with Wallace's open approval."

Commander Ross indicated JWV - whose organizational roots go back to Civil War days - has been "politically non-partisan... never indicated support for an political candidate...but.. since our existence, we (JWV) have fought...for democracy, basic human decency...against bigotry, racism and discrimination."

"However," Ross went on to say, "the Wallace-Birch demagoguery is breaking into the ranks of decent American citizens - Americans who are disturbed, confused and fearful over the Vietnam war, the Black revolution, inflation, Law and Order, the youth revolt and the like... masquerading as patriots...offering solutions that pander to hatred and violence, solutions that mock our American traditions and deliberately undermine our constitutional process."

"JWV gives notice to those decent Americans who might fall for this 'little ole country boy' high-pressure, Law and Order pitch. Take a second look! We veterans have seen this technique before; the attacks on the Court and its laws, the use of scapegoats to work up a crowd, the careful appeal to the common man against 'those pointy headed intellectuals' in government, the open promise of violent action against dissenters, the lauding of a polite-military state (just for a few years), and of course the old standby of labeling all who disagree as communists or anarchists," Ross added.

"The Jewish War Veterans of the United States are second to none in its opposition to communism. It is our deep conviction that the American democratic constitutional process, with ever expanding equal opportunities for all Americans, is the most effective answer to the challenge of communism," Commander Joseph Ross concluded.

The Jewish War Veterans of the United States is America's oldest active veterans organization.

authorities to provide the 3 million Jews of the Soviet Union the same cultural and religious facilities permitted other officially - recognized minority groups. The appeal also asks that Soviet Jews who wish to be reunited with families living in the U. S., Israel or other lands be permitted to immigrate.

The campaign for signatures will begin immediately, Prof. Glazer said, in more than 150 colleges and universities across the country. He disclosed that the signed petitions will be sent to Soviet Premier Kosygin in Moscow.

The Academic Committee also released a 7,500-word study on the use of anti-Semitism as an instrument of Soviet Policy since the Six-Day War by Moshe Decter, author and Soviet affairs specialist.

The report charges that the defeat of the Arab armies in June, 1967 "precipitated a high-level decision in the Kremlin to transform its traditional hostility to Israel and Zionism into something systematically linked to and colored by anti-Semitic motifs."

The study emphasizes the significance of an article by the chief ideologist of the Polish Communist Party, Andrzej Werblan, appearing in the June 1968 issue of the Polish magazine "Literary Monthly."

"There is no other published ideological manifesto in the history of the Communist movement which supplies so explicit a justification for an anti-Semitic policy by a Communist regime," Mr. Decter writes.

The importance of the Werblan document, according to the report, derives from its insistence that Jews are outsiders ("cosmopolitans") and cannot be either Polish patriots or good Communists. The study quotes Werblan's indictment of Polish Jewish Communist leaders for "remaining under Zionist influence" and for being "ideologically alien" and guilty of "clique solidarity of racial origin."
