Barney Glazer's "HOLLYWOOD HOTLINE"

Producer Joseph Levine saw the rough reels of "The Graduate" and immediately offered director Mike Nichols a dizzy percentage of the gross to direct "Little Me." Nichols confessed that the Levine - Embassy "Graduate" was far less exacting to direct than Warner's "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf," in which, for example, Liz Taylor had to spit in Richard Burton's face Monday through Friday. TONY CURTIS may play Johnny, the junkie, as James Farentino's brother in David Susskind's television special, "Hatful of Rain." Farentino is wearing the right sized hat for the role of Polo. This special and its casting are the weathercast of the year for something really big in the boxoffice deluge area. Farentino is married to singer - actress Michele Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dusik, of Los Angeles. He's a studio makeup artist. James and Michele have known each other for four years, have been married almost two years. Neither is afraid of the big showbiz challenge to a happy married life - better breaks for one, leading to the same old miseries of jealousy, resentment and ultimately divorce. "We didn't enter our marriage blindly," said Farentino. "We're buying our first home and we'll settle for only a long and happy life together. It won't make a bit of difference if one is more successful than the other. We didn't marry to compete."

WHILE HER ex-husband, producer Aaron Spelling, waited patiently on the other line, Carolyn Jones excitedly described the paintings she had purchased from Misha Kallis for prices ranging from $500 to $1,000. The artist painted portraits, nudes and dancers to adorn the studio of his son, producer Stan Kallis. Carolyn is convinced that the elder Kallis' work soon will attract considerably higher prices. HAVE DANNY Thomas and Eddie Fisher started their private Israeli-Arab war? Vic Damone replaced Fisher on a Danny Thomas television segment and raised the question. If you ask about the disagreement, Fisher doesn't sing and Danny doesn't tell funny stories. RESIDENTS of Chichester, England, are boiling stronger than their favorite tea about Danny Kaye's cancellation of his stage appearance there in favor of jetting to Israel to entertain troops. ROBERT CLARY, who with John Banner comprise the Jewish membership of television's "Hogan's Heroes," plans to visit next April his family in France. The diminutive singer-actor has many sisters, brothers and other relatives in his native land.

Take home a McDonald's Meal

Hear the Dream Fights of the Century Heavy-weight Tournament on KORK Radio every Monday night brought to you by McDonald's.

WHEN ORDERING "TAKE OUT" ITEMS be sure to mention it to the McDonald's counter man wearing this badge. He will give your "Take Out" order special attention while packing, at no extra cost. Nobody can fill your carryout "take home" order faster, or better than McDonald's. And nobody can top McDonald's for value: you get your money's worth and more on every order, big or small! So, from now on, when you think of carryout "take home" food, think of McDonald's first. All your family's favorites are on McDonald's menu: 100% beef hamburgers, beefy cheeseburgers, crisp french fries, triple-thick shakes, icy soft drinks! In so many ways, McDonald's is the closest thing to home!
