

CHIEF RABBIS URGE BOND SUPPORT

The Chief Rabbis of Israel, Isser Yehuda Untermann and Yitzhak Nissim, this week called for intensified support of the Israel Bond drive to help finance Israel's economic reconstruction and development, and urged the widest possible participation in the High Holiday effort for Israel Bonds.

Chief Rabbi Untermann emphasized the role of the Israel Bond Organization which, he said, "has achieved so much in the development of the State of Israel and which now has an even greater task to fulfill at this time which has been granted us to witness."

Stressing the importance of strengthening Israel's economy and facilitating the absorption of immigrants, Chief Rabbi Untermann added:

"Remember that by buying Israel Bonds you help strengthen the economic basis of Israel, and build a home for our brothers whose desire is to come and dwell in the land of their fathers."

Chief Rabbi Nissim cited the historic significance of the period through which the State of Israel has just passed, and called for increased assistance in its programs of economic development.

He urged all Jews to visit Israel to see what has been accomplished there, and he pointed out the importance of participating in the country's economic growth through the purchase of Israel Bonds.

"Every Jew whom the Lord has granted a good living should help strengthen the economy of our State by buying Israel Bonds," he said. "If he has already done so, this year he should increase his purchase, since there is more to be done than ever before."

In the course of his message, Chief Rabbi Untermann said:

"During these momentous days, the whole House of Israel has been aroused to sublime heights by the brilliant victory over our enemies which our heroic sons in the Army of Israel won with the help of the Redeemer and Savior of Israel.

"We rejoice in the liberation of the Old City Jerusalem, the place of the Sanctuary, from foreign hands; the uplifting and internal awakening of the people to unity and their drawing nearer to the source of our life—the eternal Torah — which has maintained us and from which we draw our strength and power, faith and trust.

"This situation places upon us the obligation to strengthen the people, both materially and spiritually, to consolidate the nation and to increase its power of absorption; and to fortify that spiritual power which is revealed in our Torah and faith."

In his call to Jewry, Chief Rabbi Nissim said:

"The salvation that the Lord has granted us is as great as the miracle of the salvation of Israel at the time of Mordecai and Esther or of the Hashmona'im. Never since the destruction of the Temple has there been a day more glorious for Israel than when Jerusalem returned to its children. The people, wherever they were scattered, have never rejoiced so; reconciliation has taken place among the communities and the people of Israel have again become one nation.

"The cry to return to Jerusalem that has come for two thousand years from the hearts of the Jewish people is now confirmed by the lifeblood of every one of our generation. This year, the first after the redemption of our city, is to be The Year of Jerusalem; let all of us be present at our holy place, so that we may witness the return to Zion of our Redeemer bringing tidings of salvation."

ISRAEL BONDS (Continued from Page 1) the reconstruction and development of the State of Israel in a spirit of devoted friendship."

"Israel is now engaged in restoring its war-disrupted economy to a condition of normalcy," Greenspun and Judge Zenoff declared. "At the same time she must resume agricultural and industrial projects vital to greater economic stability. Israel will rely heavily on the sale of Israel Bonds to finance the development programs which will enable her to achieve these economic aims."
