and years. "I have a strange antenna," he says. "I seldom tune in on wrong people."

He remembers friends and relatives' birthdays and anniversaries. He is touched when people remember the important occasions in his life.

Roland usually wakes us in good humor but doesn't have much to say about anything until after his second cup of coffee.

He isn't married and hasn't any plans to be married. "After all these years I like it that way."

He can sleep 'round the clock if tired (from making the Trip rounds, "He can also get by on very little sleep if the occasion requires.

He likes casual clothes. ("I'm never going to make any best-dressed-man list,") and casual people.

He is at home wherever he lives. He travels plenty.

He eats what he wants. He never craves rich, fattening foods. Likes to eat lightly, but often. He enjoys being surprised by small gifts.

He argues and vehemently, for what he believes in. He doesn't hold grudges. He doesn't smoke or drink.

His Hillways book lists more than 10,000 hotels, motels and eating places. His 11th edition (printed a year ago) is all sold out. His recent Hillways GUIDE, on sale at most of the newsstands, is a must. Charlie Rich of the Dunes Hotel purchased 500 copies.
