Marlene Dietrich Set For Trop

Hotel Tropicana pulled the entertainment coup of the year with the signing of Marlene Dietrich for one performance an evening during the posh Las Vegas Strip hotel's annual "Holiday Fiesta," Dec. 5-22.

The celebrated per will be quite at home with the elite audiences, since they will include the upper strata of international society, industry and entertainment circles, all invited to this social highlight of the Fall season by Tropicana president J. K. Houssels, Jr.

Only 750 persons have received a coveted invitation to the prestigious event, to be staged by famed party giver and international host Tom Douglas, who has promised that this elaborate two-week "Holiday Fiesta" will out-dazzle anything the Jet Set has ever experienced, anywhere.

Festivities include sumptuous Argentine barbecues and ten-course gourmet dinners; elegant fashion shows, hosted by the most celebrated designers of the fashion world; exciting special events and gala pinata parties, with gifts such as Tiffany jewels, new cars, furs and color television sets being lavished on the promient revelers.

Each evening's highlight will be, of course, the performance of the one and only La Dietrich whose infrequent concert appearances around the world are always an advance sellout.

Miss Dietrich's one show a night will be precedent setting at Hotel Tropicana where artists normally do two or three performances nightly and will mark her first Las Vegas appearance in six years.
