advice or criticize what is being done when you are on the outside; but when you get on the inside and have to make the decisions, it takes on a different solution. Possibly we have not been strong enough in trying to impress upon both sides that we must have and need peace and that a world war arising in the Mideast will be harmful to both the Israelis and Arabs, as well as to the rest of the world.

What I want to say is that the prestige of the U. S. has not been used enough to try to insist -- along with the great powers -- that we ought to have a reasonable settlement and a reasonable fixation of boundaries over there.

I make no specific recommendations in that regard as to boundaries or to the sovereignty of all of Jerusalem because I think the Israelis and Arabs themselves must talk face to face about this, I believe in direct communication. We in the U. S. can't say this is it, and then, that'll be it...for them. We have to persuade and talk to both sides, but at the same time we must always see to it that a balance is maintained there.

Q: Do you think Israel is important to our plan to contain the Soviet Union?

A: Any country in the world is important to our plans to contain Soviet Union, and certainly this applies to our friend, Israel, in the Mideast. It would be good in our national interest if we could impress upon both sides that we are honest in our willingness to see a peaceful settlement of give and take and then maybe we could loosen some of the Soviet influence among the Arabs. We must try to show them that we really want to see peace and a good life for both sides in the sense that they cannot have a good life. Unless they have peace...we ought to gain the respect of both sides and then we would have a better opportunity to bring about a lasting peace, through persuasion. We must help get both sides to go to the conference table, and we can do this easier if both sides trust us.... We cannot be effective if one side mistrusts us. I am not saying we should ride both sides. I don't mean that at all, but we should try to let both sides know that it is in our

"TY" FOR ASSEMBLY

Clark County Assemblyman Norman Ty Hilbrecht renewed his call for creation of an independent state officer to hear and act on the complaints of people about government agencies.

Creation of such an office -- popularly known as "ombudsman" -- has been urged by Hilbrecht for more than two years. He introduced legislation to establish the office in 1967, and said today he hopes the legislature will take affirmative action during the regular session next year.

WHITE FOR #2

Pledging full support for Question #2, University of Nevada Regent Dr. Juanita White said "Nevada can no longer afford the piecemeal construction and planning" imposed by present bonding laws.

Dr. White pointed out that the constitutional amendment, which would allow the state to raise the bonding limitation from one per cent to three per cent of assessed valuation "is just as sensible and practical for the State as an FHA or other type of mortgage is for a householder."

Experience is a MUST on the State Supreme Court!

... And the one Supreme Court Candidate who has complete judicial experience is Judge John Mendoza. Judge Mendoza has served on the State Supreme Court and has also served as a judge in Justice Court. He is a former City Attorney and a former District Attorney. Currently, he serves as a judge in District Court.

Judge Mendoza is a native Nevadan who returned to his state after receiving a law degree from Notre Dame University, where he attended school on a football scholarship. Judge Mendoza has proven throughout a brilliant career as a jurist that he will be a strong, independent voice on the Nevada Supreme Court.
