is awkward.

Alex Cord takes full flame for any slowdowns in his career. He refuses to finger Hollywood....Those who met Sandy Dennis for the first time come away with the thought that no home should be without one.

Dantam - sized comedian Don Knotts, who built himself into national prominence as the skinny, pusillanimous Barney Fife in Andy Griffith's TV show, is determined to duplicate the feat in motion pictures...Joan Crawford is a friendly hostess who graciously shows guests through her flower-filled West Hollywood apartment. It's a home away from her grander New York home.

Terence K. O'Brien expressed distress that reporters claimed his father, Pat O'Brien, had failed to attend services for Terence's godfather, Spencer Tracy. The young man explained that his father had been in constant touch with the Tracy family, who understood and accepted Pat's theatre commitment in Chicago. "The relationship of dad and Spence," remained Terence, "was more that of brother than friend."

Typesetters keep changing songwriter George Bruns' name to George Burns. Bob Hope always watches his old movies on TV. Fred Astaire never does.
