

'SHOWCAST OF THE STARS' ★

entertains the visiting press and the VIP'S. He is most gracious.

His is ambitious. ("I want to accumulate enough money to have the things I've become accustomed to.")

As for sports he likes 'em all. His favorite is water skiing. He was a letterman in College.

He loves lobster and a thick juicy steak at least twice a week. He can cook, too.

Both he, Margaret, and son Bryan like Las Vegas immensely - the people, the weather and especially his work.

He gets up early, Margaret like to sleep late.

He is a handy man around the house. ("I always mean to try to be useful.")

He likes casual clothes ("I'm never going to make the best-dressed man list").

He doesn't dream often but when he does the dream concerns what he has to do the next day. He doesn't score himself as being frank.

He has a wide-eyed, innocent approach.

He doesn't like to talk on the telephone, but realizes it is necessary.

He (I'm told) is neat around the house. He carefully hangs up his clothes after undressing.

He sleeps in a king-size bed with the windows wide open. Sometimes he sleeps wearing only the top of his pajamas, sometimes only the bottoms, and sometimes in the raw.

Bruce Banke knows where he is going, and Las Vegas is welcoming him with open arms.
