

Barney Glazer's 'HOLLYWOOD HOTLINE'

A new movie will be titled "The Gearshift." How about a Jewish version, "The Ger-sheft"? ... Assaf Dayan, son of Israeli minister Moshe Dayan, is discussing production of the movie "Death of a Jew," to be made in Israel with Akim Tamiroff.

A London vaudeville team since the 1930s, The Kipper Brothers will be seen in Columbia's "The Looking Glass War." If you're wondering how they lasted this long in showbiz, each is his brother's Kipper.

ginal state, provides tours for visitors. It was here that Otto Frank's family hid to avoid persecution and imprisonment by the Nazis who had invaded Holland.

Teenagers, especially 14-18, are quiet, with eyes that plead, "Don't heap more abuse on us because our parents have told us everything already."

Little children are handled with care in order to avoid upsetting them. One little German boy said, "I feel sorry for Anne Frank."

It is here that young adults, in spite of widely different backgrounds and beliefs, are working together for a true and lasting peace among the countries of the world.

AGENT Lynn Rosen celebrated her birthday by gifting her agent-husband Jerry Rosen with a 1964 black Rolls Royce. Next year, Lynn will present Jerry with a full-length Chinchilla coat but I have a faint suspicion that Jerry will object that the coat doesn't fit him and will insist that Lynn wear it instead.

MOLLY PICON signed in for a role in Gomer Pyle's "USMC." If I know Molly, she'll wind up cooking a plate of "Smoky Mountains Kreplach" for Jim Nabors.

STANLEY WAXMAN, Jewish character actor, will play the Egyptian Serapamoun in Pandro Berman's movie, "Justine." Waxman played the American Indian with an Oxford accent on tv's "Beverly Hillbillies," also the wealthy Arab on "Run for Your Life" and a German Officer on "Rat Patrol." Away from the camera, Stanley and his wife, Rena, present concert readings of poetry, plays and their original material for clubs, schools and community organizations.

THE VALLEY State (Calif.) College football team broke up its losing streak when non-Jewish coach Dick Streid started to carry a yarmulke in his pocket, gift of Jewish lineman Drew Yellen.

A brilliant afternoon of ballet is in store for dance and music lovers when the exciting Los Angeles City Ballet comes to the Convention Center on February 23 under the auspices of the Las Vegas Symphony Society. JOYCE Vanderveen is prima ballerina.

With the celebrated Michel Panaieff as its artistic director and choreographer, the Los Angeles City Ballet will present "The Seasons," to the music of Glazounov; Mendelssohn's "Songs Without Words," styled after the famed Pas de Quatre of Jules Perrot; and "Polovetzian Dances" from Borodin's "Prince Igor."

Mr. Panaieff, former star of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, has also numerous choreography credits for motion pictures.

The Company is the only troupe in the Los Angeles area to have developed its own repertoire and to have its own scenery and costumes, and therefore is able to offer several ballet programs comparable to those of the visiting or touring companies.

Also scheduled is Harpist Toni Robinson, who has appeared in numerous performances with singer Johnny Mathis.

PREMIERE BENEFITS CHURCH

The world premiere of "A Raft Called 'Lehi'," a 90-minute techni-color film about the voyage of a 40-ton, 40-foot raft, will be presented at the Stardust Auditorium Convention Center on Friday, February 21, at 8 p.m. The project, which took nearly 20 years to complete at a cost of $250,000 lead to the production of this adventurous film. According to Captain De Vere Baker who produced the film, "This is one of the most complete documentaries of the anthropology of man through oceanography that has ever been made."

miere will benefit the Las Vegas Stake, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints' building fund. One thousand tickets will be on sale at $25 each. Further particulars can be obtained from L. Berrett Wasdenm chairman of the fund raising event, 3630 Maryland Parkway, whose phone number is 734-1155. According to Captain Baker, "There will be a special 'free admission' showing of the film for children at 2 p.m. February 22. The free tickets can be obtained from one of the bishops of the Las Vegas Stake who will be selling the premiere tickets."
