

LAS VEGAS SHOWCASE

No Matter Who Wrote T-Bird Show "That Certain Girl" Playing To Capacity

In the best traditions of the theatre, the show will go on as scheduled at Hotel Thunderbird.

The show is "That Certain Girl", which ran into legal difficulties several weeks ago when the question of authorship of the story resulted in an injunction seeking to have the show closed until the matter of legal rights could be determined.

But the matter was temporarily settled in court and the show will continue uninterrupted and is expected to continue playing to absolute capacity crowds as it has been since opening two weeks ago.

Contrary to a report in one local newspaper, the marquee will not be changed to include the name of the alleged writer.

The court ruled that in instances where "book" credit is given to Alan Woods and Jerry Schafer, the words "from an original book" by the alleged writer must be used. But the only instances of this are in the program and a short film clip bearing the credits at the beginning of the show.

On the topic of the true authorship of the book, Judge John Mendoza withheld comment on the merit or lack of merit of the suit stating that the matter would have to be decided at a later trial.

A Hotel Thunderbird executive said the hotel is unconcerned as to the rightful ownership of the book and stated the hotel had negotiated for the book "in good faith" and is prepared to pay the rightful owner when this is determined by the court.
